HOOVER NAMES DOAK TO LABOR POST IN CABINET

Head of Federation Opposed to Choice.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—William N. Doak of Virginia, Washington legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, was appointed secretary of labor by President Hoover today. He will succeed Secretary James J. Davis, who leaves the Hoover cabinet Monday to become United States senator from Pennsylvania. The entry of Mr. Doak into the President's official family will mark the first cabinet recognition accorded the so-called solid south since Hoover carried five southern states in the 1928 election.

The announcement of the Doak appointment brought the President to grips at once with the American Federation of Labor, which has openly opposed selection of the Virginian on the ground that he is not a member of the American Federation of Labor. Less than three hours after the appointment was announced in a White House statement emphasizing that the President could not accept the dictation of the American Federation of Labor in the selection of cabinet personnel President William Green of the labor federation issued a pronouncement in which he expressed keen disappointment over Mr. Hoover's action.

Others from Federation.

Mr. Green pointed out that all previous labor secretaries had been American federation men and added he could not understand why the President had gone outside the labor organization for his new cabinet member.

In appointing Mr. Doak, who managed the labor end of his campaign in 1928, President Hoover emphasized that his appointee had been identified with organized labor all his life.

"For sixteen years he has been a general officer of the trainmen, taking part in great numbers of labor negotiations," the President said. "I have received indorsements of Mr. Doak from several scores of labor unions, some of whom are members of the American Federation of Labor. I know that Mr. Doak will represent all labor in his public duties, and that he will reinforce the sympathetic attitude of the administration to the great problems of the wage earner.

Esteems Doak Personally.

"While President Green has publicly stated that he will oppose Mr. Doak's appointment because Mr. Doak's union is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, he informs me that he holds Mr. Doak in the highest personal esteem.

"I do not feel that I can consent to the principle of debarment of the railway employes or other labor unions and associations or any labor man in the United States from the opportunity or the aspiration to attain any office in this land. I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor, but Mr. Green's enunciation that appointments must come from one organization in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office."

William Nuckels Doak was born in Wise county, Virginia, Dec. 1, 1882. His first union job was that of chairman of the Norfolk and Western union of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. In 1916 he became vice president of the brotherhood and came to Washington as legislative representative. He is editor of the Railway Trainmen's magazine.

CHOICE IS COMMENDED.

The appointment of William N. Doak "is fortunate for the entire United States, both capital and labor," according to Walter McMenimen, former deputy vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, member of the labor board under Harding and Coolidge, and an intimate friend of Doak.

"I have known Bill Doak," he said, "for fifteen years and believe that President Hoover could not have chosen a more honest and square dealing labor man from the American continent. He has fearless honesty."

Belasco Seems Better After a Restless Night

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—David Belasco, ill with pneumonia, is better today following a restless day yesterday. He passed the crisis of the attack a week ago. Thomas Cort, private secretary to the 77 year old theatrical producer, has been at his bedside for the last three days and nights.

MILDER TODAY IS PROMISE OF WEATHER MAN

But New Cold Wave Is on Way.

Football Weather

Here's the weather situation that football fans will encounter at the Army-Notre Dame game in Chicago today:

Temperature—25 to 30 degrees above zero.

Skies—Cloudy, with snow probable.

Wind—Southerly.

The football game starts at 1:30 p. m. A crowd of 120,000 is expected to attend.

Snow and at least temporary relief from the zero temperatures of the last two days was promised to Chicago for today in the weather forecast issued last night by J. R. Lloyd, government forecaster.

Fresh southerly winds today are expected to drive the mercury upward to a maximum of 25 to 30 degrees, which will seem balmy compared with the minimum of zero registered at 7:15 a. m. yesterday. However, a new cold wave now moving eastward over North Dakota and western Minnesota will send temperatures here downward again tomorrow.

November has been a month of extremes, with an excess of temperature up to last Tuesday of 260 degrees, a survey by the weather bureau revealed last night. This was cut down in four days nearly 100 degrees, leaving an excess for the month of 67 degrees. The year up to date is still 634 degrees warmer than normal.

Death Toll of Cold Wave.

The cold wave, in which most of the United States suffered along with Chicago, was held responsible for many deaths. New England reported eleven dead, Ohio seven, and New York and Maryland one each, with the remainder of the fatalities in the central states.

In Chicago one victim was Edward McGovern, 49 years old, who was found unconscious in the back yard of his home, 526 West 60th place, on Thursday when his four motherless children started to search for him. He died yesterday in the county hospital.

Attorney Otis H. Waldo Jr., 30 years old, died suddenly on a Cottage Grove street car at 42d street yesterday of heart attack believed to have been brought on by the cold. He had offices at 112 West Adams street and lived at 4437 Sidney avenue.

Woman Dies in Street Car.

A woman, who collapsed on a motor bus at Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road and died in St. Luke's hospital, was identified yesterday as Mrs. Lulu C. Parks, 1164 North Dearborn street. A hemorrhage brought on by the cold was the cause of her death

An unidentified man about 50 years old collapsed in the street at 1150 Roosevelt road late yesterday and was taken to the county hospital. George Wilson, 35 years old, 2248 Maypole avenue, was taken to the county hospital after he had been found in a coal yard, 336 North California avenue, where he is a night watchman. His feet were frozen.

Whole Country Affected.

Yesterday's record breaking cold wave drove temperatures below the freezing point throughout the country with the exception of the extreme west and some parts of the south. Below zero readings were reported in Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

Ottawa, Ill., reported an official thermometer reading of 6 degrees below zero, an all-time record for November. This was only 6 degrees above the reading in Duluth, Minn., which had the lowest official temperature reported in the United States.

New York state experienced a heavy snowfall and a temperature of 16 degrees, breaking all records for November 28 in the 59 year history of the weather bureau.

HUSBAND A GOOD PINCH HITTER BUT SHE BENCHES HIM

MISSING STEAMER WITH 22 IN CREW IS BELIEVED LOST

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Capt. T. E. Deegan, commander of the United States coast guard station here, said tonight that he believed the grain carrier Maple Bay of Montreal had sunk in Lake Superior.

Capt. Deegan said that the Maple Bay has been unreported since it left Bete Gris bay Tuesday and that it should have been located before tonight if it still remained afloat. The steamer was to have put in at Marquette to refuel before continuing its journey down the lakes.

The Maple Bay had a crew of 21 men and was commanded by Capt. Richard Graham.

Capt. T. E. Deegan Jr., commander of the station at Eagle Harbor, Keweenaw peninsula, was unsuccessful in attempts to locate the missing boat tonight.

Marquette coast guards will start out at 5 a. m. tomorrow, traveling toward Bete Gris bay along the course the Maple Bay should have taken to arrive at Marquette.

Capt. Deegan Sr. said he believed they might find the wreckage of the ship.

The Maple Bay, down bound from Fort William with a cargo of wheat, put into Bete Gris Sunday with engine trouble. Repairs were made there, but trouble developed again when she put out and she returned Monday. With further repairs made she set out for Marquette Tuesday to refuel, en route to her home port. A violent storm swept Lake Superior after the steamer resumed the trip.

The Maple Bay crew shipped from Sarnia, Ont. The ship is owned by the Maple Bay Steamship company, Toronto and Montreal. It is a twin screw steamer of 1,400 tons capacity.

S.M. Griswold, Bishop, Loses Life Battle

Bishop Sheldon Munson Griswold of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago died at 11 o'clock last night in the Evanston hospital. For seven weeks he had been suffering from a general breakdown and heart failure following two other periods of critical illness in the last three years.

With him when he died were his wife, Mrs. Kate Maxwell van der Bogart Griswold, who has been an invalid almost since the time of their marriage forty-five years ago, and Bishop George Craig Stewart, who automatically succeeded Bishop Griswold by virtue of his office as coadjutor bishop.

Becomes Missionary Bishop.

Bishop Griswold was 69 years old and for the past thirteen years the Chicago diocese has been his field of service after many years of missionary work which were culminated with his consecration as the first missionary bishop of the district of Salina, Kas. In 1916, Bishop Griswold was elected suffragan bishop of Chicago and was installed in office here on Jan. 8, 1917. On Feb. 5 of this year he was elected bishop of Chicago as the successor of Bishop Charles Palmerston Anderson, under whom he served as suffragan.

Bishop Stewart administered the last rites of the Episcopal church to the dying bishop, who had been unconscious for several days. Immediately after death ended the career of the distinguished churchman, Bishop Stewart issued a statement, as follows:

"Bishop Griswold was a bishop greatly beloved, a man of magnificent stature and of noble bearing. He combined a rare loftiness of character with the modesty and simplicity of a child. He was, above all else, a pastor pastorum, a genuine shepherd of his clergy; they respected him for his office, they admired him for his goodness, and they loved him for his kindness. He was unsparing of himself in devotion to their interests and every one of them feels now the loss of a great father in God.

Asks Chicago Burial.

"Bishop Griswold was also a very human man, a delightful companion with a smile of sunshine and eyes bright with the joy of living and he had a great gift for friendship. During his last days his mind dwelt continually upon his 'citizenship in heaven.'"

The last expressed wish of the dying bishop was that he be buried in Chicago rather than taken back to his old home in Delhi, N. Y., where he was born. He received his degree of bachelor of arts from Union college in 1882, a degree of master of arts in 1885, and he received his theological training at the General Theological seminary in New York, being graduated in 1885, following which he was ordained deacon and priest in the same year. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1900 and again this honor was conferred upon him in 1903.

FORBID SALVATION ARMY XMAS FUND PLANS IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—More than 2,000 Berlin families have been robbed of all hopes of Christmas cheer by a decree of the chief of police forbidding the Salvation Army to take up street collections for a Christmas fund.

In previous years at all important street corners in Berlin there have been big cooking pots suspended by tripods, labeled "Keep the Pot Boiling." The money was then given to Berlin's poor on Christmas day. The police chief today stated that the collections are a "public annoyance, and the special collections privilege of the Salvation Army has been repealed since the Army is now organized on a business basis."

While an ordinance was passed some months ago forbidding all street collections it was felt that an exception would be made in the case of the Salvation Army, and press comments indicate that there is regret that the Army's charities will have to cease. It has been suggested that the tripods be erected on private property frequented by the public such as the lobbies of picture houses and theaters.

JEW REFUSES GENTILE BLOOD TO SAVE HIS LIFE

LONDON, Nov. 28.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—The question of whether a Jew, on the point of death, should refuse any infusion of gentile blood if he knows that such an operation can save him, is arousing much discussion here. In the London hospitals lies a Jew, whose name the press does not mention, who refuses to allow steps be taken that may save his life.

A member of the London blood transfusion service was asked today to come to this hospital so that the transfusion might be made.

The patient, on learning that the donor was not a Jew, refused to submit to the transfusion, saying he would not allow gentile blood to flow in his veins.

Havana-Miami Woman Flyer Long Overdue

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Only the churning whitecaps of storm swept gulf waters tonight could tell the fate of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, daring young Australian flyer, who left here at 9:11 o'clock this morning for Miami and was due there about 11.

As the hours passed two airplanes went out from Havana to search the usual aerial course between the two cities, while six others from Florida did likewise.

Warned Not to Hop Off.

None found any trace of her, and aviation experts here believed she has been lost, for she took off this morning against bad weather conditions and against the advice of other flyers.

It was said Mrs. Keith-Miller had set her course without allowing for strong east winds which might have forced her far into the gulf.

There was one ray of hope. Mrs. Keith-Miller told a Cuban newspaper man that if weather conditions were bad she would not attempt to stop at Miami, but would continue northward in the United States as far as possible.

Had Fuel for Nine Hours.

Since she had fuel for nine hours and the trip from land to land in ordinary conditions should not take more than three hours, some believed it possible she might have reached the continent and landed in some little known place.

Mrs. Keith-Miller admitted she was worried when she left. Her small plane carried no radio, no bank dial and no instruments for blind flying. She had a collapsible rubber boat, but was doubtful of her ability to use it if it became necessary.

Search Lake Shore for Flyer.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(AP)—From Buffalo to Cleveland United States coast guards this afternoon walked the shore of Lake Erie searching for some clew of the whereabouts of William S. Griffin, Cleveland airplane pilot, reported missing today. Griffin flew here from Hamilton, Ont., on Monday, refueled, and left for Cleveland at 2:30 p. m., flying alone in a small cabin monoplane. A radio message from Cleveland said he had not arrived there.

TOO MANY FREE MEALS; WASTE FOOD IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—This city awoke tonight to the fact it had so many bread lines and free meal establishments that a waste of hundreds of thousands of dollars weekly was resulting because of duplication.

In an effort to stem this waste Mayor Walker's committee on unemployment relief called for conferences with individuals and institutions maintaining more than fifty eating places feeding the city's thousands of jobless.

A survey today revealed the city itself was supplying 40,000 free meals a day and private philanthropy was opening new bread lines every day, diverting funds which, the mayor said, ought to go into concerted resources to stamp out want.

5 Stickup Men Sentenced to Whippings and Prison

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Whippings and prison terms were prescribed today for five men convicted of holding up banks and stores. They were sentenced to terms ranging from three to fifteen years and to ten lashes each.

Robinson Crusoe's Island Now Has 298 Inhabitants

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Juan Fernandez island, where the mythical Robinson Crusoe and his man Friday were supposed to have been stranded, now has 298 inhabitants, according to the recent national census.

One More Month of 1930—Then 1931 and Revival

This is the last business day in November. One more full month to go and the year 1930 will pass into history.

This should be the cause of no little rejoicing. On the scale that we have been accustomed to business in recent years, 1930 has been ill-starred. A year ago at this time, business had a bad spell before it, even if nobody wanted to think so. But now we have experienced the worst of it, according to the most competent observers. We are now looking forward to a year of business revival.

This fact in itself should prove a stimulus for business. Better business will mean less unemployment. Decreasing unemployment will restore full confidence to those who were afraid of losing their jobs, but didn't. Restored confidence will loosen the purse strings and buying for normal needs will become a reality.

It would be a good thing for people who are now able to buy to anticipate some of their needs now. Prices in some lines haven't been as low in years. When the buying movement gets under way, prices have a tendency to rise. Normal buying resumed now can be made profitable as well as patriotic.

SPECIAL QUIZ TO COVER CITY, COUNTY FORCES

Swanson, McGoorty Back Inquiry.

Plans to broaden the police inquiry to cover every police department in Cook county were announced yesterday by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court and State's Attorney Swanson as a call was issued for a special grand jury in January to investigate police matters.

Coincident with this announcement came one from the officials announcing a special meeting, Dec. 4, in the chambers of Judge McGoorty to work out plans for a possible metropolitan force for Chicagoland. Invitations to this meeting were sent to twelve of the prominent officials and civic leaders in the county. The meeting will not only deal with the police question, but will also be for the purpose of bringing about harmony among all agencies engaged in the battle against the gangster and hoodlum element.

Mueller to Be in Charge.

State's Attorney Swanson said that he would leave the police inquiry in charge of Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, who conducted the preliminary investigation before the November grand jury.

The prosecutor said that his assistant will be given all the help necessary to get the evidence against any corrupt policeman or police official. He asked that any citizen who has knowledge of corruptness on the part of any member of the department communicate with his office.

"The investigation will cover not only the Chicago police department, but all police departments within the county," said Prosecutor Swanson in announcing the fact that a special jury had been decided on. "We will take in the county highway police department and the departments of the park systems as well as of the many suburban towns and cities within the county.

First Factor in Crime Fight.

"The police force is the first factor in law enforcement. We must clean up the police departments and keep them clean if we expect to get an efficient enforcement of law in this county. We shall endeavor to do that with the special jury."

Judge McGoorty said that he will charge the December grand jury to take care of any emergency matters which might come up in the police investigation, but that he will leave it to the special jury to carry on the main inquiry.

The November grand jury, which ended its service Wednesday, recommended the calling of the special jury in a report which charged corruptness in the department and an alliance with corrupt politicians and gangsters.

Call Meeting of Officials.

The call for the general meeting in Judge McGoorty's chambers was contained in the following letter:

"Your presence is urgently desired at a conference to be held in my chambers on Thursday, Dec. 4, at 11 a. m., for the purpose of coördinating and mobilizing, so far as practicable, the law enforcing agencies and civic bodies of Cook county, to render more effective the suppression of crime in this community."

The invitation was sent to Sheriff Elect William D. Myering, Chief Justice Elect John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court, Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, Acting Police Commissioner John H. Alcock, Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce; Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission; Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Plan Another Meeting Later.

County Clerk Sweitzer will be asked to send out an invitation to every constable and justice of the peace of the country town districts to attend a later meeting. The first meeting will be to map plans for possible legislative action on the creation of a metropolitan district police.

"Every law enforcing agency needs the assistance of the other agencies," said Commissioner Alcock.

FAIL TO CENSURE LYLE

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle yesterday ignored a subpœna calling on him to appear before a court of inquiry composed of three Criminal court judges hearing charges that records of Lyle's Felony court were falsified to send an alleged hoodlum to jail for vagrancy, and that the judge had refused to enable another defendant to take an appeal. In the absence of Judge Lyle the court of inquiry denied petitions for writs of habeas corpus in behalf of the two defendants and pointed to the Supreme court as an avenue of relief.

For Supreme Court Action.

Chief Justice John P. McGoorty and Judges Harry Fisher and Philip Finnegan, sitting en banc, held that it was doubtful whether they had jurisdiction in the matter. Because of the gravity of the charges, the three judges agreed, the proper legal path should be by mandamus proceedings in the Supreme court to afford "the person charged with falsifying the records" an opportunity to defend himself.

The failure to censure Judge Lyle, and his partial vindication, came as a surprise, as several of the Criminal court judges have openly expressed themselves as opposed to his method of dealing with gangsters. Judge Lyle retorted, charging that two of the Criminal court judges turned "mad dogs" [gangsters] back to the streets without sufficient bond.

Basis of Judge's Inquiry.

The inquiry into the alleged falsification of Judge Lyle's Felony court records was prompted by an action for a writ of habeas corpus brought before Judge Fisher in behalf of Dominick Brancato, alleged Capone gangster, sentenced by Judge Lyle to serve six months for vagrancy. At the first hearing Judge Fisher continued the case. Meanwhile a second writ was sought before Judge Finnegan for George McGinnis, sentenced on Nov. 8 by Judge Lyle to one year in the House of Correction and fined $300 for carrying a gun.

Both petitioners said they had been deprived of their constitutional rights. Judge Fisher suggested an en banc hearing with Judge Finnegan on the two cases and both invited Chief Justice McGoorty to be present because a judge was involved.

Attorney Attacks Record.

Attorney John R. McCabe, representing Brancato, charged that his client was denied a jury trial, a change of venue, and the right to be represented by counsel. He declared that, contrary to fact, the court record shows that his client waived a jury trial.

"The record is absurd," McCabe said. "Think of a man indicating that he did not want to be tried by a particular judge by demanding a change of venue and then waiving a jury before that judge. Law cannot be enforced by lawlessness. We have no recourse to the Appellate court because it cannot go behind the record. We are prepared to produce witnesses to support our statements."

Attorney John B. Fruchtl, representing McGinnis, said that Judge Lyle had refused bail to McGinnis pending his appeal from the sentence and also had refused to sign a bill of exceptions so that an appeal could be taken in the Appellate court.

Explains Judges' Stand.

"The three judges have studied the law in the case," Judge Fisher said after the inquiry yesterday. "From our study we have come to the conclusion that the question pending is the falsity of the records. Even if there was a doubt as to whether there was a basis for a full hearing under habeas corpus proceedings, we would resolve that doubt so that the person charged with falsifying the records might have opportunity to defend himself, which he cannot do under this action.

"The Supreme court convenes on Tuesday. Justice would be better served by bringing mandamus proceedings before that body. We, therefore, dismiss the petitions."

Judge Finnegan released McGinnis on bonds of $5,000 and gave him until Dec. 12 to obtain relief by a mandamus action. Brancato was returned to the Bridewell.

Continue Vagrancy Cases.

Before Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the South State street court yesterday the vagrancy case of Public Enemy Frank Nitti, Capone lieutenant, was continued until Jan. 15 and that of Public Enemy James Belcastro, known as the king of bombers, until Dec. 15, over strenuous objections of his attorney, Roland Libonati. Cases against Ralph Pierce and Murray Humphries, members of Capone's circus gang, were continued until Dec. 3.

A special meeting of the Newspaper Delivery Drivers, Chauffeurs, and Coal Handlers' union was called for tomorrow by Michael Tobin, international president, to determine whether John (West Side) Barry is to continue as secretary-treasurer of the local union. Barry was indicted with James (Fur) Sammons for his part in the robbery of government liquor from the Morand Brothers warehouse four years ago.

Saltis at Son's Bedside.

Joe Saltis, public enemy once tried for the murder of a rival beer runner, John ("Mitters") Foley, watched at the bedside of his son, Emil, 14 years old, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident Wednesday night. The boy is in Holy Cross hospital. Saltis surrendered on Thanksgiving day on a vagrancy warrant in order that he might visit his son.

A writ of prohibition against Judge Lyle was withdrawn by Miss Johanna Eisenman, 2918 Sheffield avenue, before Superior Judge Walter P. Steffen. The petition charged that Judge Lyle exceeded his authority in ordering her to return money after discharging her on a confidence game charge.

POLICE SERGEANT FINED $2,500 AND ORDERED OUSTED

Sergt. William Begley, 49 years old, a veteran of 24 years on the police department, was found guilty yesterday of malfeasance by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court. He was fined $2,500 and ordered removed from his position in the police department.

Begley, it was charged, conspired with several other men to blackmail Gene Hassawer, 5642 Lake Park avenue, a cabinet maker, after they had persuaded him to enter into a deal to finance a fake money making machine. Hassawer was murdered under mysterious circumstances soon after he had exposed the plot.

Begley was tried once for conspiracy, which carries a jail sentence, but the jury in Judge Philip Finnegan's Criminal court disagreed.

LET 'EXILES' HUNT FOR AL CAPONE, McGOORTY PLEA

Suggests Work for Six Police Captains.

According to Chief Justice McGoorty, six police captains, composing the so-called Siberian detail of the department, could be of more service to the community out hunting for Al Capone, leading public enemy and gangster, than they are sitting in the abandoned North Halsted street police station with nothing more to do than play pinochle for 8½ hours each day.

Chief Justice McGoorty made this suggestion yesterday in a letter sent to Acting Commissioner Alcock. The chief justice refused to make public the letter. He said Commissioner Alcock might make public the letter if he desired.

Aimed at Stege Inactivity.

The plea of Judge McGoorty was specifically directed, it was reported, at the enforced inactivity of Capt. John Stege, who was chief of detectives until the acting commissioner sent him to the Siberia of the department. Stege was the first of the captains exiled.

The other captains sent to exile by the acting commissioner are William Kennedy, Charles Larkin, Albert Christensen, John Ryan, until recently deputy chief of detectives, and Richard Gill, who has been temporarily allowed to come out of exile to command the Chicago avenue district.

The captains told the November grand jury, which investigated police department conditions and found them "alarming and distressing," that they spend most of their time playing pinochle because they have nothing else to do.

No Place to Use Them.

Acting Commissioner Alcock explained to the jurors that he sent the captains to exile because he has too many captains. He said he had no place to put the captains until some other captains die, retire, or are dismissed from the department.

Judge McGoorty, it is said, points out that even though there are not enough commands to put the captains to work at stations there is nothing in the police department regulations from preventing the commissioner from forming them into a squad and sending them out for the public enemies who are dodging service on the vagrancy warrants issued by Judge John H. Lyle.

The capture of Capone—even if it be by the captains now in exile—would be considered by the public and all law enforcing agencies as a great achievement of the police department, the judge said.

Status of Public Enemies.

The Chicago Crime commission yesterday issued a bulletin showing the status of the cases of the twenty-six men on the original public enemy list. The list shows that exactly half of the men named in the vagrancy warrants are fugitives and could be subject to a search by a squad of the exiled captains. The fugitives, besides Capone, are:

Tony (Mops) Volpe, Jack (Machine Gun) Magurn, Rocco Fanelli, Frank Diamond, Frank McErlane, Vincent McErlane, Myles O'Donnell, Terry Druggan, Frank Lake, William (Klondike) O'Donnell, Joseph (Pep) Genero, and Leo Mongoven.

Druggan once gave bond on the vagrancy warrant, but later forfeited that bail when he failed to appear in court. This makes him a fugitive, the same as the other enemies who have never been arrested.

Bar Assn. Head Tells How Vigilantes End Crime Wave

How other crime waves in history where abated by vigilantes and the citizenry was related to the Illinois State Bar association last night by Charles A. Boston of New York, president of the American Bar association. Mr. Boston spoke at the Stevens hotel banquet, closing the mid-year meeting of the association.

"I am not advocating anything or agitating anything," Mr. Boston said in prefacing his remarks, "but I do wish to tell you how other crime waves in history have been dealt with.

Recalls Barbary Pirates.

"The Barbary pirates were stopped from their raids upon American ships by a United States naval officer and an armed ship; the San Francisco crime wave was stopped by a vigilance committee and in New Orleans the citizens had to resort to the same methods in dealing with their crime. As I say, I am not advocating anything, but some one ought to think about it."

In other portions of his address, Mr. Boston traced the history of legal ethics and urged the need of legal education as a fundamental study.

Chief Justice Frank K. Dunn of the Illinois Supreme court was the other speaker at the banquet, devoting himself to an exposition of the integrity and honor of the courts. Justice is assured all without regard to power or popularity or station in life, he said.

Four Justices Present.

Four other justices of the Supreme court were at the speakers' table—Justices Warren H. Orr, Oscar E. Heard, Clyde E. Stone, and Frederic R. De Young. The president of the association, Clarence W. Heyl of Peoria, was toastmaster.

The banquet closed a day of discussion at the Chicago Bar association, the attorneys hearing committee reports and listening to suggestions for handling their activities. At the close of the meeting, late in the afternoon, Earl B. Dickerson, a Negro, made a plea in behalf of the Negro attorneys who belong to the Cook County Bar association, asking that they be admitted to membership in the state body under the same technical rules of eligibility that govern the white members. President Heyl referred the request to the association's board of governors.

SUSPEND POLICE IN MELROSE PARK DURING INQUIRY

Lieut. Rocco Passarella of the Melrose Park police department, Sergt. Louis Boni, and Policeman James Bronge were ordered suspended yesterday pending an investigation being made by Assistant State's Attorney Edward D. Markham into charges that they allowed three men to be liberated after they had been charged with attacking two women.

Edward Brust, president of the village board, and Chief Arthur Lesseberg ordered the suspensions as soon as Prosecutor Markham placed before them the camplaint. According to the prosecutor, the three policemen were attracted by the screams of the women as they rode in an automobile with the three men. The men were released by the policemen after the latter had taken the license number of the car.

Lieut. Passarella said that the women failed to make a complaint against the men. The prosecutor said that Passarella said that he lost the paper on which he had written the license number. One of the men involved is said to be an Italian resident of the suburb.

CONTINUE TRIAL OF FOSTER, ACCUSED IN KILLING OF LINGLE

The trial of Frank Foster, charged with being an accessory to the murder of Alfred Lingle, yesterday was delayed until today. Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court continued the case at the request of Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Rathbun, who announced that the state preferred to release Foster on bail, delaying the trial for sixty days or more, pending the completion of the investigation of the Lingle murder.

Defense Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmet Byrne indicated they would demand an immediate trial, and if Foster adheres to this advice the trial must proceed. Foster has made four successive demands for trial in four months, and under the law he is entitled to be tried now or be discharged.

Another lawyer of the defense, Everett Jennings, leaned toward acceptance of the offer of the state. What action is to be taken will be announced this morning before Judge Rush.

DENY CLEMENCY TO SLAYER OF THAD FANCHER

A petition for parole for John O'Reilly, who is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary at Michigan City for the murder of Thad Fancher, an attorney, in a road house near Valparaiso, in May, 1924, was denied yesterday by the Indiana state board of pardon and parole. The board also refused to hear a plea for commutation of the sentence to a fixed term.

O'Reilly has served six years in the penitentiary. Fancher was shot in a quarrel with a band of hoodlums headed by Frank McErlane, Chicago gangster. McErlane was tried on the same charge in 1927 but was acquitted.

OLSON, 34 YEARS IN PUBLIC LIFE, RETIRES TODAY

Chief Justice to Resume Practice of Law.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court will retire from office today after thirty-four years of public service. As one of his last official acts Judge Olson presided at the monthly meeting of Municipal judges yesterday in his chambers. John J. Sonsteby, elected chief justice, will announce the assignment of new judges today, all of whom will take up their duties after formal installations next Monday.

"My thirty-four years in public service have provided me with the most strenuous kind of work," Judge Olson said. "For the last twenty-four years I have been chief justice of the Municipal court. Prior to that I spent ten years in the state's attorney's office."

Will Practice Law.

Judge Olson said he intended to practice law. He will be honored along with other outgoing judges at a banquet Tuesday evening at the University club.

Over in the county building more than 200 persons gathered to witness the ceremony through which Judge Joseph Burke became a Circuit court judge. Sheriff John E. Traeger, County Recorder Clayton F. Smith, and others delivered speeches. Judge Burke will begin his duties in the Criminal court on Monday.

The five new Superior court judges will be installed this morning. They are Judges Rudolph Desort, Ross C. Hall, Walter T. Stanton, John Prystalski, and James J. Kelly.

During the day County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who was reëlected, administered the oath to seven other public officials. They were Municipal Judges Edgar A. Jonas and John J. Lupe and Probate Judge Henry Horner; Daniel Ryan, new county commissioner; George Seif, elected clerk of the Criminal court; William D. Meyering, elected sheriff; and Joseph B. McDonough, elected county treasurer.

Bond Raised to $150,000.

The Municipal judges at their meeting voted to raise the bond of the clerk of the court from $50,000 to $150,000. The increase was requested by Joseph L. Gill, the newly elected clerk, because of the large amounts of money which the office handles. Gill's bond was approved by the judges as was also that of A. J. Horan, the new bailiff.

The judges also discussed bail bonds and it was the opinion of a majority of them, Judge Olson said, that real estate bonds should be approved by the judges even though the property is mortgaged—providing, of course, that the value of the equity is adequate.

The state's attorney's office will be asked in the future to furnish information on the value of property scheduled for bonds, the judges decided. The bond bureau of the Municipal court only investigates the title to property scheduled on bonds.

Robbers Confess 29 Crimes in Five Neighboring Counties

Three young Cicero bandits who have confessed 29 crimes were held in $20,000 bonds in the Wheaton county jail last night as the gunmen responsible for a series of crimes in five neighboring counties since Oct. 3.

The prisoners are Tony Yuknis, 17 years old; Julius Malin, 18, and John Brannis, also 18, all of Cicero. According to officials of the St. Charles School for Boys, Yuknis and Malin are escaped inmates. Investigation is being made to determine if Brannis is a former inmate of Pontiac reformatory.

Du Page county authorities questioned the trio and obtained confessions of fifteen holdups and fourteen automobile thefts, and leads on more than 50 other robberies.

According to the confessions, Yuknis, Brannis and Malin operated in Du Page, Lake, De Kalb, Kane and McHenry counties. Police believe the trio responsible for a number of County robberies. For the most part the holdups netted only a few dollars.

However, the robberies were so frequent, and generally in spots just outside villages and towns, that county authorities maintained a constant search. One night the trio would confine their operations to Kane county, another night to Du Page, and so on. Descriptions of the thieves were inadequate, however, for the holdups were committed at night.

The first clew came Monday night when they held up Fred Jager of Elmhurst near his home and took $40. He managed to glimpse the first three numbers of the automobile license. The number, 309, was telephoned to the Chicago police radio station and broadcast. Tuesday night Deputy Sheriff Michael Kraus of Du Page county and Lieut. George Krumrow of Elmhurst noticed an automobile bearing a plate with the numbers at Roosevelt and York roads.

They chased the machine and its three occupants to Cicero, where, with the aid of Cicero police, they arrested them. The youths were taken to Elmhurst, identified by Jager, and held to the grand jury in bonds of $20,000 each by Magistrate W. J. Hilliard.

WORLD COURT BEFORE SENATE AT THIS SESSION

Hoover Asks Action; Hints Extra Call.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover today announced his intention to submit the revised world court protocol to the senate at the coming session.

If possible the President wishes it disposed of in the short session which ends on March 4, but if this is not possible it is understood that he is prepared to call the senate alone in special session immediately thereafter.

The President continues opposed to a special session of the entire congress for the consideration of general legislation.

"I am submitting the protocols of the world court to the senate at the forthcoming session," said President Hoover. "I, of course, have hoped that it would be dealt with at this time. It is for the leaders of the senate, however, to determine if it should be brought up in the press of other business during the short session. Certainly it should not be made an instrument of obstruction in attempting to force an extra session. Both its friends and foes should agree upon this."

Contradicts Pacifist Stand.

The President's announcement was in effect an answer to pacifist groups which have recently been bombarding him with petitions for early action. These groups protested against a delay until the regular session of the new congress next winter, which had been understood to be the President's plan, owing to legislative difficulties in the coming short session.

Word that the President had yielded to the demands of the court advocates brought varying expressions of opinion from senators.

William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the foreign relations committee, who led opposition to the world court in 1926, said that he would obtain action by his committee without delay. Senator Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.], the ranking minority member of the committee, who led the pro-court battle for former President Coolidge and is expected to figure in support of President Hoover, expressed disappointment that the question should come up at the coming short session, preferring to have it go over for a year.

Varying Opinions Shown.

Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], another committee member, favored prompt action and said he saw no reason why it could not be disposed of in the short session. Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], also of the committee and a friend of the administration, said he doubted if action could be obtained at this session and that its consideration would add confusion to a situation already chaotic.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], a minority member of the committee and a supporter of the court, said it ought to be acted upon in the short session if possible without interfering with urgent business before congress.

Two administration aids—Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader, and Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.]—will be found among forces with Senator Borah in opposition to the revived protocol.

Forecast Long Fight, Victory.

The impression prevails that after a debate of several weeks the world court forces will obtain the necessary two-thirds vote. The original world court resolution for American participation in the affairs of the court was approved on Jan. 27, 1926, by a vote of 76 to 17. While 30 of the 76 are no longer in the senate, it is regarded as doubtful if 33 votes necessary to prevent ratification can be rounded up.

There is understood to be but little difference between the lineup in the present senate and in the new senate on the world court issue, although the newly elected senators include a few additional opponents.

To be submitted to the senate is the so-called "Root formula," which was worked out by Elihu Root after other countries had refused to accept the fifth reservation adopted by the senate in 1926. This fifth reservation declared that the court shall not "without the consent of the United States entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

The Root formula states that "there shall be attributed to an objection of the United States the same force and effect as attaches to a vote against asking for the opinion given by a member of the league of nations in the council or in the assembly."

CITY EMPLOYES ARE ASSURED OF PAY TO JAN. 3

City employés were assured that they will be paid regularly up to Jan. 3, 1931, when County Treasury Hardy notified City Controller Schmidt yesterday that within a day or two he will make the final remittance to the city from the 1928 tax collections. The amount will be approximately $3,000,000 and it will be added to the corporate fund cash balance for use in paying salaries.

Controller Schmidt also announced that he will demand that the Illinois Bell Telephone company pay to the city more than $3,000,000 for compensation for use of the streets. The company has made no payments to the city since the expiration of its old franchise in February, 1929, at which time it notified the city that no payments would be made until the company had a new franchise. This money also can be used for salaries if it is received.

Mayor Thompson was reported yesterday as having ordered Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, to withhold permits from the telephone company for street openings until the money is paid. Officials in charge of issuing the permits said yesterday that they had not received any instructions from Wolfe.

BATHING SCENE, "LOVE COTTAGE" IN GRADY PLEAS

Attorneys Make Final Divorce Arguments.

Attorneys for Thomas J. and Mrs. Eileen Grady gave their arguments yesterday in the Grady versus Grady divorce trial before Judge Marcus Kavanagh, who said he would give his decision next Tuesday.

Attorney Edwin Hamilton, representing Grady, who accuses his wife of adultery, reviewed the testimony gathered by Grady and a fellow amateur sleuth, Bernard Shanley, and the raid made by them and four other men on a Bluff lake cottage July 31. "The shame of the guilt shall seek them out," quoted the lawyer in ringing tones.

Attacks the Husband.

Attorney John E. Crahen, representing Mrs. Grady, said that "the little woman had proved her innocence." Moreover, he said, if Grady actually was as he had characterized himself on the witness stand, "a man of fighting blood," he would not have spent hours on two night previous to July 31 in watching his wife and another man in the Bluff lake cottage, as he said he did. He would have torn his rival to shreds, and rightly so, he declared.

"Look at the smile on his face as I say these words," he said, pointing to Grady, who was smiling.

Counters with Testimony.

Attorney Hamilton in his argument contended, on the other hand, that Robert J. Robinson, with whom Mrs. Grady was in the cottage when her husband raided it, did not have the attitude of the guiltless when he asked Grady, "How can I get out of this?" as Robinson had testified.

"Why," asked Mr. Hamilton, "were these people exchanging love notes and boxes of candy if their conduct was irreproachable?"

He also alluded to the Highland Park bathing party, which has had a large place in the divorce evidence. Grady and Shanley, wearing false whiskers, testified they watched Robinson, Mrs. Grady, and another woman companion emerge from the water. They saw Robinson dry Mrs. Grady's back with a towel in the car, after which they saw her dry his, they testified.

Attorney Crahen charged that all of Grady's testimony concerning the bathing party and certain other events, including the action of the couple observed through the cottage window, failed to ring true.

DIES IN HIS HOTEL ROOM.

J. Olson, 75 years old, died yesterday, supposedly of heart disease, in his room at the Holland hotel 1526 East 53d street.

WEATHER PERMITS OPENING OF MORE PONDS FOR SKATING

The cold of the last few days has resulted in an unusually early opening of the skating season. Following the inauguration of a large rink at the Midway, on the south side, numerous other ponds, flooded under park supervision, are announced as ready for skaters. Among these are ponds in Hardin square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue; Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard; Palmer park, 113th street and South Park avenue, and Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue.

Ponds scheduled for opening tonight are in Mark White square, 28th and Halsted streets, and Armour square, 33d street and Shields avenue. Thirteen other small parks on the south side will also be frozen over by tomorrow night, George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, said yesterday. No lagoons in the large parks are to be opened until there is at least six inches of clear ice, park superintendents announced yesterday.

FENCE BLOCK OF CITY DOCK FOR THOMPSON YACHT

A barricade consisting of a seven foot wire fence has been erected along the lower level of Wacker drive between Clark and Dearborn streets inclosing a strip of city dock space. Inside the barricade is the yacht Doris, which Mayor Thompson bought recently and which he has moored in the river for the winter.

The fence stands approximately three feet from the water's edge and, although the Doris does not occupy the entire block, the fence extends the whole distance between the two streets. A wooden bumper rail placed between the fence and the lower drive protects the fence from damage by motorists who park their cars along the wharf. City officials deny city labor was used in erecting the fence.

The yacht is being inclosed with sheets of pressed wood to protect it from the ravages of winter weather. According to Robert Lyman, one of Thompson's secretaries, Thompson may use it as an office in which to spend part of his time.

ITALY EXILES 2 FOR OFFENSES TO FASCIST PARTY

Victims Are Ex-Mayor and Ex-Minister.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 28.—Exile to a penal colony for five years was the punishment handed out by the Fascist régime today to Prof. Ernesto Belloni, former deputy and governor of Milan, and Bertolo Belotti, former minister of finance during the short-liven Francesco Nitti cabinet of 1921-'22. The two men were rounded up with twenty other alleged conspirators a few weeks ago.

Prof. Belloni was the Fascist bigwig whom Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the party, accused of misappropriation of funds and graft in connection with a $30,000,000 municipal loan from an American banking concern. Farinacci accused Belloni of "violating the code of honor of a high Fascist official."

Premier Mussolini himself warned Sig. Farinacci, but he went ahead and finally forced Sig. Belloni to resign and bring a libel suit. Belloni lost his suit and was found guilty of all the charges against him, despite his attempt to lay the terms of the American loan to Count Volpi, then foreign minister. Count Volpi denied the imputation.

Belotti's mistake was to set down his opinion of the government's financial policy in a letter addressed to his former chief, Nitti, which was intercepted. In the letter the former minister is said to have bitterly denounced Il Duce.

Cooks Coffee to Break Chill; Is Killed by Gas

A cup of coffee to counteract the cold of his little barber shop indirectly cost the life yesterday of Louis Cranuer, 55 years old. He was found dead in a gas filled room in the rear of his shop at 645 West 16th street. Boiling coffee overflowing from a coffee pot had extinguished the gas flame of a small range.

Wife of Oil Magnate Shoots Herself to Death

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Police reported Mrs. Lottie Bennett, 47, wife of C. C. Bennett, retired president of the American Royalty Oil company of Tulsa, Okla., shot and killed herself today. Bennett said his wife had been suffering from a nervous breakdown.

KEGEL PUTS BAN ON JETS WHICH SQUIRT VERTICAL

Wants Drinkers to Catch Water in Midair.

Health Commissioner Kegel and his sanitary engineers yesterday viewed with alarm the drinking fountain in which the water rises vertically to the thirsty. They have found that a fountain whose water is thrown out at an angle from the faucet is more sanitary than the straight up kind.

The drinker at a vertical jet can touch the rim with his lips, leaving germs which endanger the next drinker, according to Joel I. Connolly, chief of the sanitary engineering bureau. With the new angle jet, he said, a protuberance is placed just above the faucet, forcing the drinker to catch the water in mid flight.

Throw Out Old Jets.

Regulations have been promulgated in the health department demanding that the vertical fountains be scrapped and the angle jets installed. Notices are being sent to factories, schools and public and office buildings to throw out the disapproved type of fountain.

These notices, according to Mr. Connolly, make no demand that the property owners put in new equipment, but merely tell them to discard the old fountains. Thus the owner is left with the option of having no fountains or of installing an angle jet. But if advice is wanted the health department will supply it.

Samples on Hand.

"We have some samples of the new fountains in the department," said one of the health department employés to one seeking information about the requested change. "Come over and look at what we have before you do anything about replacing your old ones."

To set a good example, Dr. Kegel ordered the new type installed in the city hall fountains. Because of the lack of funds, however, only one angle jet was installed, on the seventh floor, and some one stole that one.

RESCUES SISTERS FROM FLAMES IN EVANSTON HOME

Two sisters, who lived in a thirty year old frame building at 1110 Maple avenue, Evanston, were saved from probable death by a passerby last night when fire destroyed their home with all its contents.

Albert Dotzauer, 816 Main street, Evanston, an employé of the Public Service company, was passing when he saw fire in the basement. He rushed in and carried out Miss Mary Elizabeth Dugdale, an invalid, and then returned and assisted her sister, Miss Julia Dugdale, who became blinded by the smoke, to escape.

By the time firemen arrived the flames had eaten their way to the second floor, and only the outer walls were left standing. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

A third sister, Miss Theresa Dugdale, was at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Dugdale, 67 years old, 528 Greenwood boulevard, where earlier in the day flames were started by a defective flue, causing her hurried removal to another part of the house and resulting in damages estimated at $500.

FALL OFF BUILDING FATAL.

Otto W. Johnson, 41 years old, 1123 Lombard avenue, Oak Park, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries suffered Nov. 13 when he fell from the roof of a building at 147 Le Moyne parkway, Oak Park, while making repairs.

SELL TREASURES OF MANSION THAT KINKY HAIR BUILT

Whites Buy Relics of 'Negro Hetty Green.'

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Nearly a thousand residents of Westchester county excitedly competed in spirited bidding this afternoon to possess some souvenir of the mansion built on the fringe of Irvington-on-Hudson from the millions that a remarkable Negro woman made out of a preparation to take the kink out of black people's hair.

Many of those whose homes are near "Villa Lawaro," Mme. Sarah J. Walker's $250,000 house, deeply resented the intrusion of the Queen of Dark Harlem into exclusive Irvington.

But they were on hand today, lashed by a furious frenzy to buy something the woman owned—some bit of statuary or ivory, some piece of tapestry, or oriental rug, or, perhaps, a set of gorgeously bound but obviously unread classics.

Crowd the Auctioneer.

It was a strange and arresting sight to follow Auctioneer Benjamin S. Wise through Mme. Walker's rococo mansion and see the mob of buyers thronging at his heels, elbowing each other, to bid extravagant prices for the treasures. The receipts of the sale, which is to last two or three days, are expected to approximate $250,000.

Dipping into the gorgeous disorder of costly oil paintings, gilded chairs, lamps of Chinese jade, and whatnot, the auctioneer was able today to make only a dent in the collection.

Apparently Mme. Walker bought about all the sets there were, including Balzac, Rabelais, and Rousseau. Alongside the Bible are the memoirs of Casanova, while the Decameron, Heptameron, and Rabelais are in the same shelf with Plato and Marcus Aurelius. Scarcely any of the hundreds of expensively bound books show a sign of having been read.

Started as Washwoman.

Sarah J. Walker—or "S. J. Walker," as she liked best to be known—she had a masculine mind for business—was the Hetty Green of the Negro race. Early in her career she was a washwoman in St. Louis, making $1.25 a week, but she had ambition and brains. She went to Indianapolis and started a small shop, in which she made hair tonic for her people. She always said that the formula came to her in a dream.

The word got around, especially in the south, that it would take the kinks out of kinky hair. Her hair restorer began to sell fabulously. Within a few years she was rich. When she died thirteen years ago it was believed that her estate was worth $2,000,000 or more.

She kept her business headquarters in Indianapolis, but she came to New York many years ago to make her home in Harlem. In 1915 Mme. Walker built Villa Lewaro at a cost of $250,000 and spent $350,000 furnishing and decorating the place.

UPHOLDS ORDER TO JACK KEARNS TO PAY ALIMONY

Jack Kearns, sports promoter and former manager of Jack Dempsey, lost another round yesterday in his legal battle with his estranged wife, Mrs. Legana Angel Kearns. Circuit Judge Kerner upheld an order by which Kearns must pay temporary alimony of $500 a month and solicitor's fees of $1,000. The order was entered on Sept. 12. Kearns appealed Judge Kerner's decision and filed an appeal bond of $5,000.

The promoter is suing to annul his marriage to his wife, a former vaudeville actress, on the ground that they were never legally married. He charges he was compelled to sign a separation agreement in 1924 to pay her $500 a month. Mrs. Kearns, through Attorney Cornelius Harrington, has filed a cross bill for separate maintenance, alleging cruelty. She says they were legally married in 1921 at Atlantic City.

THIS CASE SHOWS PROSPERITY ROLE OF GOOD FELLOWS

Five Children in Family Need Your Help.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

To the Unknown Goodfellow!

There is a home out on the northwest side of Chicago where they are already building a monument in their hearts to him, for this investigator for the Goodfellow Fund promised them yesterday that some one would come to their help soon, perhaps today.

The windows are stained with the marks of baby hands and faces, pressed there all Thanksgiving day and waiting for the neighborly basket which never came. That was an oversight somewhere. You did not know about them. They are hungry and cold and they will be fed and warmed. That is as sure as the sunlight.

Illustrates Trade Circle.

This is not a home in the slums and not a home that ever asked for charity before. There are many, many such this year and our whole social scheme is at the test. It is all a circle and comes back to us.

Two or three factories in the neighborhood shut down or laid off men because the sales were not good. One result was that the street car company took off several cars on that run. This threw the motormen and conductors out of work. The man of this family was one of these motormen. He had a little money saved, but it was soon gone. He has not been able to pay his bills, and the grocer, doctor, clothing merchant, and landlord have suffered and they have had less money to spend. So the social body is, after all, one.

Now we will visit this particular family, that of Robert Smith [correct name and address furnished on application to the Good Fellow office or the Salvation Army].

Five Children in Want.

It is in a street of neat brick flat buildings, for the Smiths have had aspirations and wanted their children to live in a clean neighborhood. There are five of them, three girls and two boys, running in age from 9 down to 3. They were all looking out of the windows upon a cold world. They wore cotton dresses and have no overcoats or good shoes to brave the winter streets. The three eldest have had to stay away from school because of this.

With all his troubles, the head of the household is a cheerful looking man. He holds no grudge against the world and is not looking forward to any new scheme of government that would solve his problems for him.

"I am sorry now I did not go to school longer," he said. "I was born in Wisconsin and had two years in high school and seven months in business college and then quit. I came to Chicago ten years ago and worked eight years for the American Express company as a freight router. I made $155 a month there and then went over to the Chicago Surface Lines as a motorman where I made $150 a month.

Baby Suffers Injury.

"I was an extra man and when they began to drop off cars I got less and less work. It came down to $24 a week and then on Sept. 25 I was laid off.

"I was in debt and was in the hands of the loan sharks. My father had died two years ago and that cost me $500 for the funeral. Then one day I was cleaning in the kitchen with lye and left a pail where the baby fell in. That has cost me $1,000 and the baby needs another operation.

"I had to pay the nurse $50 a week for ten weeks. We had bought a washing machine and furniture on the instalment plan and now most of that is gone. They garnished my wages and I told them to take it away.

"Finally it came to a day when we had little to eat in the house. I went to the Central Charities, because I had to go somewhere. I hated to go but it was necessary for the children. They never came around to see me. I went to the Salvation Army and a woman there has been helping us out. She sent in this stove and has been sending a little food every week.

Neighbor Helps When She Can.

"Last Tuesday she sent in a box with potatoes, ham, cabbage and bread, but that is getting low. There is a neighbor across the street that buys one of the children a pair of shoes when she has any extra money. That is all the help we have had, and the rent is overdue. I don't want to be turned out on the street with these children."

Mr. Smith has kept track of the unemployment situation through the newspapers and registered for relief and work when the governor's commission set the day. He asked for immediate relief, but said he never heard from any one. He has no trade, but is ready to do any kind of work. The budget for this family would run about $150 a month. It would be handled through the experienced workers of the social service agencies, whose effort is always toward rehabilitation of a family as well as finding out the pressing needs.

Little Smiths Watching for You.

The Good Fellow fund is now caring for 257 families that would not otherwise have been helped. The social service agencies have more calls for help than they can answer, and as the immediate relief is supplied and the families moved to the Good Fellow budget, just that much more money and service is released to meet new appeals.

And now, Mr. Unknown Good Fellow, if You would care to follow your check today and go out with a social worker to visit this family, or any size family that you can adopt for the winter, the visit can be arranged and you will be as welcome as Santa Claus. The five little Smiths will be watching for you.

BANK PLEDGES AT $100,000 IN FUND CAMPAIGN

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the $5,000,000 relief drive fostered by Gov. Emmerson's relief commission, announced late yesterday the receipt of a $100,000 subscription from banks and their employés. The money was raised on the "day-a-month" gift plan favored by the commission and E. N. Baty of the bank division said that the $275,000 quota assigned the division is "within reach."

The commission also received substantial support to its plan of asking all those who listen to radio accounts of the Army-Notre Dame football game at Soldiers' field today to send one dollar contributions. About 300 one dollar bills and checks reached headquarters, together with one check for $100. The largest individual check for the day was one for $2,500 from the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. The fund has now reached about $1,000,000.

The Chicago Surface lines has been able to maintain its full personnel by voluntary reductions in working time, the lines announced yesterday. The train force of 12,500 men has been working less than six days each week and providing work for the extras.

Pennsylvania railroad employés in Chicago have subscribed $5,703 to the United Charities funds, the amount being double the quota set for the road.

ITALIAN JOBLESS STORM AND SEIZE LOAD OF BREAD

TURIN, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports that the Fiat automobile factories were to be closed for a fortnight were believed responsible for a series of demonstrations by unemployed which have taken place here in the last few days. A few demonstrators were arrested.

The mayor refused to receive a delegation of the workers. The crowd about the city hall sighted a municipal bread wagon.

"Give us bread," they shouted at the driver, "we don't want to hurt you."

They stormed the wagon, unloaded its cargo, and distributed many loaves among the marchers before police interfered.

HAT STORE KEEPER ROBBED.

Carl Harlow, manager of a Sarnoff-Irving hat store at 11122 South Michigan avenue, was held up and forced to open the safe yesterday by a bandit who escaped with $186.

PROVIDE A JOB AS A CHRISTMAS GIFT, SALLY ASKS

More Work Being Created, She Reports.

With Christmas less than four weeks away and not much holiday cheer in prospect for thousands of jobless people in Chicago, Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE yesterday issued an appeal to Chicagoans to create all the jobs possible.

"Many a family will think it is the best Christmas present imaginable to have a job before Christmas," said Sally. "Having enough to buy food and shelter will mean more to them than a truck load of presents and Yuletide knickknacks. Even a few days' work will be welcomed by a man or woman who hasn't had work for months."

Yesterday saw a marked improvement in the number of jobs created by THE TRIBUNE readers. After being received the offers were turned over by Sally to the Illinois Free Employment Service, 115 North Dearborn street. The jobs were quickly absorbed, as there were thousands waiting for work.

Store Offers Job for Boy.

"A northwest side department store found a job in the toy department for a young boy, knowing they'd need more help for the Christmas rush," said Sally. "Mr. A. in Rush street put in a call for two young men to give his office a good cleaning.

"A good place for an elderly couple was found when the S. I. S. company telephoned for a watchman. They will give him rent, heat, and light free and $25 a week. This is a permanent job."

Among some of the "created" work was a moving job made by Mr. S. on the south side. Mr. E. on Exchange avenue said he would pay a man 50 cents an hour to put up storm windows, and Mrs. R. on Prospect avenue found some plumbing to be done. Mr. C. M. on Milwaukee avenue wants some stenographic work done during the next three weeks. This will furnish a pre-Christmas job for some man or woman.

Other Work Is Provided.

A motor sales company on Cottage Grove avenue offered $25 a week for a porter. An auto sales agency on South Crawford avenue had permanent work for a mechanic. Mrs. D. on the north side needed a beauty operator and offered a commission in addition to salary. A shop in the 2900 block on Milwaukee avenue called for a woman experienced in selling jewelry. Miss A. at a large loop hotel telephoned for a window decorator.

Some of the suggestions for creating jobs offered by Sally Joy Brown are decorating for Christmas, house cleaning for Christmas, and remodeling for the holiday parties. And, of course, shops and stores can make room for a large number to help for the holiday rush. If you can think up a job, telephone to Sally Joy Brown at Superior 0100.

INFANT DEATHS IN CITY CUT IN HALF IN LAST 14 YEARS

It was twice as safe to be born in the first ten months of 1930 as it was in 1916, according to figures announced last night by the Chicago Hospital association, showing a decline from 122 deaths during the first year of life out of each 1,000 in births in 1916, to 55 deaths per 1,000 this year.

The statistics show that of the 60,000 babies born in Chicago each year more than 60 per cent are born in hospitals and that the mortality rate among hospital born babies is only half that among those born in homes. Outside of Chicago nearly half of Illinois' babies are now being born in hospitals.

The 1930 figures give Chicago one of the lowest infant mortality rates in the United States.

HERE'S ANSWER TO EMPTY SEATS IN CLASSROOMS

Thousands Lack Clothes to Attend School.

A stack of 3,000 cards lay on a desk in a room at Dante school, 840 South Desplaines street yesterday. Each card represented the absence of from one to eight children from the Chicago public schools. These have not sufficient clothes to enable them to attend school.

The cards carried orders from principals of the schools for clothing to be provided by the School Children's Aid society. This organization, of which Mrs. George Allen MacCorkle is president, each year raises a thank offering at Thanksgiving time from the public school children. The fund amounts to thousands of dollars. This money is used to buy from wholesale dealers warm clothing to keep needy children in school.

"These orders are on the waiting list," explained Mrs. MacCorkle. "Because of the present unemployment condition, our work is double what it usually is. The orders come in at the rate of 500 to 700 a day, and we are working overtime trying to fill them."

Mother Walks 5 Miles.

Hundreds come to Dante school, the headquarters of the society, without carfare, some of them walking miles for the clothing. There is a waiting line of 500 or more every day, mothers bringing children to be fitted with shoes, dresses, stockings, underwear, coats, gloves, sweaters. One woman, Mrs. MacCorkle said, walked 5 miles. She was given car fare to return home.

"We gave an 11 year old boy a complete new outfit a short time ago," Mrs. MacCorkle said. "He came back a month later and asked for another outfit. I said: 'John, what did you do with the clothes I gave you?' And he answered: 'I divided them among my four brothers and a sister. I did not know you gave to more than one member of a family.'

"I investigated personally and found the boy was telling the truth. His mother was dead and he did the washing for the family. The father was out of work. The boys had decided the basement flat wasn't a fit place for their sister and had asked neighbors to take her in."

Mrs. MacCorkle thumbed over the top cards on the pile of 3,000. The appeals were all in the same vein: "Father out of work. Children need clothing to go to school. Emergency case."

Every nationality is being helped by the society. In the last month, Mrs. MacCorkle said, a Chinese boy, an Indian, three Hindus, Armenians, Greeks, and Syrians had applied for clothing so that they might go to school.

"I call giving clothes to school children scholarships in clothing," Mrs MacCorkle added. "New clothes gives the children more confidence."

Because the expense of giving clothing is doubled this year, the School Children's Aid society for the first time is appealing to the general public for financial aid. Heretofore the money raised by the school children has sufficed with a few additional contributions. Ordinarily the budget for the year is about $85,000. At least $150,000 will be needed this year.

Up to last night the thank offering of the school children had reached $30,000. Gate and ticket receipts for the Lindblom-Harrison football game played at Soldiers' field last Saturday for the benefit of the aid society, totaled $7,268.50. Expenses of the game will be deducted from the total. Mrs. MacCorkle reported that the faculty of the Reese school had sent $240 and $200 had come from the Chicago Junior High School Teachers' club.

110 MILLION BU. OF "STABILIZED" WHEAT ON HAND

U. S. Stumped as to How to Dispose of It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The government has financed the purchase of some 110 million bushels of wheat.

The question of disposing of it is one of the major problems before the federal farm board, which advanced the money, and congress, which created the board, not to mention the administration, which is trying to ride through an economic depression and make both ends of the budget meet, or the farmer, whose welfare depends on what wheat will bring per bushel.

This plan and that program have been suggested.

On one hand are millions of bushels of wheat. On the other are jobless men with families.

On one hand are millions of government dollars invested in wheat. On the other are government departments like the army and navy, always needing money, buying their grain and flour in the open market.

Scores of proposals put the obvious two and two together and say, "Use the wheat to feed the hungry," or "Use I to the advantage of other government departments."

Bought but Not Owned.

A difficulty in the way of any of these solutions is that the government does not own the wheat. Technically, it is privately owned—by the Grain Stabilization corporation, a Delaware corporation—and all the government did was put up the money.

The Grain Stabilization corporation's members are agricultural cooperative concerns, whose members in turn are producers. In the final analysis, therefore, the farmer owns the wheat.

To buy it the stabilization corporation received loans from the farm board's revolving fund. Technically, the farm board could call its loans and force the corporation to dump the wheat on the market. Actually, the board is almost afraid to move lest the whole structure of wheat prices it has so carefully built up tumble down about its ears and the farmers'.

Of the 110,000,000 bushels of wheat the 60,000,000 bushels bought first are tied up by a pledge not to sell them below cost until the producers had got rid of their 1930 crop. No pledge attaches to the 50,000,000 bushels bought later except the pledge fundamental in the board's and the corporation's creation—that of helping the farmer and, through him, the country.

Price Peril Always Ahead.

If the bottom were to drop out of the food commodity market as it did out of the stock market there might be a panic instead of a depression. So the farm board feels. And the wheat is not being sold.

On the welfare of the farmer depends the welfare of the country. That is traditional doctrine and it is the doctrine of the farm board today, and the disposal of the wheat held by the stabilization corporation is looked at from that point of view.

The wheat could not be given away to relieve hungry Americans or hungry Chinese, as has been suggested. The money advanced by the farm board is a loan, and the corporation is held responsible for paying it back.

If it gave the wheat away it would still have the debt and nothing to show for it.

It could sell the wheat to the Red Cross for relief, or to army and navy purchasing agents, provided congress made sufficient appropriation. But whether it could sell any considerable amount of wheat without affecting the market is a question.

Living in Hope.

Probably it could not. For a consumer is a consumer, whether he is a jobless man or a man in uniform, and to feed him out of a government appropriation means to remove him from the open market. And to use the wheat, which the corporation is trying to hold off the market, in order to feed him is equivalent to putting the wheat on the market, regardless of the purchaser.

What the farm board and the corporation are hoping for is a recovery of wheat prices, and if that happens, then their wheat can be slowly worked off. They are counting on four factors: A possible small export outlet, if the world wheat crop falls short; acreage reduction because of the present disastrously low price of wheat; heavy feeding of wheat to live stock during the winter, and a short crop next year because of unfavorable winter wheat planting conditions this fall.

Orders Action to Deport 'Friend of King Alfonso'

Deportation proceedings against Don Federico Rondon Milanes, self-styled personal friend of King Alfonso of Spain, were ordered in the Psychopathic court yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. Don Federico, 28 years old, and reputed son of a rich Cuban, was arraigned as a result of his attempts to enlist prominent Chicagoans, including Samuel Insull and Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, as supporters of his proposed school of languages.

RESINOL "HEALED EVERY PIMPLE"

Writes Miss Klug

"For some years I have had a rough and pimply skin. I tried many kinds of skin lotions and creams, but none of them seemed to do any good. One day I saw your advertisement for Resinol Ointment and sent for a sample. The results were so good I bought a full size jar. It cleared away the redness and roughness, and healed every pimple. Now I always keep a jar on hand, and am glad to pass along a good word for Resinol."

CHICAGO MECCA OF FARM WORLD; SHOW ON TODAY

Live Stock Exhibits to Establish Record.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicago today becomes the mecca of agricultural worship, with the opening of the thirty-first International Live Stock exposition in a blare of trumpets and a half hour's parade of the 13,000 premium seeking animals.

Largest in number and variety of contestants in its history, this largest show of its kind in existence is expected by Manager B. H. Heide to cast off the clouds of gloom that may have hovered over the farmer's plight in the minds of Americans.

"When you realize that we have not only more entries but more farmers sending the best they can produce to Chicago this week," he said, "the picture of agriculture's plight takes on a more pleasant light. Many new features have been added to the show this year, making it different as well as larger than anything the International has ever offered."

All Entries Arranged.

As the last animals were being [illegible] and groomed last night and the task of arranging more than 5,000 samples of grain and hay had been completed by a corps of workmen, the twelve buildings were completely filled with this selection of the best from every section of the United States and seven foreign countries.

Today, for the most part, will be featured by judging contests between student teams from 23 agricultural colleges, one of them from Guelph Ontario. Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., won last year's contest and possesses the first of three "legs" on the permanent trophy, a bronze bust, offered by the Union Stock Yards and Transit company. The Pullman company is offering an additional $5,000 in scholarships in the collegiate event.

Miss Evely Bradley, one of the team of five from Michigan State college, is expected to be a most popular judge, since she is the only co-ed in the contest.

Legion Posts Take Part.

Today is "Legion day" at International amphitheater, many Chicago posts taking part in the day's open house. A feature at tonight's horse show will be the first appearance of Baby Loraince Graham and her brother, Ralph, youngsters agile with ponies and lariat from the Cheyenne rodeo. They will precede a rustling of live stock by the stock yards cowboys, and the first of the sheep corraling nightly appearances. A polo match is scheduled between teams from the University of Chicago and Ohio State university.

Many prominent entries are listed for the horse show, according to O. T. Henkle, chairman. They include John R. Thompson, William E. Dee, Happy Way farm, Louis Garpow, Harry G. Goelitz Jr., Mrs. Mary C. Llewellyn, Miss Arline Martell, Leroi J. Williams, Dr. C. H. Bramwell, Robert Cudahy, Leonard S. Florsheim, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Lieut. Col. Francis Ruggles, and many others.

Although the Canadian entries reviewed last night before the opening indicated they would comprise almost one-fifth of the entire total, the live stock from three provinces is estimated to be worth $1,000,000 by the management. Prizes will exceed $100,000 in cash, in addition to many valuable trophies.

President Hoover is scheduled to speak over 2 national radio chains from the White House Monday evening to the 900,000 4-H boys and girls, whose leaders will be in Chicago next week.

RAID 1,000 GALLON STILL.

Prohibition agents yesterday raided a 1,000 gallon recooking alcohol still in a two story flat building at 1622 South Maple avenue, Berwyn. The still was full of moonshine alcohol, being recooked, and another 500 gallons was found on the premises. Louis Di Lorenzo was arrested.

SIX BANDITS LOOT MILWAUKEE BANK OF $25,000 CASH

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Invading the Layton Park State bank, a second time in less than a year, six robbers with sawed off shotguns and revolvers today obtained $25,000 in currency and escaped.

Eight customers and nine employes were in the bank when the robbers entered. Two of the bandits herded the customers and employes into a conference room and stood guard over them.

The quartet with the shotguns went through the cages scooping the money into large paper bags. An unsuccessful attempt was made to get into the vault. Henry Lemmermann, assistant cashier, was slugged on the head. Ben Koppa also was slugged as he entered the building while the robbery was in progress.

Last year, on Dec. 6, the bank was robbed of $53,000 in currency by five men who escaped.

PRIZE POULTRY AND PETS SHOW OPEN WEDNESDAY

Poultry and pet stock from all sections of the country and from Canada will be shown at the Coliseum at the annual exposition of the International Baby Chick association, the American Poultry association, the Standard Bred Poultry association, and twenty-five specialty clubs, which will open next Wednesday and run through Sunday.

Gov. Emmerson is expected to open the show and many leaders in the field of agriculture are on the program. The United States department of agriculture will exhibit the "talking hen" recently displayed at the World's Poultry congress in London.

Fifteen hundred 4-H club boys and girls will attend the meeting, according to Harvey C. Wood, secretary and director of the exposition.

INNER MAN, NOT COMPULSION, TO RULE, ROOT SAYS

Foreign Relations Council Opens Building.

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Civilization progresses only by changes within the individual, not by outside compulsion, and improvement of international relations can come only through the elevation of the standards of conduct of the peoples who compose the nations, it was declared today by Elihu Root, former secretary of state. He spoke at the opening of the new building of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Root sketched over the field of international relations and its recent developments—the weakening of the feeling that war is inevitable, the sentiment for disarmament, and the establishment of the world court as an implement of settling international disputes.

"The establishment of this building and the centering of the work of the council on foreign relations here indicates the appreciation of a truth very widely neglected," said Mr. Root, "and that is that the work of improving the foreign relations of civilized man is necessarily very slow and laborious and difficult, and that any one who is going to contribute materially to it must settle down to steady, continuous, and unspectacular labor."

Law Only One Phase.

The question of law constituted but a phase of international problems, Mr. Root went on.

"The discussion of international feeling, international manners, international morals—the discussion of all these is necessary to complete the picture," he said. "And I think when we have studied the history of international relations we must come to the conclusion that underlying improvement in them is not the reaching of written or oral agreements, not the making of treaties, and the intellectual understanding of reasoning, but it is the enlargement and elevation of standards of conduct within all the countries in all the civilized world.

"No improvement comes by compulsion. No improvement comes merely by intellectual understanding. But you have got to get the same change in the standard of conduct which each man carried within his own breast, and which has made a change from the recognition of private war as the appropriate means for the settlement of differences into the recognition of judicial decisions as the appropriate means for accomplishing the same thing."

Peaceful Settlements Preferred.

Individuals settle their personal differences now through the courts instead of by the pistol or the knife, Mr. Root continued, "not because laws have been made, but because the individual members of a community have come to a feeling that that is the better way."

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson sent a message in which he said:

"With the general purpose of the council I am in hearty sympathy. There can never be a satisfactory foreign policy of the United States unless it represents the thinking opinion of a considerable body of its disinterested citizens, and that presupposes a greater degree of discussion based on reasonably correct knowledge of the facts as to foreign affairs, more widely disseminated, than now exists. You are trying to create a sound basis for the foreign policies of the United States—more strength to your effort."

Poincare Sends Message.

Other messages congratulating the council on its new home were from Viscount Grey of Fallodon, former British foreign secretary and now president of the Royal Institute of International affairs, and Raymond Poincare, in his message, referred to the fact that the council on foreign relations was founded in Paris during the peace conference.

BEDFORD-JONES TAKES HIS SON FROM EX-WIFE

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Judge Edwin C. Henning of Superior court today said he had been informed that Henry Bedford-Jones, Evansville novelist, whose divorce and remarriage have resulted in several court actions, has removed his son, Henry Jr., from the custody of the boy's nurse in an Indianapolis hospital. Father and son are said to be on their way to California.

The boy had been in custody of his mother, Mrs. Helen Bedford-Jones, before entering the hospital. The father's petition for custody was set for hearing here Dec. 3. On that date, too, decision is to be given on a suit filed by the boy's mother, Bedford-Jones' first wife, to have a divorce obtained by Bedford-Jones two years ago annulled. The novelist since has married again.

OKLAHOMA INDIANS FAIL IN THEIR SECOND OIL SUIT AGAINST U. S.

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A suit filed by Robert L. Owen, former United States senator, and other attorneys on behalf of 3,119 Seminole Indians, seeking to have all Seminole county oil royalties pooled for the tribe, was thrown out of federal court here today by Judge Robert L. Williams.

Judge Williams held that Owen and his colleagues were without capacity to sue for the Indians.

A previous effort to sue for the Seminoles as a nation was thrown out by Judge Williams several years ago on the ground an Indian nation could not sue without permission of the President.

RUSSIA TO PROBE FRANCE'S PART IN ANTI-SOVIET PLOT

Secret Hearing to Reveal Names of Agents.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Thorough investigation into the activities of "French and other government agents in Moscow" was demanded by Prosecutor Krilenko tonight when the trial of eight engineers on charges of high treason was resumed.

He asked the court for a closed session to permit him to inquire as to the identities of the alleged French agents, "A" and "R," with whom the defendants have testified they dealt in connection with a plot for foreign intervention.

The request was granted by the court, but meanwhile the prosecutor started his cross-examination of the defendants.

Ramzin First on Stand.

Prof. L. K. Ramzin, indicted as leader of the conspiracy, was the first to take the stand.

Prosecutor Krilenko announced that his cross-examination would be on the basis of biography, past activities, concrete explanation of the defendants' sabotage, more complete details of their connections abroad and more definite facts relating to former President Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand of France on intervention and activities of the French general staff.

He first questioned Prof. Ramzin about his past history.

Outlines His Past.

"I was born in 1887," replied Prof. Ramzin. "My father and mother were village school teachers and I earned my own living since the age of fourteen. I graduated from the Moscow Technical institute in 1914 and remained there as a teacher.

"I worked in the state planning commission from 1921 to 1925, and more recently with large soviet power projects. I worked in the Bolshevik party as a youth, but had no political connection until the October revolution.

"My attitude was rather hostile toward the revolution and afterward I became a member of a group which sabotaged soviet institutions."

Prosecutor Questions Him.

A crowded courtroom thrilled while Krilenko frequently shot questions at the defendant and the latter slowly and carefully replied.

It was after 1926, said Ramzin, that higher engineers drew him into anti-soviet plots with them.

"Did you sincerely believe the country should be ruled by engineers and technical men?" Krilenko asked.

"Yes," Ramzin replied, "economically."

"But how about politically?"

"Well, this was only a form of propaganda to draw more engineers into the Industrial party which then was in the process of formation."

Ramzin contended his antipathy toward the soviet government was not occasioned by material reasons, but was purely ideological.

Smiling broadly, Krilenko asked, "Outside of Plato, who was your political guide?"

Ramzin grinned and replied: "Ballod."

Krilenko for a moment looked puzzled. It was obvious he was uncertain who Ballod was, so he quickly jumped to another question. Spectators were of the belief that Ballod was a political writer of some years ago.

Ramzin said he had an automobile and lived well as a scientific worker. Money didn't tempt him to plot against the soviet, he asserted.

Tells Why He Plotted.

"I plotted against the government," he said, "for the simple reason that I was against the soviet policy, and was sure the government would come to an end sooner or later and I decided to do my share to bring about this finish."

Ramzin caused a decided stir in the courtroom when he said his salary as an expert technical engineer was 1,500 rubles [$750] monthly. There were murmurs of "bourgeois," which is understandable when it is considered the highest officials only receive about 250 rubles [$125] a month.

Peasant Revolt Crushed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RITUPE, Latvia, Nov. 28.—Russian troops have suppressed the revolt of peasants in White Russia, according to reports from the Latvian frontier today. The peasants, who have been carrying on a fight against the soviet government to prevent the seizure of their crops of flax for the last five weeks, today informed border guards that the fighting has ceased. No firing was heard this afternoon.

Incomplete but authentic reports collected by the guards give a total of more than 1,000 peasants killed in villages along the frontier, with more than 4,000 members of their families deported to north Russia.

Today near the Russian village of Jaunlatgal the guards witnessed an unusual funeral when 100 peasants with wagons carried 15 coffins along the border en route to a burial ground. The guards were informed that the 15 coffins contained the eldest sons of 15 families that had burned their flax crops. The sons had been executed.

TRAIN SMASHES 2 AUTOS AT SAME TIME; FOUR DIE

Cars Running Abreast at Rail Crossing.

Two automobiles, speeding side by side in a narrow street, were demolished by a Nickel Plate railroad freight train yesterday at an open grade crossing in Hobart, Ind., ten miles east of Gary. The four occupants of the two cars were killed outright. The dead are:

T. H. Grabowski, 45 years old, a lawyer and former president of the American State bank of Gary.

Mrs. Grabowski, 37 years old, his wife.

Rudolph Niksch, 53 years old, caretaker of the Grabowski summer home near Hobart.

Norman Gabel, 25 years old, of Valparaiso, Ind.

The accident occurred at the Lincoln street crossing in Hobart. Witnesses of the accident said that the Grabowski automobile was passing the car driven by Gabel when both were struck by the train. The watchman stationed at the crossing was not on duty. The watchman's shanty was destroyed when it was struck by one of the wrecked automobiles.

Cook County Toll Mounts.

Grabowski retired as president of the bank two years ago. The bank has since been reorganized and is now known as the First Indiana State bank. The Grabowskis have two small children.

Five deaths raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,005. The victims:

Mrs. Catherine Davey, 50 years old, 2417 North Spaulding avenue. Killed when struck by a taxicab at Spaulding and Fullerton avenues. Harry Greenholt, 5034 Roscoe street, the driver, was held.

Christino Bovuso, 45 years old, 926 Sedgwick street. Fatally injured when struck by the automobile of Donald Carnall, 422 Davis street, Evanston, at La Salle and Elm streets.

Herman Bott, 60 years old, 4106 North Damen avenue, a street cleaner employed by the Lincoln park board. Killed when struck while at work at Sheridan road and Hawthorne place, by a motor coach driven by Bernard F. Grimes, 24 years old, 1743 Addison street. Grimes was held.

Patrick T. Purdy, 30 years old, 8945 Perry avenue. Died in the Jackson Park hospital of injuries received on Thursday when struck by a taxicab while throwing a switch. Henry Fagin, 604 West 37th street, the driver, was held.

Jacob Fisher, 59 years old, 142 South 10th avenue, Maywood. Fatally injured when struck by the auto of Herbert Kuhlmann, 212 South 5th avenue, Maywood, while crossing St. Charles road at 11th avenue, Maywood.

Three persons were critically injured when their auto crashed head on into a street car at Cicero avenue and Nevada street. They are George Thompson, 22 years old, 1727 North Mansfield avenue; Philip Strohm, 28 years old, 2111 North Springfield avenue; and Miss Blanch Smith, 18 years old, 2115 Howard street. All were taken to the Belmont hospital.

FOUR STABBED THROUGH HEART IN FARM HOME

Whole Family Slain by Mystery Killer.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—James Husted Germond, a tenant farmer, his wife, and their two children were found stabbed to death this morning in their home, 18 miles east of Poughkeepsie.

Who killed the Germonds, or what motive lies behind the worst crime Dutchess county ever has known, the authorities could not tell tonight. The murderer left no clews, not even a fingerprint, and the police were in the dark as to where to turn.

Germond was 47 years old, a quiet man, and rather poor. His wife, Mabel Gregory Germond, was the same age. The daughter, Bernice, was 18. She was a student in a business college in Poughkeepsie. The son, Raymond, was 12.

Girl Last Seen Alive.

The police place the time of the killings between 5:30 and 7 p. m. Wednesday night. Miss Germond was the last one seen alive. She returned to the farm house about 5:20 p. m. on Wednesday and as she stepped from the bus remarked to Timothy Haggerty, the driver, that "there doesn't seem to be any one home; the whole house is dark."

The father was last seen alive at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. In the morning he had gone to the creamery in town to get a $150 check for his month's milk and had paid $50 of it to a feed store in Stanfordville. He then went over to the home of his brother, Paul, a farmer near Stanfordville. He left his brother's home at 4 p. m.

The boy and the mother were not seen all day Wednesday. The family lived a mile and a half from the nearest neighbor.

Willard Coons, an employé of the Borden creamery, called at the Germond home this morning to inquire why Germond had left no milk at the station yesterday or today. As he walked to the house, which sets back about twenty feet from the road, he heard the cows bellowing for fodder. He saw none of the Germonds about.

Stumbles on Body.

Pushing a door open, he almost fell over the body of Mrs. Germond. She lay on the kitchen floor with her head under the stove. She had been stabbed in the heart and other parts of her body were slashed. About three feet away the daughter lay, under the sink. She, too, had a deep knife wound in the heart and her palms showed that she had tried to catch the knife as it flashed at her.

Coons looked no further. He rushed out to his car and got to a telephone. Within half an hour Sheriff Rockefeller Berman and his deputies and a detachment of state troopers were at the Germond farm.

They found the father and son dead in the garage, about fifty feet back of the house. The murderer, it was quite evident, had stabbed them to death as they ran from the barn, where they were milking, toward the house, perhaps in response to the women's screams. Each had a deep heart wound.

After they were dead they were dragged, one at a time, by the heels into the garage, and the murderer closed the door and fixed the hasp from the outside.

Laborite Challenges British Earl to Duel

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Earl of Winterton, who was slapped in the face with a folded paper by a Laborite member, C. J. Simmons, in the house of commons last night, in a speech at Shoreham tonight declared that an enthusiastic supporter of Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden had challenged him to a duel. The earl last night called the chancellor a "dirty dog."

APPROVE PLAN TO WIDEN STATE ST.; PROTESTS FAIL

Faherty Acts Despite Pleas for Delay.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, yesterday approved the plans for the widening of North State between Chicago avenue and Division street over the protests of a number of persons who appeared at a public hearing in the council chambers. The street will be widened to 115 feet, the same width to which it is being widened between the river and Chicago avenue.

A delay in the proceedings was requested by Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, and Kellogg Fairbank. They requested the delay to afford them an opportunity to negotiate with the Chicago Plan commission to determine if a plan can be worked out to avoid the creation of a bottle neck north of Division street.

Want East and West Artery.

"With State street widened to Division street it will draw traffic from Rush and Cass streets and create a bottle neck north of Division where State street is narrow," said Mr. Litsinger. "We would like to have more time to negotiate with the plan commission so that some east and west street can be widened to divert traffic to other north and south lanes."

Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [43d] added his voice to those seeking more time in which to work out traffic plans. He said that the cost of widening and paving State street should be paid out of a bond fund instead of by special assessment, as the improvement will be a general one in that it will provide a major traffic artery to the loop.

Protest Special Assessments.

Three aldermen appeared at the hearing to protest against any more special assessments being levied against the residents of their wards. In some cases Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] and Thomas F. Byrne [15th] were successful, but the plea of Ald. Frank A. Sloan [26th] for more time in the widening and paving of Ashland avenue between 22d street and the sanitary district canal was rejected.

Among the projects approved by the board were the opening of Van Vlissingen road between 95th and 103d streets and the widening and paving of Devon avenue between Milwaukee avenue and the western city limits. Property owners on Devon who wanted time in which to determine if the county would aid in the project were overruled by Faherty.

Extends West

Direct street car connection between Melrose Park, Maywood and other western suburbs and Chicago was opened yesterday with ceremonies participated in by the various communities along the extended route.

The line is in Lake street, and was extended west from 5th avenue in Maywood to 24th avenue, Melrose Park. The new addition represents one and one-quarter miles of double track laid on the broad concrete Lake street stretch.

GOVERNOR WILL HELP OPEN NEW ROAD MONDAY

Five state officials headed by Gov. Emmerson will attend a celebration in Richmond and Harvard, Ill., Monday to mark the opening of a 20 mile stretch of the new highway connecting the two towns. The paving will be part of state route 173.

The celebration will be known as Eugene Saunders Day in honor of the postmaster at Harvard, who personally secured rights of way for most of the 20 miles. There will be a parade starting in Richmond and culminating with a banquet at the Harvard community high school at 6:30 p. m.

Besides the governor, Lieut. Gov. Fred W. Sterling, William J. Stratton, secretary of state; Frank T. Sheets, chief state highway engineer, and H. H. Cleaveland, director of public works, expect to attend.

Ludendorff Claims Life Is Threatened; Police Scoff

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—Gen. Erich Ludendorff, war time quartermaster general of the imperial forces, who now resides at Villa Isartal in Bavaria, today complained to the Munich police that the lives of himself and his wife have been threatened. The police are making a formal investigation, but insinuate that Gen. Ludendorff is suffering from persecution mania.

NATIONS PLAN TO LIMIT PUBLICITY OF WAR STOCKS

Arms Cut Body Votes to Bare Costs Only.

GENEVA, Nov. 28. — (AP) — The league of nations preparatory commission today again dodged the question of full publicity on disarmament on land war materials and adopted a French resolution which provides only for an annual report of expenditures upon such equipment.

Last Saturday the Dutch delegation offered a proposal which would have guaranteed complete publicity for war preparations and materials, but after a spirited session with much opposition from France and Japan the matter was referred to a subcommittee.

Today the question again was brought up, with the United States representative, Hugh S. Gibson, voting for full publicity on materials both in service and in stock as last Saturday. Italy, Sweden, Holland, Spain, Turkey and Russia joined with him.

The opposition, led by France and Japan again, protested that a full exchange of information on war stocks would be giving away defense secrets and thereby prejudicing national security.

France's formula provides merely for the amount of money expended, not for itemization of equipment. With the French voted their central European allies, plus Japan, Peru, Persia, and Norway.

G. O. P. COALITION IN MAYORAL RACE TAKES ON FORM

Deneen and Brundage Groups May Unite.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Possibility of a coalition of several Republican groups in the approaching mayoral campaign was said to have increased materially yesterday as the result of a meeting of the Deneen group.

The meeting, at the Hotel La Salle, was behind closed doors, but disclosures that followed were that a highly optimistic feeling prevailed concerning the primary and that a general willingness to cooperate with other groups to whom neither Mayor Thompson nor Charles V. Barrett is acceptable was registered.

Seek to Unite Groups.

Among other things it was said that a real effort will be begun soon for the temporary amalgamation of the Brundage and Deneen units with the addition of a number of regular ward committeemen who have followed the leadership of County Chairman Snow, but are anti-city hall at this point.

It was said further that while a number of Deneenites have been mentioned as mayoral timber, the group indicated a willingness to go outside its own ranks to find a man upon whom a coalition might agree. There was an agreement that while political experience is necessary for the job it would be possible to find a man for World's Fair mayor who would be politically independent in his administration of the office.

During the discussion speakers pointed out that if it is administered in full accordance with the law the mayor's office carries with it no great amount of political power, since nearly all the patronage should be under civil service. It was urged that the elements entering into a coalition could be convinced that a nonfactional mayor would not use the patronage to which he would be entitled to make a new war.

Feel Out Three Groups.

It was related in the meeting that informal feeling out of the three groups mentioned has been going on for several days with the encouragement of civic leaders who are reported to have given up the idea that a big business man with no political background would make a strong candidate at this time.

The Deneen ward leaders, it was said, manifested a determination to start fighting harder than ever now, although the Nov. 4 election cost them one of their few remaining patronage offices, that of chief clerk of the Municipal court, now held by James A. Kearns.

This determination showed itself in an announcement that the desertion of two ward committeemen to Thompson was followed immediately by the launching of new organizations against them in their wards. It was announced that William Lass of the 23d ward went over to Thompson when he was offered a $6,000 place for himself, twenty other jobs in the city hall, and other inducements. The second man to leave Deneen for Thompson was John McKeone of the 40th ward. His reward was not disclosed.

Want to Replace Them.

"There are one or two and possibly three others who have been approached and are considered wavering," it was said by one of the big leaders, "and we've told them that if they're going to go we want them to go quickly so that we can put other men in their places."

Control of the county central committee, it was agreed, is the prize Thompson is playing for in taking over the Deneen committeemen. It is understood that Thompson has ignored Chairman Snow in all patronage matters for several months, and the recent proselyting has led to rumors that he intends to try to oust Snow from the chairmanship.

Mention Crowe as Possibility.

One of these reports was that Thompson had selected Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, as his political manager and intended to make him chairman of the committee. But friends of the former prosecutor say that he will not be a party to the scheme. The mayor's second choice is said to be William J. Balmer, commissioner of public service and committeeman from the Seventeenth ward.

The attitude of Snow's supporters is that he was elected last spring for a two year term and that there is no provision in the law for ousting or replacing him. In an interview yesterday Snow said he knew of no plan to attempt his removal, but that he felt if an effort were made a majority of the committee would rebuke it.

Tried for Bigamy

MRS. MARY GERMANN.

Mrs. Mary Germann, 37 years old, 3738 North Monticello avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court on a charge of bigamy. The charge was brought by her husband, Fred Germann, who declared that his wife had married Godfrey Carlson. Mrs. Germann testified that Carlson is her brother. Her husband shouted that her maiden name was Johnson. More than 25 witnesses testified in a lively hearing for and against Mrs. Germann.

MEYERING MAKES ELECTION PLEDGE HIS OFFICE RULE

New Sheriff Will Be Own Boss, He Says.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

William D. Meyering, retiring alderman of the Eighth ward, took his oath as sheriff before Chief Justice Stanley Klarkowski of the Circuit court yesterday afternoon. He then gave an interview which was strikingly conservative when contrasted with the announcements of many newly elected officials.

Sheriff Meyering remembers his campaign statements. He said he would have them summarized and placed under the glass of his desk.

"If any one asks me to violate them," said Sheriff Meyering, "I will point them out and say if he did not approve of them when I was a candidate he should have then urged a different promise. I will not back away from those promises.

Will Be His Own Sheriff.

"You ask my policy? I have made two decisions on policy. I will be the sheriff and I will work. I will be at my desk each day and devote my efforts for a time to ascertaining what the sheriff's office means, what it does and how it does it.

"When I get better acquainted with my duties and powers, the customs and practices of the office, the results obtained and the results desired, I will attempt such improvements as I think I can accomplish."

"To be sure, I have a number of ideas I think are workable and advisable, but it seems discreet for me to familarize myself with the office before making specific declarations. I promised the public to give the best administration of the office of which I am capable, and I intend to keep that pledge."

Bans Graft and Gratuities.

On crooked assistants he continued: "In court proceedings certain writs are to be served by the sheriff's office promptly and efficiently. Any deputy who takes graft or a gratuity for performing his sworn duty will be out of a job.

"I have no intention of using the limited police force, about 100 men, for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment for two reasons. First, I thing there is more important work to do. Second, an attempt to enforce it would probably supply the policemen with a temptation they would be unable to withstand. After a while they would become mere collectors. No grafter will stay on th pay roll, regardless of who sponsored him or asks his retention."

Asked about crime suppression, the new sheriff replied: "I have no solution for crime. I have no definite suggestions to make at this time, although I hope to be able to suggest something helpful later. I will willingly coöperate with any committee or agency honestly interested in curbing crime. I will take advice and counsel from any source sincere in its purpose.

"Not Evading Responsibility."

"But I am not evading any of the responsibility placed upon me. I will give any aid I can to prevent crime and catch criminals, and I have been informed that the sheriff has considerable power in that direction."

"For the present I am making no changes in personnel, only filling the vacancies," he said. "All of the department heads will be told to operate their departments according to law and give good service. If any one fails, I will get some one else.

"I am particularly concerned about the jail, because I think the public is more interested in that branch of the sheriff's functions than any other. I think that Jailer Moneypenny is honest and efficient and has my full support. The jail will not be operated along the lines of political preference. The men there who do good and efficient service will be retained.

"As I promised the public during the campaign, I intend to give a clean and efficient administration. The subordinate who does not obey the law will not only be discharged but, if the offense warrants it, he will have charges filed against him just like any other law violator."

There are sundry improvements the sheriff will attempt, such as uniform traffic regulations in all of the country towns, five or six women deputies to care for women on juries, an increase in the number of jail guards, and more promptness in serving writs. But these will come later. As a parting comment the sheriff said:

"Give me a chance, please."

BANKER SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH AFTER FAILURE

Hillsboro, Ill., Nov. 28.—(AP)—William A. Baker, 45, assistant cashier of the Farmersville bank which closed in September because of frozen assets, shot and killed himself with a revolver in the bank today.

Baker had been working with Roscoe Hamilton, receiver, in checking the affairs of the bank in which the assistant cashier was one of the principal stockholders.

Baker shot himself in the head while Hamilton had stepped out of the bank for a short time. When he returned he found the bank official dead.

WATERWAY JOB CONFERENCE IS HELD IN CAPITAL

Illinois, Federal Officers Discuss Plans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—War department and Illinois state officials conferred again today on the Illinois waterway situation without reaching an agreement which would permit the government to take over the project at once and insure expedition of construction work at the beginning of the new year. Harry K. Kohn, Illinois director of purchases and construction, conferred for an hour with Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, but arrived at the war department too late to see Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who had left for Chicago to see the Notre Dame-Army football tomorrow.

Accompanied by Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], Mr. Kohn called at the White House at noon and discussed the Joliet-Utica link of the lakes to the gulf waterway with President Hoover for a short time. Later Senator Glenn said that while progress had been made in working out details no final agreement had been reached.

Ample Funds Required.

Before the government will take over the waterway it is understood the war department desires to be assured that the state has ample funds to build the necessary bridges. It also desires assurances that construction work on the bridges will be expedited so that the waterway can be opened for traffic immediately on the completion of construction by the government. The war department hopes to complete the waterway in two years.

It developed today that some doubt exists as to whether sufficient money remains in the state waterway fund provided by bond issue to finance construction of the bridges over the Joliet-Utica waterway.

Refuse to Make Prediction.

War department officials refused to predict whether inability of the state to finance the bridges with its remaining waterway funds would postpone the date when the federal government could take over the waterway.

Mr. Kohn expressed confidence all differences would be ironed out.

INDIANA OFFICIAL IS CHARGED WITH MISUSE OF FUNDS

Called On to Pay Back $28,000 to County.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Illegal payments of $28,859.43 are charged against John McFadden, assessor of Calumet township, Lake county in a report by the state board of accounts which has been certified to the Lake county auditor. McFadden has been ordered to appear here before the board of accounts Dec. 2 for explanation.

A demand will be made that he repay the entire amount to the county and if this is not done the report will then be certified to the state attorney general for legal action. Lawrence F. Orr, chief examiner of the board of accounts, said it is customary to wait about two weeks after the hearing date before turning the report over to the attorney general.

Defeated for Reelection.

McFadden, who was defeated for reelection in November, was under county grand jury investigation some time ago, but no charges were made against him.

The money allegedly misused was for telephone bills paid by the county which should have been paid by McFadden; alleged overpayment of janitors, assessors and office employés and payments said to have been made for chauffeurs for McFadden.

The report asserted that McFadden hired a man as janitor and then listed him as a deputy.

The total amount of this alleged overpayment was $7,619.25.

An overpayment of $7,578 is charged as having been made to Arthur Riley, Gary, employed from 1925 to 1929 as a chauffeur. According to the report, Riley told field examiners for the board of accounts that he did not work in the office, but said he acted as chauffeur for McFadden and his wife.

Hired as Chauffeur.

Another man, according to the report, was hired as a chauffeur and overpaid $4,082.

K. M. Wells, Gary, the field examiners reported, said he was hired as an assessor and that he signed his salary claims in blank. The examiners said he told them the title was filled in later and amounts paid him in excess of what he had earned then were turned over to E. J. Flannery.

CHILE SENTENCES SIX TO 15 YEARS FOR REVOLT PLOT

CONCEPCION, Chile, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Gen. Felix Urculiu, military judge in the investigation of an attempted subversive movement here in September, today passed sentence on the principals in the conspiracy. Former Gen. Enrique Bravo, former Col. Marmaduke Grove, former Senator Luis Salas Romo, Carlos Vicuna Fuentes, Luis Sanchez and Pedro Leon Ugalde all were given 15 years and one day in prison and disqualified as citizens. Other figures in the affair were given lesser sentences.

POLICE SHAKEUP FOLLOWS GRAFT QUIZ IN GOTHAM

Big Names May Come Out in Investigation.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The first jolt of a wholesale police shakeup was felt today by twenty-seven police officers as the inquiry into vice graft in the Women's courts went on behind closed doors, with two accused lawyers pouring out a tale said to be far more startling, and to involve bigger names, than those brought out at any previous hearing. They will repeat their confessions when the public hearings are resumed next Tuesday and the implication is that a lot of magistrates will find themselves in a hot spot.

Seven detectives mentioned as having accepted bribes in vice cases were ordered back into "monkey suits" and to patrol duty by Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, who said that twenty other policemen were slated for demotion as soon as he could finish wading through a transcription of the testimony in the Appelate division's inquiry into Magistrates' courts. The accused policemen are pooling their funds to hire lawyers and several of them have called for resignation blanks.

Two Lawyers Confess.

The confessions of the two lawyers who practiced corruption in the Women's court are in the possession of Isidor J. Kresel, special prosecutor, but details and the lawyers' names are being withheld until next week. The two attorneys, who were named along with four others as bribe givers made a clean brest of the vice racket in the hope that they might obtain leniency.

When they repeat their story in open session the details of the five way split which, it has been testified, was made of money wrung from indiscreet women lured into court, will be explained. The police, the prosecutor, the lawyer and the bondsman have already been named as sharing in the graft money. If the fifth portion whent to any magistrate or magistrates this will come out in the lawyers' testimony.

Hundred Are Summoned.

Meanwhile subpoenas were issued for more than one hundred witnesses expected to be questioned next week. The fifteen other vice "pigeons" named by "Chile" Acuna, the South American informer with the rose-tinted finger nails, all have vanished from their accustomed haunts and it is not likely that the Dove, the Cuban, Dave, Chico or any of them will be on hand to bolster "Chile's" sordid testimony. Some of the subpoenas issued this afternoon were said to be for girls subjected to illegal arrest and prosecution.

Other major developments today included the calling of Acuna before the investigators for further questioning. The little Chilean was accompanied by three bodyguards assigned to him pending completion of his testimony. Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Shalleck was called before the inquiry for an interview, the nature of which was not revealed.

Word from Warm Springs, Ga., where Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is resting, intimated the governor would take no action on repeated demands for a legislative inquiry into Tammany's administration of the New York City government until he returned to Albany.

Crain Reports Progress.

The only optimistic news in today's list came from a quarter in which considerable lack of confidence has been expressed by outsiders. District Attorney C. T. Crain, who is engaged in a war to drive all racketeers out of the city, reported "progress."

"Despite the good reports coming to me," said Mr. Crain, "I am not satisfied, and I will not be satisfied until we have driven all the racketeers from the city. I am told that in several instances since we have started our campaign these racketeers have not come around to collect their tribute, and that is very helpful."

Mr. Crain still is looking for another chairman to head his citizens' committee on public safety. Lincoln Cromwell, who enthusiastically accepted the post last Wednesday, resigned later that day upon advice of his physician.

Wind Carries African Sand to Hit Paris in Rare Storm

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A sandstorm, quite common in the Sahara, but hitherto unheard of in France, struck Paris today. The northern part of the city was especially affected and pedestrians, automobiles, and roof tops were powdered with sand. Meteorological experts said the sand had been carried all the way across the Mediterranean by a southwesterly wind.

Held Up in Loop

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Police last night were seeking two bandits who stole $300 yesterday in a daring holdup of Max Hirsch, assistant treasurer, in the lobby of the Erlanger theater, 127 North Clark street.

The robbery was staged during the afternoon rush hour while hundreds of pedestrians were passing the scene.

Hirsch was counting receipts in the lobby box office when two men appeared the ticket window. One drew a revolver and commanded Hirsch to hand over the money. His pal moved away a few minutes to stall watch. Hirsch shoved over a handful of bills and the men departed. They overlooked several thousand dollars, Hirsch reported.

CLEAR WAY FOR RAIL VIADUCT NEAR LA GRANGE

Construction which will eliminate one of the worst traffic bottle necks in Cook county is expected to get under way immediately as the result of action taken yesterday by the Indiana Harbor Belt railway, allowing for the construction of a viaduct over its tracks on Ogden avenue, route 8, at La Grange.

The viaduct will be constructed on the east side of La Grange, with the east approach in the town of Brookfield. It will first pass over the Belt line's tracks and then will go under the right of way of the Burlington railroad.

The vehicular section of the viaduct will be forty-four feet wide, with two six foot sidewalks. Including the approaches, the viaduct will be about a quarter of a mile long. Its construction will cost the Belt line $200,000, the state $100,000, and the Burlington $50,000. Cook county has already spent $75,000 on the right of way.

HANGS SELF IN BASEMENT.

The body of Joseph Lenait, 40 years old, was found hanging from pipes above the furnace in the basement of his home at 13235 Brandon avenue by his wife, Sophie, yesterday. East side police said that he was despondent and threatened to take his life three weeks ago.

BRITAIN ACTS TO AVERT MINERS' STRIKE ON WAGES

Men Refuse Reductions and Alternative Plan.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Following the emphatic "No" of the miners' delegates today to the proposal of the mine owners that the dispute over the seven and a half hour day should be temporarily settled by a "spread over" plan under which the men would agree to work 90 hours a fortnight, the government intervened tonight in order to prevent a general coal strike next Monday.

The seven and a half hour day, applicable to South and North Wales, Cumberland, Staffordshire, and Leicestershire, was to have come into operation under a parliament act on Dec. 1 and the owners claimed that wages should be correspondingly reduced. This the men flatly refused to accept and so the spread over plan was suggested.

Day to Day Plan Proposed.

The government's telegrams to the owners' and the miners' representatives urged new negotiations and the adoption of day to day contracts in order to avoid the horrors of a general strike in the industry. Should the men agree to the proposal they will work on day to day contracts until next Thursday, when a new conference has been arranged.

In the meanwhile the railroad clerks also refused to accept a 10 per cent pay cut. In making their refusal the men point out that at the end of the year there will be over $200,000,000 available in the form of dividends to stockholders, and that for this reason no good case can be made for the proposed reductions, which would be to the detriment of the service of the railroad employés.

Directors Trim Own Fees.

The big bosses of the railroads, however, tried to lead the way to reductions by a voluntary cut of their fees. In the case of the Midland raidroad $175,000 was paid last year to 24 directors. The cuts they took will save $43,750. The Great Western, with 25 directors getting $125,000 a year; the London and Northwestern, with 26 directors getting $121,375, and the Southern railroad, whose 18 directors drew $95,060, will take similar action, each cutting their fees 25 per cent.

This action on the part of the directors was calculated to appease the trainmen, shopworkers, and clerks and would be spread to the higher salaried executives, but it did not form part of the plan submitted to the unions and is not considered as germane to the discussion by the wage earners.

The definite refusal of the railroad clerks to accept a pay cut throws the controversy before the national wage board which was created under the last raidroad act. The conferences of the National Union of Railway Men and the Asociated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen will be held next week. It is expected that they, too, will reject the proposals to cut wages.

FRENCH DEPUTIES BACK PREMIER IN BANKING SCANDAL

He Wins Two Votes of Confidence.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The government of Premier Tardieu today won two votes of confidence, although his majority is gradually being whittled on the issue of the failure of the Oustric bank and other financial institutions recently.

The chamber of deputies was put in a critical mood yesterday when Premier Tardieu won another vote of confidence. In this balloting nothing was said directly about the bank issue, but a question was poised on a purely internal matter that involved the expenditure of about $680,000,000 for public improvements. The government emerged with a majority of 78.

Two Undersecretaries Resign.

As the chamber reconvened today it became known that Eugene Lautier, undersecretary of the ministry of fine arts, and Henri Falcoz, undersecretary of the ministry of public works, had resigned. This was an outgrowth of the Oustric bank failure, as was the recent resignation of Raoul Peret, minister of justice, and rumors spread that the premier himself would quit.

Thus, facing wide criticism of his policy in dealing with sunken financial institutions, M. Tardieu put a question of confidence squarely up to the chamber. He won by 14 votes, 293 to 279 the smallest majority his government has ever received.

Demands Second Vote.

Not satisfied, the premier again sprang before the chamber and said it must immediately express confidence or lack of confidence in his government's ability to investigate the financial failures. On this ballot he won by 303 to 14, all oppositionists except the communists abstaining. This meant 251 abstentions and were these absentions reckoned according to parliamentary custom. M. Tardieu would have a potential majority of only 38, or 303 against 265.

In the meantime, Albert Oustric, the banker whose name has rung through the chamber lobbies for three weeks as having had dealings with 32 members of parliament, including ministers and undersecretaries, was arrested late this afternoon on a warrant charging a swindling operation in 1926.

NAUGHTY PARIS RESCUED AGAIN FROM PURITANS

Cop, Once on Angels' Side, Defends Daring Poster.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Gay Paree tonight scraped through the worst attack on its morals in history, and American expatriates who like their adopted city to be naughty but nice are breathing easier.

It was a close call though, and everybody was surprised when the principal champion of Gallic whimsy turned out to be Jean Chiappe, supposedly hardboiled prefect of police, who eloquently defended the cause of freedom against the righteous city fathers in a stormy session of the municipal council which dragged far into the night.

Has Record as Moralist.

M. Chiappe was the originator of the biggest cleanup campaign Paris has ever known. During his administration this whiskered cop from Corsica closed down scores of picturesque dens of iniquity and chased the frivolous ladies who stroll around at night off most of the principal downtown streets and obliged music hall impresarios to add several inches to their chorines' costumes. He recently raised a howl of dismay from all good Parisians by forbiding parking, sitting, strolling, or what have you in the Bois de Boulogne after 10 p. m.

Tonight, several municipal counsellors, backed by the energetic Abbe Bethleem, a Catholic priest who is constantly getting arrested for mutilating obscene posters and billboards, demanded that the police apply rigidly a recent order by Premier Tardieu for the suppression of immorality. Strict censorship of books and plays was asked but the debate centered chiefly about the posters and other advertising matter and those sprightly illustrated Parisian weeklies which our boys used to improve their knowledge of the French language between battles.

Paste Daring Poster on Convent.

A number of the city fathers were particularly indignant over the huge posters advertising the latest Follies Bergere review in which the legend of Lecla's swan is visualized in a daring way. It was brought out that these posters were actually plastered on the wall of a convent for young girls.

M. Chiappe admitted that the posters were a "little bold" but said that many respectable citizens were not shocked by the fact and considered them quite artistic. He went on to say that any attempt to censor the press and literature was dangerous because public ideas of decency changed from one generation to the other.

He ended by saying that prostitution and vice were diminishing every year in Paris and that the best way to stamp vice out was not by trying to suppress it but by striving for a happy medium between "puritanism and licentiousness."

CAROL SEEKS TO EXILE HELENE TO GET NEW HEIRS OF BLOOD ROYAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 28.—Usually most reliable sources claim that King Carol of Rumania is quietly attempting to persuade his divorced wife, Helene, to leave the country, clearing the way for his marriage to another woman of royal blood who will bear him children. Michael, his only son by Helene, is a smart and sturdy boy of the Anglo-Saxon type, but if accident or illness should carry him off, King Carol fears that his first morganatic wife, the dark eyed commoner, Zizi Lambrino, would start trouble by pushing forward Carol's first son, who is now 12 years old.

This factor, combined with the king's new preoccupation with kingship, has caused him, says the same source, to thrust the red headed Magda Lupescu from his thoughts definitely, and turn over a new leaf. Mme. Lupescu is said to have become reconciled to the fact and is willing to remain in her little chalet in Switzerland.

Rumania is beginning to become reconciled to the impossibility of the reunion of Carol and Helene, and like her neighbor Bulgaria, before King Boris' marriage, is eagerly waiting for King Carol to instal a new queen.

GERMAN PROTEST ACCUSES POLAND OF "OPPRESSION"

Note to League Cites Ten Specific Instances.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—Charging that the German population in Polish Upper Silesia has suffered terrorism of the worst kind since the beginning of the election campaign in mid-October, and citing ten cases of outrage in detail, the German government today sent a note of protest to the league of nations council.

The note constitutes a vigorous and heavily documented denunciation of the treatment accorded the minority in that portion of Upper Silesia which the powers awarded to Poland.

The German speaking portion of the citizenry in Polish Upper Silesia either has been seriously hindered or prevented outright from exercising any franchise, the note charges.

Charge Acts of Terror.

Acts of terror, threats, the wholesale striking of German names from the registers and the general wholesale declaration of the votes for German candidates, complete some of the methods the Poles are accused of having used in their attempt to reduce German representation in the sejm. Such proceedings constitute a breach of article 67 of the Geneva convention, the note charges.

The note claims that the ten cases cited in detail do not make up the total register of outrages by a long way, but they serve as illustrations of the things the former Germans have to put up with under the new régime.

While admitting that high excitement is customary in Polish elections, the note protests the goings on of the month leading up to the elections. The past two Sundays, it says, exceeded the bound of permissible excitement and became an outright oppression, directed not against a party, but against a section of the population.

Cites Strong Arm Methods.

It especially remarks that the legionaires, or the government strong arm men, called on all the loyal citizens to vote openly, thus showing the watchers that they were supporting the government. Any one who failed to show his slip publicly was assumed to have voted for German candidates and could be effectually punished as soon as he came outside.

Discussing the striking of names from the list, the note charges that hundreds and even thousands of German speaking members of the population were removed from the lists because they could not prove their citizenship, although this has never before been questioned in the eight years since the plebiscite. Passports were not accepted as sufficient proof. It was necessary, the note says, to produce a special statement from the authorities, which had to be handed in within three days, but could not be procured in less than a week or ten days.

Charges Police Were Afraid.

The note particularly protests against the fact that the provincial governor, Grazynski, as honorary president of the local legionaries' organization, numbering 40,000, which, it is claimed, makes the police afraid to legionaires practice. Eight to ten legionaries practice. Eight to ten legionaries were present at each voting station and watched every ballot without eigther the police or the election commissioners protesting in any way, the protest says.

The note concludes by laying the bulk of the responsibility for the alleged terrorism at the door of the legionaries, and calls upon the council to take the necessary steps to put an end to the injustices and repressions under which the German population is suffering.

75 INVOLVED IN BORDER PATROL RUM CONSPIRACY

Big Bribery Scandal Is Bared in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Seventy-five present and former United States border customs patrol inspectors in the Detroit area are involved in charges of accepting bribes to allow smuggling of liquor into this country from Canada, federal authorities indicated tonight.

Warrants against six were signed this afternoon by J. Stanley Hurd, United States commissioner, on recommendation of Gregory H. Frederick, chief assistant district attorney, in charge of investigation of the patrol. Six other warrants had been issued previously. Names of those charged today were withheld.

Federal authorities said that at least 30 former inspectors would be indicted on graft charges, and that 45 others, against whom criminal charges could not be pressed, would be dropped from the force. The total force now is 150.

Reorganized in 1928.

In November, 1928, when 23 inspectors were indicted for graft, nearly all of the men then in the service here were dropped and the force reorganized.

Frederick asked for the six warrants issued today after the completion of testimony by Charles Basile, suspended inspector. Basile is said to have involved a number of other inspectors and alleged rum runners.

The six indicted today are alleged to have accepted bribes from three alleged rum runners, who were arrested Wednesday. Other inspectors are to testify before the federal grand jury and indictments against inspectors and Ecorse rum runners, charging conspiracy to violate the tariff act, will be sought.

Offence Extraditable.

Conspiracy is an extraditable offense, and this charge will enable federal officers to have arrested and returned to the United States a large number of rum runners who are said to have fled to Canada when the present investigation started.

In the 1928 border patrol scandal there was no conspiracy charge, and therefore no way of reaching those who fled to Canada.

HILDASCHROEDER, NAGHTEN HELD IN BONDS OF $370,000

Mrs. Hilda Schroeder and John Naghten, partners in an alleged $1,000,000 mortgage fraud; their secretary, Mrs. Rowena Sullivan, and her husband, John, were held on bonds totaling $370,000 by Judge Lyle in the Felony court yesterday. Trial of Mrs. Schroeder and Naghten was set for Dec. 10. The Sullivans are being held as material witnesses.

Among a score of victims was Mrs. Rose K. Rosted, 839 Ainslie street, who claimed to have lost $333,000. The complainants interrupted attorneys representing the defendant when the latter insisted that all transactions with the complainants were legitimate business deals with shouts of "It's a lie."

Schroeder and Naghten were recently extradited from Philadelphia. Mrs. Schroeder's bond was set at $180,000 and Naghten's at $150,000. Assistant nounced that he will seek indictments against them from the December grand jury.

NEW CRUISERS TO BE BACKBONE OF ATLANTIC FLEET

Admiral Pratt Announces Reorganization Plans.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The navy's new Washington treaty 10,000 ton 8 inch gun cruisers will be made the backbone of United States naval forces on the Atlantic ocean, it was disclosed today when Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, announced plans for a general reorganization of the fleet. All battleships except the Arkansas, a 12 inch gun vessel, to be used for training purposes, will be assigned to the Pacific. At least twelve 8 inch gun cruisers will be on the Atlantic.

On April 1, following a major fleet concentration at Panama, the United States fleet will be divided into four forces. The present battle fleet will be called the battle force and the scouting fleet becomes the scouting force. There will also be a submarine force and a base force. The present control force is eliminated.

Make Changes in Titles.

A senior type commander is established for each type of ship. This latter move is made, it was explained, to "facilitate and standardize the normal training, operation and maintenance of each type of ship."

The United States fleet, with its new forces, will be as at present under the command of an admiral with the title of commander in chief, United States fleet. There will be no change in the rank and title of Admiral John V. Chase, the present commander in chief. The battle force will be commanded by an admiral with the title of "commander battle force, United States fleet," and second in command, United States fleet. The scouting force commander will be a vice admiral with the title, "commander scouting force."

The 10,000 ton cruiser Chicago, when completed, will be a flagship of the United States fleet.

New Naval Policy.

Inauguration of type commanders establishes a new naval policy. Each type commander will exercise such control of vessels of the type attached to other forces as the commander in chief may direct. Each commander will submit for commander in chief's approval instructions for operation and maintenance of the type of vessels he commands, as well as studies of battle plans and dispositions for his type of ship.

The new plan was sponsored by Admiral Pratt. Its purpose is to effect better battle training.

MOTHER LOSES FIGHT ON RULE OF SON'S RICHES

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. yesterday overruled the appointment of Clarence Randall, vice president of the Inland Steel company, as administrator of the estate of the late David P. Thompson, director of the steel company. Thompson died intestate in Florida last March. His estate, valued at $3,750,000, is to go to his son, Alexis, 15 years old.

Randall was appointed administrator by Mrs. Millie Caffe Thompson Beaufort, Thompson's former wife. The appointment was upheld by Probate Judge Horner. Public Administrator Halbert O. Crews contested the appointment on grounds that Mrs. Beaufort, the boy's mother, as guardian had no right to appoint the administrator.

Attorney Carl Meyer, representing Mrs. Beaufort, announced that he would appeal. Crews' fee as administrator will be 6 per cent of the estate if he is successful in pressing his claim.

WEE U. S. ARMY SHY MUNITIONS AS WELL AS MEN

And Shortage Grows, Report Shows.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Assistant Secretary of War Frederick H. Payne today revealed that the American army is short of ammunition and war reserves as well as fighting men.

In his annual report, published forty-eight hours after Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired chief of staff, had warned that the regular army was 42,000 men short of the numbers needed for adequate national defense, Mr. Payne directed the attention of Secretary of War Hurley to constantly increasing shortages in war reserve supplies.

The Payne report also stressed the necessity of war department action to bolster up the waning strength of the officers' reserve corps, which in the last two years has seen its numbers recede from 102,779 active officers in 1928 to 79,285 of the same status in 1930.

Short of Planes, Too.

Earlier in the day Trubee Davison assistant secretary of war for aviation, stated in his annual report that the air corps was more than 20 per cent short of the number of serviceable airplanes provided by the 1926 army air expansion law for June 30, 1930.

Mr. Payne in his report emphasized that the war department supply of war reserves of material are lower today than at any time since the armistice.

"These stocks," he stated, "show many important shortages as measured by estimates based on mobilization and operation plans. Year by year these stocks have been depleted by deterioration and budgetary limitations.

Just Can't Catch Up.

"As mobilization and operation plans have been revised from time to time, the differences between war reserve stocks and war reserve requirements have become more pronounced. The money value of these differences is so large that no financial plan for balancing them has appeared practicable, and plans for augmentation of the more important items have made but slight progress."

MUST FREE 400 CONVICTS TO EASE JAM IN PRISON

Michigan Governor Told Need for More Cells.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—At the request of the warden of the new Jackson state prison, Gov. Fred W. Green today announced that he would parole 400 prisoners within two weeks to make room for new convicts.

The governor said no man will be released unless he can be assured of immediate employment. This statement was made at a meeting of the state prison commission in the governor's office.

If this is not done, wardens and the prison commission said, all penal institutions in the state will be crowded beyond capacity within the next few weeks.

At the same time John Miner, member of the prison board, suggested to the governor that a new prison be erected on an island to isolate habitual criminals and to take additional precautions to prevent their escape.

Miner favored High island in Lake Michigan, belonging to the House of David and formerly used as an "outcast colony," but Governor Elect W. M. Brucker suggested Charity island, also in Lake Michigan.

Miner's suggestion was a counter proposal to a plan offered by one of the prison wardens to erect a new reformatory for first offenders.

The Jackson penitentiary, receiving 200 prisoners monthly, is resulting in the greatest congestion. The warden said two men must be put in single cells unless accommodations are extended soon.

WINTER'S HERE!—ready to single out cars that are unprotected—ready to crack radiators and engine-blocks. Treacherous, too, for there may be warm days still to come. Your car needs protection now . . . sure, all-winter protection that can weather these shifting temperatures! A single filling of Eveready Prestone, the ONE-SHOT anti-freeze, makes your car safe for the season, and brings you lasting peace-of-mind!

Eveready Prestone is always in tune with the temperature . . . always ready to ward off the costly hazard of freezing. And always able to weather a midwinter hot spell. You never need test it or add to it. You'll never be annoyed by "barroom" fumes, or worried about a damaged finish on the hood of your car. But you will always be sure that your Eveready Prestone is on the job . . . doing its stuff in a cold snap.

Cars in the famous Goodrich Silver Fleet were protected with Eveready Prestone. The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association approves it 100%. The Byrd Antarctic Expedition used it at the coldest spot in the world.

Constant research has now developed Eveready Prestone to a point where it offers even greater satisfaction than that which more than a million motorists enjoyed last winter. The new Eveready Prestone is green in color, so that it can be readily identified.

Eveready Prestone is economical. Compared with other anti-freezes, a considerably smaller quantity is required . . . for one filling of Eveready Prestone lasts all winter, and it comes to you undiluted. For those who live in the South and other moderate climates, it is available in small-size cans. Under such conditions, many cars can be protected for as little as $2.50.

A few hours' delay may be costly! Go to your dealer or garage-man today. Have him protect your car with Eveready Prestone, taking the simple precautions to make the cooling-system water-tight.

The Eveready Hour, radio's oldest commercial feature, is broadcast every Tuesday evening at nine (Eastern standard time) from WEAF over a nation-wide N. B. C. network of 27 stations.

STAMPEDE TAX OFFICES WITH FINAL PROTESTS

Citizens File a Total of 25,000 Complaints.

The period alloted the taxpayers for filing complaints against the 1929 real estate valuations ended yesterday with a stampede of property owners to the offices of the board of review.

During one interval of the rush the board's clerical staff was utterly swamped. Confusion prevailed until twenty extra clerks were marshaled at the counters to attend the overflow.

Before the offices opened at 9 a. m., the waiting line was already stretched the length of the county building corridor. When the last stragglers had filed in their blanks at 8 p. m., Bernard A. Weaver, chief clerk of the board, estimated that 4,000 property owners had filed complaints. It was, said Mr. Weaver, a hectic day.

25,000 Complaints Filed.

The board had been accepting complaints for 16 days. The ordinary clerical staff of 42 had been tripled and the offices remained open as late as 11 p. m. Last night when the job was done, Mr. Bernard estimated that a total of 25,000 complaints had been filed against the assessments which are due on April 1, 1931.

Yesterday's throng was a variegated one, representing all strata of society. The worst jam came at 11 a. m., just before the extra clerks were called.

The struggling taxpayers kicked over chairs placed in rows for their convenience. Cottagers jostled officials of outlying banks. Aged widows from the Ghetto elbowed owners of suburban bungalows. Junior executives, burdened with first and second mortgages on suburban homes, squirmed through the crowds seeking places near the counters.

Women Make Protests.

More than half the complainants were women. Among the business men most were hopeful of reductions, but resigned to the worst. Many of the women were shrilly critical of the supposed favoritism afforded their neighbors.

A few expressed dread that they might fail to secure reductions and, for the most part, their fears were fulfilled. Generally their grounds for reduction ran to illness in the family, unemployment of the wage earning members, and absolute inability to pay, reasons which the board of review is compelled by law to regard as insufficient.

Weber Gives Views.

Two members of the board of review, Edward R. Litsinger and Charles V. Barrett, were elsewhere during the day. The third member, William H. Weber, being found observing the crowd, was asked to what he attributed the unusual number of complaints.

"It's not the valuations that they're sore about," said Mr. Weber. It's hard times and the high tax rate that have brought them in."

Random inquiry among the crowd indicated that the board member was at least partly right. There was Silver Lipski, a young tradesman at present unemployed, who had come down to file a complaint for his mother, Mrs. Sarah Lipski. She has owned her home at 1415 West 14th street for eighteen years, the son said.

"They've valued the place at $6,000," said young Lipski. "It isn't worth $2,500, because the district has become colored in the last few years. There's a mortgage on the house and I'm out of a job."

Blame Official Waste.

The same sentiment was voiced in different language by O. M. Hugen, a hardware merchant of the Lake View district. Mr. Hagen's complaint concerned an old homestead on Rokeby street near Cornelia.

"This tax rate is outrageous," he said. "The city government is wasteful and extravagant."

Arthur W. Main, an attorney representing clients of the Pioneer Trust and Savings bank said:

"I filed complaints for 15 property owners on whom the bank holds mortgages. In every case these people face confiscation of their property unless the tax valuations are reduced."

L. T. Neldow, a resident of Lake Geneva, Wis., and owner of a combination business and residence block at 3154 North Ashland avenue, compared conditions in his own state and Chicago. His property here is valued at $30,000 and the tax bill for 1928 was $822. His Lake Geneva home is valued at $10,000 and the tax bill last year was $25.

Mrs. B. W. Swift, wife of a printer, was among the last to file a complaint. The Swifts had purchased a home at 664 Circle avenue, Forest Park, some 14 years ago. The purchase price was $6,500, and the first tax bill was $40. The 1928 tax bill was $197.60, and the couple are expecting another increase for 1929.

"It makes me angry when I realize the waste these politicians get away with," commented Mrs. Swift. "Think of the men on the city pay rolls, some of them drawing $100 a day and doing nothing to earn it."

Addressing a luncheon of the Realty club of Chicago at the Hotel La Salle yesterday, John M. Pratt, executive director of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, stated that a revolt of taxpayers is already under way. He cited files of protests received by the association in the past two weeks as evidence of a "taxpayers' strike."

THOMPSON PLAN IS BARRED FROM MAIL AS LOTTERY

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder yesterday sent letters to the newspapers of Chicago advising that Mayor Thompson's project to boost business is a lottery and that newspapers carrying accounts of the enterprise are unmailable. The letter follows:

"This office is in receipt of a communication from the solicitor for the postoffice department Washington, D. C., under date of Nov. 21, 1930, advising with respect to a news article that appeared in a recent issue of your paper relating to a proposed plan of the mayor of this city whereby merchants will give tickets with purchases made at their stores which will entitle the holders to participate in a drawing for prizes amounting to $1,000,000.

"This scheme is a lottery, and when put into operation all matter of every kind in any relation thereto is unmailable under section 473, postal laws and regulations.

"Kindly be governed accordingly with reference to this enterprise."

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Mary Klinger, 80 years old, 2727 North Artesian avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received in a fall on the steps of St. John Berchm a's Belgian ca holic church at North Maplewood avenue and Logan boulevard on Nov. 7 after making a confession.

EXPERT ATTACKS PHYSICIANS FOR CANCER NEGLECT

Calls Medical Ignorance Chief Problem.

Dr. Francis Carter Wood, president of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, in an address before the Chicago Woman's club yesterday chided the American medical profession for its backwardness in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Dr. Wood declared there are so many low class physicians in practice who are ignorant of even the elementary facts about cancer that educational programs have been adopted by which the patients themselves are being taught what their doctors should tell them.

Force Doctors to Study.

"Our great problem," said Dr. Wood, "is to educate the doctors. We must increase the pressure from patients upon their doctors to make the doctors see the necessity of educating themselves. At the same time we must make available to the doctors the information they should possess."

Dr. Wood is also director of the cancer research institute of Columbia university and is the editor of the American Journal of Cancer. He cited specific instances in which physicians, through ignorance or carelessness, had failed to take the proper steps to make a proper diagnosis in cancer cases.

"It is of the greatest importance that cancerous growths be discovered in their earliest stages," Dr. Wood said. "Definite cures can then be effected. Often physicians have treated patients for tuberculosis when a proper investigation would disclose cancer, and often, too, these patients die because by the time a correct diagnosis is made the cancer has advanced beyond hope of surgical cure."

Calls Education Chief Hope.

The expert emphasized that while cancer research is of the greatest importance, the hope of present generations must be lodged principally in education.

"Of course," Dr. Wood said, "research is the fundamental thing in attacking cancer, but it is a long pull and may stretch over many years. At the present time we have no clews at all in the direction of curing cancer by medicines.

"But we can save lives today by broadcasting everywhere the information by which cancer patients may recognize their affliction, and by which they will be guided to physicians and clinics in a search of positive diagnosis and cure."

Dr. Wood announced that the journal he edits will give aid in a plan of the Chicago Woman's club and other groups allied in the Illinois branch of the American Association for the Control of Cancer. An article to be prepared detailing necessary information on cancer will be published in the journal, with illustrations in color, and it then will be reprinted by the journal in pamphlet form for distribution by the Illinois group to organizations, physicians and laymen throughout the state.

Dr. Bowman C. Crowell, executive secretary of the American College of Surgeons, who attended the meeting, joined with other physicians in a forum discussion of Dr. Wood's address.

"We are promoting efforts to establish clinics," said Dr. Crowell, "to which physicians may take patients who have symptoms of cancer and at which the physicians may hear their patients' cases discussed, a diagnosis made and treatment recommended. The patients then are returned to the physician for treatment along the lines indicated."

Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, president of the Illinois branch of the National Cancer society, introduced Dr. Wood to the audience, and participated in the discussion. Dr. William Peterson, professor of pathology at the University of Illinois, who is associated with the state committee on cancer, also was present.

DODGE, WHO CAUSED REMUS' ARREST, MAY HIMSELF GO ON TRIAL

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Joseph H. Dunnebacke, United States commissioner, today took under advisement the matter of returning to Savannah, Ga., for trial on perjury charges, Franklin Dodge, former prohibition investigator for the department of justice.

Dodge, who won notoriety at the murder trial of George Remus, Cincinnati bootleg king, whose arrest on liquor charges he had obtained, is charged with having given false testimony last May at the trial of George Brown, another convicted bootlegger, who has since died. Dodge had at the time left the federal service and appeared as a defense witness. His testimony, it is charged in the Georgia grand jury indictment, clashed with that given in secret reports when he was investigating Brown's activities for the government in 1923.

Dodge, who has been living here for several years, was accused by Remus during the latter's trial for the murder of his wife, of having conspired with Mrs. Remus to railroad him to prison in order that they might live off his fortune.

DR. VAN DYKE FLAYS LEWIS NOBEL AWARD

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The award of the 1930 Nobel prize in literature to Sinclair Lewis was characterized as an "insult" to this country by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Princeton professor and former minister to the Netherlands, here today.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Business Men's Association of Germantown, Dr. Van Dyke asserted that the Swedish academy "gave America a very backhanded compliment in choosing the author of "Main Street" and "Elmer Gantry" for this years' highest award in literature. The Lewis novels, he held, do not "honestly represent" the best in American literature.

Dr. Van Dyke criticized generally the "present day school of scoffing writers" and said: "Choice of the author of 'Main Street' and the rest of these novels that scoff at America and its traditions for the Nobel prize is an insult to America. It shows that the Swedish academy knows nothing of the English language. They handed Lewis a bouquet, but they gave America a very back-handed compliment."

The speaker asserted that in "Main Street" there "isn't a girl with whom you would fall in love."

SENATE OR CIRCUS?

As the short session of congress approaches, the Republican regulars find that they don't know what to do to appease the thirteen radicals who may be depended on to wreck what they cannot run and are expected to wreck what they do run. The danger is that unless the bills demanded by the radicals are passed the necessitous work of the session cannot be done before March 4. If the regulars find the solution they seek it is bound to be an interesting exhibit of conciliation or surrender.

Party government in the senate is more of a theory than a fact. The majority party loses its majority in nearly all questions which seriously touch its alleged doctrines. Possibly the fiction that the Republican party can include Mr. Norris and Mr. Fess, Mr. Borah and Mr. Bingham, does something to hold off the recognition that the senate actually is organized by blocs and that party responsibility is gone, but it is fiction. If keeping it up will get the party government system back on its feet again after an indefinite period it may be worth cherishing. At present the senate is a volatile assemblage dominated by individuals who know what they want and who shift their connections according to their addictions. The two party system is a three party system in the senate, although not in elections, and the plain tendency is to dispose of the party and release the individual to his own caprice or determination.

THE STOCK SHOW FOR CONFIDENCE.

The International Live Stock show opens at the stockyards today. It is a great show in any year, but this year it seems to have an added value. Business is in a slump and a great many people who ought to know better seem to have the idea that the nation is becoming impoverished. We recommend a visit to the stock show as an antidote.

The real wealth of the country is as great or greater than ever it was. Better meat animals are being bred than ever before and knowledge of how best to care for them is constantly growing and permeating down to the individual farmer. The same process is at work improving our food and feed grains. The millions which have been invested by federal and state governments in agricultural experiment and education have wrought a revolution in the business of farming. Amazing improvements in agricultural machinery have, of course, helped to make the changes possible. Today it is difficult to believe that only a few centuries ago famine was a constant menace to life. Our word "starve" is related to the German verb "sterben," to die. Starvation was so common a cause of death that one word could be made to serve the two meanings. Even our word "swelter," now used to describe the physical discomfort caused by hot weather, once meant to suffer from hunger. It was the universal cause of suffering. Hunger and the diseases caused by inadequate diets cursed mankind through the centuries until almost our own day. Even now, in the orient, starvation still holds its menace.

The conquest of famine was a vastly more difficult task than confronts the western world today. Our problem now is not one of production but the relatively simpler matter of distribution. Our ancestors had to learn how to improve varieties of beasts and grain, how to increase the yield of the fields while decreasing manual labor, and how to store the accumulated products when harvested. All of these problems have been met and solved with the aid of science. The result is that materially we are vastly richer and happier today than men a few generations ago dreamed was possible. Any one who can see that conquest in perspective will face the business recession of today with few misgivings. Go to the stock show for confidence in the present and in the future.

THEY CAN'T AFFORD STEAM LINES.

The information that many of the suburban railroad lines in the vicinity of Berlin have been converted from steam to electric operation may come as a surprise to some Americans. Chicago, in particular, has been told so often that the costs of electrification are prohibitive that it is a little difficult for us to understand how post-war Germany, impoverished by its war debts and the dislocation of its foreign trade, can have undertaken it.

Nevertheless, that is the fact. The latest bulletin of the National Electric Light association covering the electrification of steam railroads notes with regard to Germany:

"Complete electrical operation was instituted May 15, 1929, on the Berlin City and Ring railway and adjoining suburban lines, adding 26 miles to the electrified suburban lines. . . . Most of the 195 [electric] locomotives ordered in 1927 and 1928 were delivered and placed in service; also 237 motor cars, 134 control trailers and 80 plain trailers for the Berlin suburban lines. . . ."

This is doing pretty well for a country which is managing with difficulty to keep a jump ahead of the international sheriff. If we are to believe what our railroad executives tell us, we are forced to conclude that the Germans have permitted their worries to destroy their common sense and their judgment of values.

Fortunately, we have evidence that this is far from the truth. The truth is that Berlin is too poor to afford steam operation. THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent in Berlin recently interviewed Dr. Karl Remy, the general manager of the system, only to learn that electrical operation, despite its initial costs, results in increased profits. Electrification pays because it attracts business and at the same time reduces the costs of operation.

Dr. Remy manages steam as well as electric lines in suburban territory and is therefore in a position to make comparisons. He finds that the electrified lines increase the number of passengers carried by 15 per cent. The unit cost of operation is reduced some 30 per cent. The speed of trains is increased 25 per cent. Despite greater speed, the safety of operation is enhanced. He finds, as do American railroad executives who have electrified important terminals, that the expenditure is fully warranted.

PEOPLES WITHOUT SWORDS.

The league of nations preparatory disarmament conference has adopted a rule making the limitations of the treaty of Versailles affecting defeated nations paramount to all agreements for reduction of military establishments. The proposal that nothing to be considered would release the defeated from the restrictions of the treaty was made by Rene Massigli of France. It was protested by Count von Bernstorff for Germany and voted against by Turkey, Italy, Russia and Bulgaria in addition to Germany.

Continental Europe would seem to be settling down into two alliances again with Scandinavia and Spain aloof and Great Britain in grandmotherly flutter of unpredetermined self-interest. It is France, Poland and the little entente against victims of the peace treaty plus Italy, plus Russia.

In the illusions of altruists who mistook a soft head for a soft heart the treaty of Versailles was the vade mecum of a universal disarmament. Germany was given the post of honor in this still nobler experiment and had forced upon it the privilege of presenting a spectacle of a great nation unarmed and inclosed by warlike camps. Although that would have at first the appearance of punishment inflicted by distrustful victors it ultimately was to afford the model to which all other nations would aspire. They would first make Germany assume perfection and then they in turn would try to attain it.

The scheme lacks grace, although in its practical form it was neither unexpectable nor strange, whether wise or not. The victors were on top a nation which had been robust and dangerous. It had been so strong and so willing to use its strength that they had barely escaped from it with whole skins and they didn't have much else. The natural instinct was to tie that fellow up while there was a chance so that he might not get loose again. There had been so much service of all the moralities on the allied side that this carried over into the pragmatic and punitive peace and it was to appear as a stepping stone to general holiness.

The altruistic veneer wore off as soon as it got out in the weather and the realities of the business were all uncovered. The resolution of M. Massigli, adopted by the conference, has the present value of an irritant and the future value of a nullity. The league of nations tries to determine causes and consequences of twenty years from now by what it puts in the records of its secretariat. It tries to legislate chains on the future and it only increases the determination to break them. The doctrine that the republic of Germany shall be the eternal pariah of Europe has some sort of lunacy for a father.

LOS ANGELES PLAYS IN FORM.

The voters of Los Angeles a few weeks ago refused to authorize a bond issue of $2,000,000 for the purchase of a right of way between their city and the site of the Hoover (née Boulder) dam. We confess to a lack of information regarding this matter and a desire for some.

The contracts for construction of the dam were not to be let until after contracts had been closed for the sale of enough power to repay the government for its expenditures. Los Angeles was the most important of the prospective customers, we believe. Now Los Angeles is shown to be unwilling to invest in a right of way which, we assume, was to be used for a transmission line to draw off its share of the current. This is in line with the usual California practice. Los Angeles no doubt expects to have the federal government build the line, and for our part we shall be astonished if Los Angeles is put to any expense whatever in the matter. The federal income tax payers who are concentrated for much the most part east of the Mississippi will be required to pay not only for the dam but also for the transmission line. As the $2,000,000 which Los Angeles has refused to pay is only about 1 per cent of the cost of the dam, the additional charge against the federal treasury will be made to appear negligible to congressmen from other sections.

Meanwhile we wonder what the effect of the refusal of Los Angeles to vote the bond issue will have upon the project as a whole. If the federal government were really concerned to get its money back, it would hardly put much faith in Los Angeles' promises, for the promises have not been backed in the only way they can be supported.

Editorial of the Day

[Baltimore Sun.]

A reform in operation of the municipal government rarely shows results so concrete as to leave no room for dispute as to its effectiveness. But the reform inaugurated in the bureau of receipts under the Jackson administration, upon the advice of the efficiency and economy commission, has proved to be an exception to the rule.

It has practically cleaned up the delinquent tax situation. A statement given out by the bureau of receipts estimates that tax arrearages at the close of the present year will not run over $1,700,000. How important this result is to the finances of the city may be illustrated by the unhappy condition in which Philadelphia finds itself, owing to neglect to follow the example set here. The mayor of that city states that delinquent taxes amount to $22,000,000.

The contrast here to this deplorable showing is worth citing as demonstrating that business men who dig into the workings of city government, instead of merely talking about "business administrations," and who insist that municipal business can be made to approximate more nearly the efficiency shown in private business, often know what they are talking about.

EARDRUM ABSCESSES.

ABSCESSES of the middle ear will have very few after effects if the pus is drawn off promptly and if adequate drainage is maintained until suppuration has stopped.

At this year's meeting of the American Medical association the specialists in ear diseases spent some time in discussing the treatment of suppuration of the middle ear. When the meeting adjourned they had agreed on the statement with which this article opened, but there the agreement came to an end. When the question arose of how the middle ear was to be drained there was disagreement of all kinds.

Dr. J. A. Pratt precipitated the fray by telling how he did it. He spends some time showing some lay member of the family how to roll a pledget of absorbent cotton on a toothpick, how to delicately insert this in the ear canal until it touches the eardrum, and then how to remove the toothpick and leave the cotton behind. If there is much pus the excess must be cleaned out with swabs before one such is left in. The swab is changed as often as it becomes half soaked with pus, whether this be once every five minutes or once every five hours.

Most of the physicians disagreed with Dr. Pratt. They did not think a layman thitherto untrained could get cotton down to the eardrum, at least not properly so. Dr. Richards had the same plan, but he used a different method. He uses a short meshed wick made from remnants secured from a twine mill. One end of this wick is placed against the eardrum. The other end is surrounded by absorbent cotton. One wick, properly placed, will drain satisfactorily for about two days. The drained pus flows into the absorbent cotton and this should be changed as often as it becomes soiled. The patient goes to the physician's office to have the wick changed.

Other physicians made use of other methods. All were agreed on the importance of draining off the discharges. Most of them thought the patient should go to a hospital, where this could be done more skillfully and more thoroughly.

FIND THE TROUBLE.

Mrs. H. C. M. writes:

What are the cause and cure of hives? I have been tormented with them for the last three months and I am becoming desperate. Is it a skin disease or a blood disorder? The minute I get the least bit warm I break out all over with this tantalizing disorder. Is it advisable to take warm baths? It seems when I do I break out worse than ever.

REPLY.

I have written so frequently on this subject this year that I itch when I think of it. Let's write finis on it for a while. A person with hives is sensitized to something. That something may be any one of many foods or it may be something else. The blood has nothing to do with the case. Treating with medicine is like pouring water on a duck's back. Find the cause by trial. Having found it, avoid it. That's all.

AVOIDING STOOP OF AGE.

E. F. B. writes: Noticing that my friends in the fifties were becoming bowed, settled in the hips, and developing prominent abdomens and heavy tread, I devised the following method to prevent.

On retiring I place my pillow under my back, extend my arms freely above my head, stretching all the muscles of my trunk. When I am ready to sleep I shift my pillow to the usual position. When I awaken in the morning I repeat this program.

REPLY:

Your plan should help you to keep from developing a stoop and showing some of the changes in posture which go with advancing years.

DEFAULTING PAYMENTS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mr. A. bought a truck from a motor company, figuring on getting a contract for hauling, and signed for the truck to be paid on installment plan, the notes being turned over to an investment company. A. did not get the contract and defaulted on the first three payments. The truck was taken away from him by the motor sales company without leaving a receipt therefor or notifying the investment company. Motor company secured judgment and placed lien on his house and chattel mortgage on his furniture. 1. Does Mr. A. have to pay for the truck taken for default of payment without getting receipt for it? 2. What can be done to have the lien taken off his house and furniture? 3. Would owner have to pay to take lien off so he could have his house back? 4. If owner has to pay balance on truck could he make Mr. A. pay him or garnishee his wages providing he secured work? 5. Please let me know where to secure advice. C. M.

1 The papers probably were so worded as to authorize sale for the buyer's account and holding the buyer for any deficiency on such sale.

2. Apparently, the time for any hearing on the merits has passed. In such case the way to set aside a judgment is to pay it.

3. Yes.

4. We do not understand how there is any question of the real estate owner paying the balance on the truck.

5. You might go over your facts in a personal interview with the legal aid bureau of the United Charities, 208 North Wabash avenue. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Necessary action to make the unimproved intersection of Meade avenue and Eddy street passable has been taken.

CLAIM AGAINST ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I loaned $200 to a party on a note in June, 1922. The borrower has since died. I would like to know if I could collect from the estate, which was taken to Probate court about two weeks ago. The estate is in Indiana. P. A. C.

You should file a claim in the probate proceedings. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW.

Hold on, everybody, congress meets Monday; regulars, insurgents, wets, drys, administration, anti-administration, lame ducks, Sen. Heflin, and everything. Football's over, the stock market gives everybody a pain in the neck, and a cold, remorseless winter is upon us. The days are cold and dark and the blizzards are blowing in from the northwest. Unemployment stalks among us, prosperity stays around the corner; we are a little sad and we need a good cheering up. So, come on, congress, whatever you do is going to be funny. Come on now and make it snappy.

GYPSY DEATH.

They hung a gypsy maiden and they hung her very high,
There was one star, a red star, shining in the sky;
They watched her swinging, swinging on a silhouetted tree,
They said she stole their flour and a half a pound of tea.

Underneath the little star the gypsy fire was bright,
And all the songs of vagrancy were running sweet that night.
Oh, Romany had violins to play a funeral song,
A dance note, a chance note, the gypsies swept along.

They traveled down the silver road to find the village mob,
And some of them could curse a bit but none of them could sob;
One girl played a tambourine and one man had a fiddle,
They formed a circle round the tree and he was in the middle.

I loved the music in her voice, the gypsy's lover said,
And when the winds of spring were green I followed where she led.
I've danced with her on moon mad nights, we've bathed in slim blue pools,
You hung her, you swung her, you pack of wicked fools.

She never took a husband from a good or faithless wife,
She never trampled on a dream in all her wandering life;
She never crushed a body's heart with mischief from her tongue,
But you killed her, you stilled her, like a snake that stung.

But she'll be back again, again, the gypsy chorus rang,
Her soul is green and white and gold and souls can never hang.
You'll rot in coffins when you die, wrapped close in shrouded goods,
Her eyes were pools of amethyst . . . she dances in the woods. . . .

HELEN WELSHIMER.

WE JUST CAN'T understand why Army is playing Notre Dame this afternoon. O' course, if it's to give Rockne's Irish a pleasant workout and something in the nature of a merry romp and also furnish a nice trip to the West Point lads, why, of course, we know at once why the game is being played. But if it's being pulled off with the idea that Notre Dame can be beat—oh, tck, tck, tck! It's really just a waste of time.

"JAILS SOCIETY BOOTLEGGER."—Chianer. Goodness, if its bootlegger is jailed how is society going to have its cocktails? Well, maybe there'll be another one come blowing along. Let us all be of good cheer and remember the old adage, "There's never one bootlegger jailed but another one pops right up in his place." Oh, there's the telephone; it's some one who says he's Max; yes, that would be the new bootlegger.

LISSEN, ART; BE REASONABLE!

Dear Mr. Lueder: We have noticed on all your mail wagons your latest slogan—Shop Early and Mail Early—and it's all right and shows you're a good postmaster. BUT—Friday, Dec. 5, is the time the new Linebook comes out and we can't change it. However, Friday, Dec. 5, ought to be early enough to suit you. And that will give time even for people who are sending the Linebook as a Christmas present to their folks and Uncle Jim and Aunt Laura in Thibet, Ooglewalla, Wash., Madagascar, Boston, Mass., Egypt, or Cape Colony, South Africa, to get a good running start. Your Shop Early and Mail Early, Art, is good, but you should also tell 'em that the Linebook is out next Friday, Dec. 5, and to address all orders to The Tribune Public Service Office, No. 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Cook County, Ill. And you might also mention that the Linebook is 10 cents (one dime, the tenth part of a dol-lah) when called for in person, or 12 cents by mail. Yours for Early Shopping— ET CET AND ET CET.

AND ABOUT seventeen people wrote us yesterday to tell us about the headline in THE TRIB—"Municipal Judges Take Baths"—but we fail to see anything comical about it. It's perfectly all right for judges or any one else to take a bath. The only trouble is with a man who sings in the bath tub. Unless it can be proved to us that some of the judges sing in the bath tub we shall take no further notice of the fact that judges take baths.

AMSTERDAM.—A telegram from Thorn, West Prussia, gives an army order issued by Gen. von Hindenburg, commander of the German army in Russian Poland, stating that "in the severe fighting lasting several days my troops brought to a standstill the offensive of the numerically superior Russian army." The order repeats a message from Emperor William congratulating Gen. von Hindenburg on his success and promoting him to the rank of field marshal. It is also stated in the order that more than 60,000 prisoners have been taken by the Germans.

AMSTERDAM.—According to a Berlin message to the Telegraaf, Cairo reports that 76,000 Turkish troops under Izzet Pasha are marching against the Suez canal. This army includes 10,000 Bedouins with 500 camels

LONDON.—A Boulogne correspondent says: "The Germans have collected 700,000 men in the neighborhood of Arras, where they are preparing for a determined effort to break through the allies' lines. Heavy fighting already has begun."

PARIS.—Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the noted American surgeon, and Mrs. Katherine Duer Mackay, who, until sh. was divorced in Paris last February, was the wife of Clarence H. Mackay, were quietly married here. The ceremony was performed within 24 hours after Mrs. Catherine Ketcham Blake, the surgeon's first wife, was granted a divorce at Winsted, Conn.

MANILA.—Crushed and battered beyond hope of repair and at last scuttled by the crew which deserted it the United States auxiliary cruiser Yosemite lies at the bottom of the ocean. Five men perished and the entire crew narrowly escaped death when the disaster overtook the ship. The loss of the Yosemite is one of the incidents of the terrific typhoon which devastated the island of Guam on Nov. 13, wiped out two towns, and killed hundreds of natives.

CHICAGO.—Inspector Max Heidelmeier walked into the saloon of Adolph Knapp, 309 Division street, discovered a "Thanksgiving turkey raffle," confiscated the turkey, machine, and paddles, carried them to his buggy and took them to the East Chicago avenue police station. The inspector was all alone on the raid.

LONDON.—The Daily Mail's war expert says: "The situation in South Africa is distinctly disquieting. Gen. De Wet and President Steyn have seized De Wetsdorp probably with the object of invading Cape Colony. The British seem everywhere on the defensive."

PARIS.—The French ministry decided to accept no interpellations in the chamber of deputies on the subject of arbitration between Great Britain and the Boer republics. President Kruger was informed by M. Delcasse that France will not take the initiative in proposing intervention in South Africa but will not discourage any other country from doing so.

THE KEY TO PROSPERITY!

Williamsport, Ind., Nov. 26.—The greatest single class of buyers in the United States is the farming class. Farmers, in the census of 1930, are classified as: Farmers who live on their farms; farmers who live in towns or villages and rent their lands; tenants living on farms; farm hands; and all the dependent children, parents, brothers or sisters, and any others who may be dependent upon these active ones for their living. These classes number more than forty millions in this country. Their buying power depends upon the money the farm produces, and that depends upon the price received for live stock, grain and other feeds. If the price is below the cost of production these classes will have no buying power except for the barest necessities. But if the price shows a profit above the cost of production their buying power will proportionately expand. That makes what we know as prosperity.

The secret, then, of restoring prosperity is simple. It does not lie in running factories to produce goods for which there is no demand. Nor does it lie in hiring a few hundred thousand to build roads or dig waterways. What would a few hundred thousand amount to as compared to forty millions? The secret, then, is to restore the buying power of the farm classes, forty millions of people. How? Let congress repass the farm bills that have been vetoed by the last three Presidents and give them a fair trial. When one man, wearing no more than a 7¼ hat, vetoes a bill passed by six hundred legislators without giving the law a tryout it is, to say the least, rather presumptuous. When Grundy asked for a tariff law higher than ever had been known it was signed by the President without raising a question as to its disastrous effect. It has already driven fifteen hundred factories over to Canada, and threatens to impede our exports by retaliatory tariffs. Why not give the forty millions in the farming class the benefit of the doubt, as they did for Grundy, and probably the dire prophecies of our 7¼ Presidents might turn out to be as unfounded as other dire prophecies turned out to be when other good laws were passed. If they do not produce the results hoped for, then try something else. But the secret of restoring prosperity is to restore the buying power of the forty millions in the farming class.

FREE UNIFORMS.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—I don't believe the community would be benefited to any extent if Mr. Bently's suggestion under the caption "Uniforms for Truck Drivers," in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 19, was carried out. REPLY FROM REGIONAL FORESTER.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—My attention has been called to your editorial titled "A Bureau Approves Itself," in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 5.

From a newspaper with a national standing of THE TRIBUNE, which professes to be a friend of forestry, we feel that such an editorial was both uncalled for and unsubstantiated by facts. If you had taken the trouble to carefully read the circular, "How the National Forests of California Benefit the State," you would have noted that the "investigation" was not made alone by forest service officers but in cooperation with such disinterested agencies as state and county officials and the like, in order to insure accurate and unbiased results. Also, that the data given are not presented for the purpose of justifying the existence of a government bureau, but to throw true light on a question often propounded by citizens of the west.

The United States forest service in California, which administers an area over half the size of the state of Illinois, does not have to resort to unofficial or questionable methods to justify its existence and usefulness. Probably in no other state of the Union is the value of national forests and what they mean to the economic and social welfare of the state more fully appreciated and the forest ranger held in higher esteem, than by the citizens and newspapers of California. To deny to the forest service the right to fairly study and publicly report upon problems pertinent to its own and the state's business is to withhold the only means at its command whereby taxpayers can accurately judge whether or not their property and interests are being adequately protected and efficiently managed. S. B. SNOW,
Regional Forester.

BONUSES FOR PROSPERITI.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—The largest thing that the government could do is relieve the unemployment situation would be to pay the ex-service men their adjusted compensation. This would put in circulation some six or seven billion dollars. These men could buy—and by buying create a demand—and by creating a demand they would create work for thousands in every line of work. COURTLAND SYMMES.

ELECTION POSTERS.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Every candidate should be required to see that his posters are all removed within sixty days following the election day. He pai. for men to put up those posters; now he should pay men to remove them. That would give a little aid to the unemployed and would improve the looks of the city. J. M. M.

FLIGHT OVER SOUTH POLE DESCRIBED BY BYRD

MARY BORDEN TELLS LONDON AUTHORS' STORY

More Shy than U. S. Variety, She Says.

BY MARY BORDEN.
[Author of "The Woman with White Eyes," etc.]

We must first picture the background. The quiet, the sleepiness, the winter fog, and the fireside. For literary London thrives in the winter and disburses in the spring to cottages in the country. And the glowing hearth, the drawn curtains, the sense of darkness and damp beyond them, and a group of lazy looking comfortable people around a tea table is characteristic. We writers in London are modest folk. We live like chipmunks, rabbits, or beavers: shy wild creatures compared to the American species.

There are two quarters of London which stand for something special in it the literary and artistic world: Bloomsbury and Chelsea. There is a great difference between them. Chelsea is sedate. It is haunted by the past. The pre-Raphaelites made it what it is. William Morris, Burne Jones, and Rossetti were its famous figures.

Views Changing London.

Following them came Whistler, then Sargent, then Strachey, and the Trevelyans. Tite street and Cheyne walk have an old world shabby elegance. Bloomsbury, on the other hand, is the home of the bolsheviks of art, the rebels who try to imitate the gayety of Paris Bohemia under the wet blanket of the English climate. Bloomsbury is powerful in the world of letters. It controls a good deal of literary criticism and intimidates by mockery. It adores Virginia Wolfe, has taken to its somewhat inhuman heart, David Garnett, author of "Lady Into Fox" and "No Love." It is the enemy of all sentimentality except its own, and it is so much cleverer than any other group that most of us tremble before it.

The big world of England is not interested in writers. The arts are not fashionable and cannot compete with fox hunting, racing, or politics. At a lunch or dinner party in Paris, it is the usual thing to talk of a sale at the Maison Druot, or a new exhibition of paintings, or a new musical composition. It is not so in London and I, married to a man that likes to hunt the fox, and is involved in politics, am aware of the fact when I am with these dashing important people that it is tactful to keep my literary self out of sight. Sometimes I think that these gay sportsmen are right in thinking us, the writers, painters, and musicians, a bore. Usually I feel this when I have taken my husband to a literary party. They are rather dismal affairs in England, for it is not always true that a brilliant writer is a brilliant talker.

Talk as They Write.

George Bernard Shaw and Noel Coward talk the way they write and write the way they talk, and the result is equally exhilarating, but more often the writer is a dumb animal. Maurice Baring is so shy that unless he is with a group of intimate cronies he whispers in monosyllables. James Barrie has been known to start to speak at a dinner table, close his lips quickly, pull out his shirt cuff and make a note on it in pencil of the idea he was loathe to share with his neighbor and prefers to save for a manuscript that lies waiting on his study table.

And yet, taken together, the private lives and public performance of these people is an interesting study, for the two make a complete personality of a divided one. I don't allude to that old controversy about a good man being necessarily a bad artist or a good artist being necessarily a bad man. I don't think it very true or very interesting. The interesting fact is more subtle. It has to do with the force of the imagination. It is the imagination that makes a man write and it is the same imagination that makes him behave differently from other people since it creates for him an actual world which does not very closely resemble the world of the unimaginative.

Maurice Baring is what I would call a subconscious artist. He has told me that he never works over his manuscript, cannot correct his own proofs, that he could not write at all if he did not write without effort. It is almost unconscious of his own thoughts. They flow from him.

Mysterious Edgar Wallace.

I think Edgar Wallace is the conscious genius, perfectly aware always of what he is doing, with a complete intellectual control of his medium. His sales power has become legendary. It is said that he sits in a glass cage with five telephones and five secretaries sitting outside and that he keeps them all going. He dictates a detective story to one, a play to another, a movie to the third, a magazine article to the fourth, and notes of new plots for new stories to a fifth.

When his mind gags on one of these, he switches off instantly to another and keeps them all occupied. A friend in the publishing world told me that he lunched with Edgar Wallace in London the other day and the latter told him that he had taken a character for his next play, engaged his complete cast, fixed on the date of the opening night, and all he had to do now was to write the play. He was perfectly confident that he could do this in a couple of days and he was everybody concerned with the undertaking, and rightly so. I suppose that he is one of the most phenomenal men of the literary world. I put him very high as a playwright. The play "On the Spot" which is now Chicago, written after a 24 hour visit in this city, is a first class play and in no sense a cheap melodrama, and the play that preceded it called "The Calendar," which was about racing, was to my mind technically the most perfect piece of dramatic writing that I have seen for a long time. And I think that his life must be very harmonious, for his great amusement is the race course and the story is that he loses at Newmarket, Goodwood, or Epsom a good deal of the money he makes on his thrillers.

Both Weighty Writers.

I could go on at length. I would like to paint portraits of Arnold Bennett and H. G. Wells, both weighty writers, Bennett who loves Ritz hotels and has written an apotheosis of a hotel in "Imperial Palace." Wells, the brawny stalwart, of terrific imagination, who would like to reform the world. Or show you John Galsworthy, presiding with great charm and dignity as president of the P. E. N. club, at a dinner given for some distinguished foreign man of letters. Or I could talk to you about George Barnard Shaw, who is afraid to come to America, who tells me that he has often created characters in his plays whom he has met for the first time in the flesh afterwards, who is one of the founders of the Fabian society, a strong supporter of the Socialist party in spite of the fun he makes of them in "The Apple Cart," who is a friend of all young writers, and the greatest advertisement for a vegetarian diet that I have ever known. He usually comes upstairs three steps at a time and has the vigor and enthusiasm of a boy.

Then there is Michael Arlen, writer of great talent, who unfortunately fell in love with Mayfair as some men do with woman, and P. G. Wodehouse, who loves a joke so much that he has found out how to be happy in Hollywood.

I haven't space to go on about these people and I want to conclude by saying I think it a pity that there should be so much to say about them; for it is seriously my conviction that artists should have no private lives. I think that writers should live as monks do or nuns, isolated, cut off from the world, for to quote, I believe that "art is news of reality that can't be told in any other way, and that only in loneliness and silence can the artist 'listen in' to the source of that reality."

Lady Charnwood's Book Holds Writing of World's Famous

Lady Charnwood, the wife of the Lincoln biographer, has written a book about her lifelong hobby, "An Autograph Collection and the Making of It" [Holt]. She started collecting autographs during her childhood, and her intimate friend, Sir Edmund Gosse, to whom her book is dedicated, was able to assist her very materially.

During her life she has met most of the prominent literary figures of the day. Her book contains many intimate glimpses of the great and the near-great, and anecdotes and pleasant personal memories.

Lady Charnwood makes the point that too narrow an interpretation is all too often put on the term autograph, and she never admits to her collection simply a bare signature. The autograph in her sense must be a document in itself of some significance.

Among the prizes in the collection are letters of Charlotte Bronte, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Lord Byron, Charles Dickens, Disraeli, George Eliot, David Garrick, Samuel Johnson, John Stuart Mill, Lord Nelson, Samuel Pepys, Samuel Richardson, George Sand, Shelley, Sheridan, Swinburne, and Voltaire. Many of the letters appear here in print for the first time.

Changing World Is Viewed Through Economist's Eyes

In "The World's Economic Dilemma" [McGraw Hill], Ernest Minor Patterson, professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania and also the president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, examines the conflicting elements in the world's present economic structure. He makes particular reference to the effects of modern large scale production, the gold standard, the struggle for markets, the tremendous growth of international corporate interests upon the economic balance of the world.

Victoria's Era Still Holding Its Interest

For the Newer Writers Tell About It.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—At the moment the Victorians are attracting more attention in literary London than the writers of the present day. We have Dr. Wingfield-Stratford's generally serious picture of the whole period, and several smaller works dealing with particular aspects of the Victorian era—such, for example, as Mr. Dudley Harbron's "Amphion" [which is about architecture and everything else] or Mr. F. L. Lucas' "Eight Victorian Poets.". And there are really innumerable biographies and critical essays upon single figures from the great assembly.

Mr. Herbert Read's study of Wordsworth should be of the first importance. Mr. Read is recognized as one of the ablest among the "highbrow" critics; and he is the latest of the Clark lecturers at Cambridge to collect his lectures into volume form. An earlier lecturer was Mr. E. M. Forster, whose "Aspects of the Novel" is already classic.

More Victorians Revived.

Nor is Mr. Read alone among the biographers, for there has been published, in preparation for the centenary, a full length life history and criticism of Christina Rossetti, who has never before, as far as I know, been so handsomely treated, although the love of her poetry has been increasing for many years. As if this were not enough, we have a serious study of W. E. Henley, by Mr. Kennedy Williamson. Henley is chiefly known [apart from the poem in which he said that he was the captain of his soul] as the man who collaborated with R. L. Stevenson, and who, when the late Graham Balfour's official life of Stevenson was published, wrote a review of that work in which he protested against the portrait of Stevenson as a saint. That review made a terrible stir when it appeared, and Henley was never forgiven. But he was a celebrated editor and a great personality; and as one reads Mr. Williamson's pages one realizes what a brave heart was hidden under the roaring voice of Henley.

The man was a cripple, and he made no song about his infirmity; but it was that infirmity that led him to flourish literary swords and bludgeons. Those who are Stevensonians should all read Mr. Williamson's life of his friend, for if it sometimes has to make bricks without straw it contains much that is interesting and valuable.

New Life of Burns.

A new life of Burns, although it cannot be called "Victorian," must be mentioned here. It is a very candid piece of work, and will take its place high among the contributions to Burns literature. But it is also interesting on account of its authorship. Mrs. Carswell is the wife of Donald Carswell, who lately wrote a rather severe biography of Sir Walter Scott; and she is a novelist who has written at least one novel of importance. This was called "Open the Door," and it won a prize when it was published. It had rather a curious history also, for it had been accepted by another firm of publishers when Mrs. Carswell, urged by a friend to do so, asked whether she might enter it for competition.

The publishers who were going to publish it agreed, the book was submitted for the competition, won the prize, and was published, of course, by the prize offering firm. I doubt if subsequent novels have been quite as good; but of Mrs. Carswell's talent there can be no question at all.

Why London Is Stirred.

There are two "sensations" in London bookland at the moment. One of them is the publication of a series of new full length novels, bound in paper, at a price that is less than half the customary price for novels; and the other is Mr. Somerset Maugham's novel, "Cakes and Ale." The first book of the new series is Mr. Louis Marlow's "The Lion Took Fright," and Mr. Marlow is the author of a much admired work called "Two Made Their Bed." The publishers are a new firm [but an offshoot from a firm already known] called "Mundamus, Ltd."

As to Mr. Maugham's book, I think it will chiefly interest and amuse literary people. The author has denied that he had Thomas Hardy in mind in drawing his hero; and he has also denied privately any thought of drawing the minor portrait of a living novelist well known in the United States. But nothing will stop chatter, and the book is still causing a great deal of agitation and excitement.

Writes About Wells.

As Mr. Maugham has been in London recently, attending the final rehearsals of his new play, "The Breadwinner," he had to undergo a good deal of cross-examination. Under his air of mildness he has a mind of electrifying speed and confidence; and although the words "hard" and "cynical" are the adjectives applied on all hands to his new play, the novel, "Cakes and Ale," quite apart from its portraits or not portraits, contains a great deal that is both wise and humane. When the tumult dies it will be seen to be something more than an attempt to score off dead and living literary men.

Mr. Geoffrey West's book about Mr. H. G. Wells is nearly ready. It was begun as a critical study; but as the author worked upon the book, with the aid of Mr. Wells, who has shown him great kindness, the biographical aspects of the subject grew in power and importance; and the book is now called "a sketch for a portrait."

There will be many portraits, a number of examples of Mr. Wells' remarkable gift for caricature, and some facsimiles of his letters. The effect should be to present a Mr. Wells who is known only to his friends, and who is quite unsuspected by others.

Flexner Book Attacks 'Fads' in Universities

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"Universities: American, English, German," by Abraham Flexner. [Oxford University Press.]

Twenty years ago Dr. Abraham Flexner, director of the Institute for Advanced Study of New York, wrote a scathing exposure of conditions in medical schools in the United States and Canada. That resulted in a widespread reform.

Now, in "Universities: American, English, German," he has attempted a similar task, which may lead to a far-reaching educational reconstruction, especially in the United States, for it is of his own country that he is most severely critical. The book will arouse controversy, resentment. It will humiliate and sting. Perhaps it will be said that he is too enamored of the sacred soil of Oxford, where he spent a year as resident Rhodes lecturer. His own background is Johns Hopkins, which he criticizes for adding an unnecessary school of engineering; Harvard, which is condemned for its graduate school of business administration, and the University of Berlin, Germany, he finds, really has the wiser view of education, although he "profoundly envies" the ancient English universities and their community of scholars and gentlemen.

Describes His Ideal.

It is a dark picture that he draws of America, particularly of the efforts of Columbia, the University of Chicago, and the University of Wisconsin to reach out and be of service to the people.

Dr. Flexner sets up first his ideal of a university and then attacks everything that does not meet this criterion.

"The university," he writes, "must be the place where truth is to be told fearlessly." . . . "Intensive study of phenomena under the most favorable possible conditions—the phenomena of the physical world, of the social world, of the esthetic world, and the ceaseless struggle to see things in relation—these I conceive to be the most important functions of the modern university. . . . What else belongs there? Assuredly neither secondary, technical, vocational, nor popular education."

Dr. Flexner would cut out all the extension courses, where people are led to study at home, all the vocational courses, the easy ways to credits and degrees, and go back to the hard disciplines which develop the sinews of the mind. All the tricks, the "chain store" methods, must go, he declares.

The universities all are mad, he thinks, on the subject of competitive and intercollegiate athletics, and "not one college or university has the courage to place athletics where every one perfectly well knows they belong."

Time is wasted on such departments as business and journalism, he says, and cooking, typewriting, home economics, euthenics, and related subjects, are all "nonsense" to be uprooted. He finds the universities "gift poor," with too many buildings, too much campus, too big stadiums, and too little real scholarship.

Main Street Triumphant.

"The problem of America," he writes, "is not 'Main Street'; there are Main Streets in all countries. The hopelessness of America lies in the inability and unwillingness of those occupying seats of intelligence to distinguish between genuine culture and superficial veneer, in the lowering of institutions which should exemplify intellectual distinctions to the level of the venders of patent medicines.

"So, too, there are Babbitts in all countries, not only in the United States; but 'Babbittry' in the presidency of great universities is an exclusively—as it is a widespread—American phenomenon."

Dr. Flexner's study of universities was first hand and extended over years. He has done a scholarly job, particularly in view of the fact that he is a product of such an unscholarly atmosphere as he has found America to be.

Gandhi Disciple Starts Serial Stories About India

To mark the completion of the first six months of Mahatma Gandhi's incarceration, there has been launched in this country "The India Today and Tomorrow Series," under the editorship of Dr. Haridas T. Muzumdar, one of Gandhi's disciples and companions on the march to the sea last spring. There will be five volumes. The first one is entitled "India's Non-Violent Revolution." It contains a pen portrait of Mahatma Gandhi, and describes the gains made by the present campaign of civil resistance. After describing the "black régime" in India, Dr. Muzumdar pleads with the British public for reconciliation with India before it is too late.

WRITERS TILT DURING DEBATE OVER DIVORCE

Chesterton in Clash with Hamilton.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Gilbert K. Chesterton and Cosmo Hamilton, armored in dress suits, flanked by microphones and umpired by Alexander Woollcott, on Sunday evening at Mecca temple debated the question: "Is Divorce a Social Asset?"

Nor are these the only authors with opinions on the ever burning issue of marriage and divorce. In a new book entitled "Divorce," you can learn what Theodore Dreiser thinks about it and, too, the views of Fannie Hurst, H. G. Wells, André Maurois, Rebecca West, Warwick Deeping, and Bertrand Russell. Mr. Russell also is one of the contributors to the symposium, "Twenty-four Views of Marriage."

Cosmo Hamilton, as soldierly erect, handsome, and immaculately groomed as ever hero from his or anybody's books, affirmed on Sunday that divorce is a social asset, pointing out the tribulations of the unhappily wed.

"You may say the trouble is that they are neurotic, but aren't we all neurotics?" he asked. "If a marriage isn't successful it is the greatest failure of our lives," and in such plight, "marital vows become the dead words of convention—the blackmail of life."

Bravery of the Married.

"Is a meat ax a social asset?" boomed Chesterton, his naturally light small voice made husky by the amplifiers. "It is true that people in marriage go through things for which soldiers would be decorated."

"Because," he added, "of the difficulties married people live through, they are respected. Divorce is a trick for stealing social respect without having earned it. If we are all neurotics, as Mr. Hamilton suggests, let us get cured, not set up a new philosophy designed especially for epileptics.

"As to the terrible tragedies of married life, they are as nothing compared to those of free love. Byron, De Musset, George Sand, Swinburne, and the neopagan poets are all one long wail of despair over the tragedies of a man with his mistress."

Whether the father of "Father Brown" settled the question for all time, there is no doubt that his agile wit and ability to "think on his feet," as goes the phrase in lecture circles, won the debate. He is a veritable mountain of a man, tall, and of amazing circumference. His eyes are the blue of a bland summer sky. His hair, almost white, and worn rather long, curls into comely disarray.

He Stands on His Head.

Over Ernestine Evans' tea table on Friday, Gertrude Emerson, author of "Voiceless India," told us of a lecturer so versatile as to talk standing on his head. He is F. Yeats-Brown, who has written his experiences in India in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." An enthusiast of the Yogi cult, Mr. Yeats-Brown describes the benefits of the Yogic "head stand" in his book and on the lecture platform occasionally demonstrates it, continuing his address five or ten minutes in this position.

Col. E. Alexander Powell, author of "In Barbary," has just returned from another tour of Europe. And another writing colonel and his lady, Col. R. S. Bamberger, dropped into town last week from Atlanta. They are the collaborators responsible for "The Murder at Red Pass" and other mystery thrillers published under the nom "The Aresbys" ["The R. S. B.'s"]. The most recently arrived European visitor is Liam O'Flaherty, author of "Two Years" and "Mr. Gilhooley."

TURKISH GIRL, IN NEW BOOK, TELLS NEW TURKS' STORY

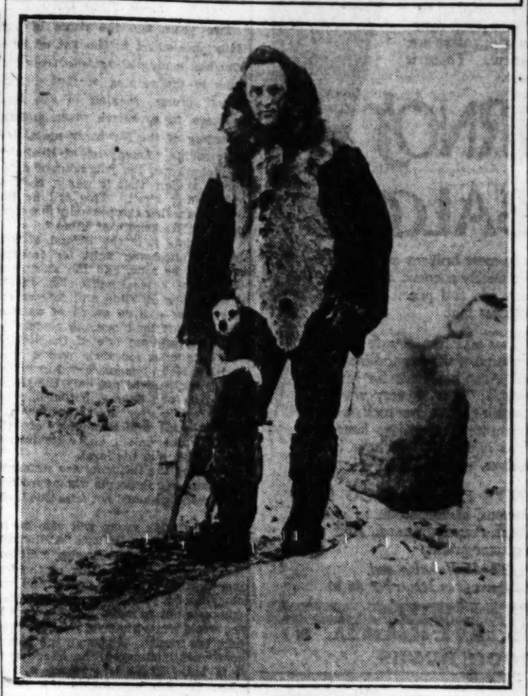
"Unveiled" by Selma Ekrem (Washburn) is the autobiography of a Turkish girl. How alluring that mere statement is! That a woman should have emerged from the prejudices and taboos of her race to such an extent that she can publish her autobiography, written in the English language and with a frankness which fulfills its label of "Unveiled" is in its very fact of interest.

SELMA EKREM.

Miss Ekrem is a member of one of the most distinguished families in Turkey. Her father formerly was governor of Jerusalem and of the Aegean islands and is now a professor in the University of Stamboul. Her grandfather was a distinguished general, educated in France and prominent in the court of Napoleon III. Her other grandfather was a famous poet and literary leader.

She belongs to the "new women" of Turkey. But her autobiography is a true life story and not a political or economic history. It pictures the background of a childhood different indeed from a western childhood, but with the human relationships fundamentally the same. F. B.

EXPLORER AND MASCOT



COMMANDER R. E. BYRD, U. S. N.

Here's a photograph of the author of "Little America," the thrilling story of that conquest of the south pole by Commander Richard E. Byrd. His book is an epic of one of the greatest adventures of history.

MORAND HAILS LEWIS AS TRULY AMERICAN AMONG THE AUTHORS

BY PAUL MORAND.

[Author of "New York," a recent best seller. Mr. Morand wrote this as an introduction to the French edition "Babbitt" by Sinclair Lewis.]

Like Babbitt, Sinclair Lewis finds the middle west frightful, but he does not know how to dispense with it. He cannot live with it and he cannot live without it. To all the palazzi and châteaux of Europe he prefers a little bungalow on the flowery heights of Zenith, where, however, no flowers grow. He does not live on the Riviera like Edith Wharton. He does not become a naturalized Englishman like Henry James. He does not go bathing in the Mediterranean with Jean Cocteau like Glenway Wescott. It was high time for us to discover this writer who really loves his native soil.

Between two generations of cosmopolitan Americans so near, indeed too near, to ourselves, Lewis remains standing at the head of a group of men about 45 years old, a member of what might be called the Center party, a follower of the school of Mencken, who founded the American Mercury shortly after the war as a reaction against European influence. He is a citizen of a new country and wants to be sufficient to himself. The Monroe Doctrine is being extended to include the conquest of literature.

"Dodsworth" is an exception in the work of Lewis. "I shall never write another novel in a European setting," he wrote to me a short time ago. He feels that it is not playing the game to go outside the limits of his country for a solution of the problems that are theatening not only the soul of the upper class but the soul of the entire nation. Sinclair Lewis is no deserter. He is staying at home to help America win her final liberties.

Post-war America is becoming more human. It is thirsty for religious tolerance, moral freedom, sexual frankness, diffusion of the arts, and respect for the other fellow. It no longer aspires to be the world's biggest, but the world's best. It is seeking to find a balance between the necessary constraints of society and the rise of the individual.

Sinclair Lewis is aiding with all his strength, and his characters do likewise, but fail. Babbitt is broken; he is a modest business man, not big enough to struggle against the sacred institutions to which the American has sold his soul in order to enjoy peace and prosperity. His defeat, which is described with the power, the admirable good sense and humor of a great writer, is the defeat of a whole people. That is why the book has produced such a profound upheaval in America and why it has enjoyed such a lasting success. This is the spirit in which we should read it if we wish to understand it and to be moved by what it has to say.

Brazil's Past, Told Vividly, Gives Key to Recent Acts

If the situation in Brazil intrigues you so much that you would want to know more about the country one of the best books on Brazil still is Roy Nash's "Conquest of Brazil," published two or three years ago by Harcourt, Brace & Co. It is an account of the present day Brazil, the country, the people, the government, the whole social structure of the country, written in a lively style and based on first hand information.

Mr. Nash has lived in all the states of Brazil except one. The whole history of the people and the country is unfolded, and we are made to see how this mixed Portuguese-Moorish-African race conquered and civilized a land larger than the United States.

But despite the title, this historical portion is merely background; the book is concerned primarily with the Brazil of today, the Brazil which is being featured in front page newspaper headlines.

HERO'S CALM ADDS THRILLS TO HIS DEEDS

Gives Credit to All in "Little America."

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Little America," by Richard E. Byrd. [Putnams].

There is no saga in the history of exploration more thrilling than the story of the detailed discovery of the south pole by the Byrd expedition. For it is the story of man's utilization of all of the weapons that civilization and science have given him against the force of the elements. It tells of the conquest of the previously unconquered by the organized skill, science, patience, and knowledge of the present day.

The story has the old thrill of man's passionate fight against nature plus the thrill of man's use of his increasing power over nature. The romance of happenstance has given place to the even more exciting romance of proving that careful preparation and calculation can chart a result.

Science Defeats Antarctic.

The whole spirit of the antarctic exploration was scientific. The spirit of the record set down by Commander Byrd is scientific. Not for his pen any sentimentalities, any blazoning in gorgeous adjectives of description, any wallowings in exclamatory despairs. He sets down the whole story of the trip to Little America, the establishment of the camp, the long winter, the flight to the pole, and the return to his base of operations without an unnecessary adjective.

That story is, beyond description, thrilling and gripping. That there was not one moment of month after month that lacked its hazard, often its brush with death, you know, though not because Commander Byrd dwells on those hazards. He mentions them as a part of the routine, as they were obviously accepted by him and his men. The momentary chance that the two boats never would reach the ice barrier keeps the reader tingling with excitement, but the chronicler is unflurried. To the reader 70 degrees below zero is a whiff of the grave, to Byrd merely a recorded temperature.

A leak in a gas tank in the plane, which sets the reader almost trembling with terror he records as a mishap. Men lost for days were rescued—and that was that. By the very method of being as calm as a majestic iceberg about the telling of his story, Commander Byrd's story becomes incredibly exciting, incredibly moving.

Answer for His Critics.

To many of the facile quipsters who did their traveling to the antarctic by sitting in an easy chair and listening to a radio, the journey was a joy ride—a luxurious Cook's tour—a Byrd's eye view—of the south pole. The commander of the expedition—in the same calm fashion that he records the hardships—tells of the preparations for the trip, the management of the camp and the arrangements for the flight.

The meticulousness of those preparations and plans is as thrilling, in one sense, as their results. It was because brains utilized all the knowledge of science that there were no spectacular disasters, that life was lived with some semblance of the normal. Luxury was merely sense and foresight. Economy was practiced in everything, but actually vital scientific and human equipment.

Commander Byrd assumed the responsibility for the expedition—the responsibility for human life as well as for material things, but never does he fail to make the expedition seem the sum total of the effort of the entire group. And there again his reserve gives the reader a thrill.

Why It's Exciting.

"Little America" is one of the most exciting books of our memory, for it records the battle against what has previously been the unconquered almost cosmic force of icy death with the frail forces of man's spirit and his invention. The past always has proved that his spirit was not enough. "Little America" tells how with the armor of his invention man's spirit has at last conquered the unconquerable.

Admiral Byrd will be in Chicago next Thursday. At 11:30 a. m. he will be in the book section of Marshall Field & Co. and will autograph copies of "Little America." If there could be any more exciting Christmas present than one of them tell me of it!

Lore of Finland's Peasants Well Told in Wilhelmson's Book

"Midsummernight," by Carl Wilhelmson. (Farrar & Rinehart.)

"Midsummernight" is a strange and at times a very lovely book. It is really a folk tale, rich with the mysteries and mysticisms of primitive Finnish peasants, embroidered with deep faiths and as tense fears. Still it seems, on the surface, just the story of the return of a wanderer to his native village.

Stolen as a boy by the Russian authorities, he went for a time to sea, for a time he visited spots as strange and as different as an Australian seaport, Buenos Aires, New York, an American night school. But always the Finnish village, from which he had been torn, called him. Finally, as a strong, traveled, experienced young man he returned for what he intended to be a short visit.

He immediately was enmeshed not only in his love for a girl who was to marry his cousin (his traditional enemy) but in the very simplicity of the village life. It is a calm, gentle, and now and again movingly beautiful tale.

It is told in that rarely pure English that a foreigner always writes when he learns English as an adult. Conrad, for instance, wrote an English almost miraculously pure.

Mr. Wilhelmson was born in Finland. He has had stranger adventures than the hero of his books. All over the world he has had primitive human contacts that would make his autobiography a thriller. Finally, after his war service, he went to Leland Stanford university. There he perfected the English which he uses with distinction. F. B.

Full Dreyfus Story Told in English to This New Generation

"Traitor! Traitor!" by Johnston D. Kerkhoff [Greenberg], is the first book in English to give the complete story of the Dreyfus affair which rocked the civilized world in 1894. Accused of giving Germany the most intimate military secrets of France, hotly, passionately prosecuted and condemned, Capt. Dreyfus, who consistently insisted on his innocence, went to Devil's island, which he had been the first to condemn as an inhuman penal colony.

There he suffered not only what others suffered, but a bitter resentment which gave many opportunities of adding to his misery. When he was tried again he was vindicated and freed and his military rank was restored to him in the exact spot in which it had been torn from him as a traitor.

The great war came. He served as a lieutenant colonel. Ironically, he and his son both went through the war unscathed fighting the enemies to which he had been accused of selling his country's secrets.

Most of his accusers died. After the war he retired from active military life, from active life altogether. He and the faithful wife, whose story the author gets very sentimental about, live in such seclusion that most of France believes that he is dead. The Dreyfus case was one of the most sensational in modern history. This generation knows of it only as a story.

6 Argentine Writers' Work Contained in New Book

"Tales from the Argentine," edited by Waldo Frank [Farrar and Rinehart], is a group of seven characteristically Argentine tales from six outstanding writers of that country. It is the first of a series of translations of Latin-American literature which Farrar and Rinehart promise—a field rich in fascinating material. These stories are robust, picaresque, and languorous. There are ribald love stories with twanging guitars, the great Anaconda coiling menacingly through the jungle, the man eating tiger in the wilderness—quaint pictures of Buenos Aires.

MOUNTAIN FEUD OF HATFIELDS-M'COYS TOLD IN NEW BOOK

William Anderson "Cap" Hatfield, 67 years old, of Logan, W. Va., last of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists, recently died at Johns Hopkins hospital. He was 17 years old, when in 1880 the famous Hatfield-McCoy vendetta started in which "Cap" played a leading part, lasted over half a century and took a toll of more than a hundred lives.

"Cap" was noted as the most ruthless of all the feudists, and his life was the goal of all McCoys. More than 300 attempts to kill him were made, but he escaped without a scratch. He never left the Logan mountains, fearing that to leave the protection of the feud country meant his death, and ironically enough, he died within 24 hours after leaving Logan.

John L. Spivak has written the complete story of this great feud in "The Devil's Brigade" [Brewer and Warren].

LAST year, thousands of people who had lost their faith in Santa Claus, became believers again when PETER ARNO'S PARADE made them rock with laughter at its humor and titillate at its wit. All through 1930, hostesses blessed Peter Arno for helping to solve their social problems by putting their parties on the jolly side. Now happy days are here again and life begins anew. There is Another Parade by Peter Arno.

PETER ARNO'S HULLABALOO

Peter Arno is one of the most brilliant minds of our time. He is not merely a comic artist, he is an historian with pen and pencil. No phase of human life escapes him.

The magnificent reviews of PETER ARNO'S PARADE were no exaggeration of the extraordinary position which Peter Arno has made for himself. Just one example: "It is so very witty, discerning and amusing that we rock with laughter and only realize twelve days later in the middle of the night that we have been laughing at ourselves."—Carl Van Vechten.

PETER ARNO'S HULLABALOO is as witty, as audacious, as humorous, as smartly satirical as PETER ARNO'S PARADE. And there could be no greater praise. $3.00

Historic Color Adds Interest to These Books

Older Children Given Some Real Thrillers.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of children's work in the branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

Two years ago the name of Eric Kelly was added to the list of those who had made distinguished contributions to the reading of that difficult upper group ranging in age from fourteen to seventeen years, and the awarding of the Newberry medal last year to his "Trumpeter of Krakow" only confirmed the judgment of many young readers that it was a book of outstanding merit. This fall he has written another exceptionally fine story in "The Blacksmith of Vilno."

This time it is the Poland of 1832 and its unceasing fight for freedom of which he tells, and the story centers about a blacksmith shop in the ancient city of Vilno and follows the fortunes of a little group of patriots who make it their meeting place.

It is a stirring tale of the love of the conquered for their native land, and Mr. Kelly has succeeded in giving his young readers not only the thrills of daring and danger, but also, what is a far greater accomplishment, a sympathetic understanding of the cause which united under its banner the exalted and the loyal.

Some of the incidents are unforgettable and young people who appreciate good reading should not miss this book.

Boys of this group will also be interested in Albert Bailey's "Call of the Rio Bravo" and Ella Bowles' "Hubert the Happy." The setting of the former is the Brazilian jungle and the story is of a young Harvard freshman who sets out to make his own way in the world when financial reverses overtake his family. Although the plot is somewhat hackneyed, the handling of it is not. There is evidence of real character development in the young hero and the description of the country and its people is exceedingly well done. It is based on the author's own experience in a lumbering camp in Brazil.

"Hubert the Happy" is a story of thirteenth century France and will appeal to those who like tales of baronial life and of the part played by peasants and nobles in the sports of the day. It will also attract many because of its mystery element.

Among historical stories for girls are Gertrude Crownfield's "Freedom's Daughter," Elizabeth Gray's "Meggy McIntosh," and Marjorie Allee's "Judith Lankester." The first two are tales of the revolutionary period and the third is laid in pre-civil war days.

"Meggy McIntosh" brings out a phase of the war that is not often treated in stories of the period, for it deals with the tale of Flora McDonald and her gathering together of the Highlanders to fight the colonists. How Meggy comes to change her allegiance and desert the cause of her native country for that of the new land makes good reading. All three stories are marked by action and romance and will be liked.

How Science Dawned as Magic Declined Is Told

Although the delightfully humorous Dr. Dolittle books have a place that is all their own on the children's bookshelf, one is glad to see that Hugh Lofting has struck an entirely new note in his latest book, "The Twilight of Magic" [Stokes]. In it he tells a story of the middle ages in England, and of the dawning of a new era in which science was to supplant magic.

"Vagabond de Luxe."

In "Vagabond de Luxe," by John Marshall [Century], a University of Chicago graduate, born in Glen Ellyn, by the way, hitch hikes his way around the globe with both swank and nerve. He is perhaps the first known ocean stowaway who carried a dinner jacket and wore it. It's an interesting travel tale, told with campus naïveté and unfailing good humor. He literally smiled his way around the world.

CHILDREN'S POETS BUSY WRITING AS HOLIDAYS APPROACH

A volume of poetry by Sara Teasdale always is an event of importance, but when that volume is for boys and girls, as is "Stars Tonight," there is cause for special rejoicing by all friends of young people. It is a delight from cover to cover with its beauty of imagery and expression.

In Rose Fyleman's "Gay Go Up" and Monica Shannon's "Goose Grass Rhymes" we have two good collections which will perhaps fit the need of the child to whom more imaginative verse is not so attractive. The first is about Jessica and the things she sees, not only in London, but also in Boston, the latter no doubt reminiscent of the author's recent visit to this country.

Miss Fyleman, of course, always has her place awaiting her with the children. "Goose Grass Rhymes" are written about the outdoors and things about the ranch in California on which Miss Shannon lives.

John Farrar's "Songs for Johnny Jump Up" are whimsical verses about things children are interested in and often ask questions about. Two anthologies of interest are Veronica Hutchinson's "Fireside Poems" and Mildred Harrington's "Ring a Round." Both include old favorite selections as well as the work of modern poets. Miss Hutchinson's book is similar to her "Chimney Corner Stories," but is for older children than was the earlier book.

Alien Lands Add to Lure of These Yarns

Sources Range from Alps to the Arctic.

Stories of other lands always have an element of interest for young readers and both the older and younger children have many examples of this type from which to choose this year. Julia Adams' "Mountains Are Free" takes us to the mountains of Switzerland and pictures the struggle for democracy which the Swiss cantons made against the Hapsburg dynasty in the days of the patriot William Tell.

The story is a good one, well written, presenting admirably the period and its difficulty and having a love story which will appeal to girls.

"Ood-le-uk the Wanderer" is a tale of the arctic relating the amazing adventures of an Eskimo lad who is swept away a prisoner on the ice cake and lands on Siberian soil, a landing which would have meant death for him had it not been for the possession of the charmed wooden amulet which he found. Needless to say, such a story is one of action and dramatic happenings.

Entirely different from either of these is Erick Kastner's "Emil and the Detectives." This is a rather fantastic account of a little German boy's first trip to Berlin and may or may not appeal to the individual child, depending upon his conception of humor.

On the train Emil is robbed of the money which he is carrying to his grandmother, and the story is woven about the adventures which he undertakes to recover it. Literal minded children will doubtless scoff at the impossible deeds of the hero and his small aids in apprehending the thief. It is a translation made by Mhy Massee from the German.

To the Man Who Knows Its Origin Every Word Presents a Picture

What Was The Original BONFIRE?

In the Middle Ages, when wars and pestilence ravaged England, fires for the burning of corpses were an everyday necessity. Bonefires (fires of bone) they were called. Later, when the custom of burning heretics at the stake became common, bonefires was the name applied to the pyres of these victims. The same term was used to designate the burning of symbols of heresy or other proscribed articles. Later its meaning extended to open-air fires for public celebrations or sport—but by this time in the less gruesome spelling bonfire, which to-day is a comparatively harmless word despite its grim history.

The REAL Arabian Nights

Edition de Luxe

"Mr. Mathers has given the English speaking races a revelation of new beauty."
English Review of Reviews

The "Unblushing East" in all its Elemental Splendor!

HERE, at last, is a complete translation of the Arabian Nights that actually re-creates the stories as they are in the original. Here is an enchanted panorama of elemental passions—stories of love so intense as to frighten, tales of foul murders that will make your heart skip beats, word pictures of fantastic deeds so bizarre that their very audacity makes them convincing. The reader is borne on wings to a land strange and bewitching where vines and pomegranate groves, cloudless skies, luxurious gardens, the undulating forms of fair dancing girls and the coquettish glances of the generous-hipped women of the harem are painted for him in language that lives and has the sensuous touch of life itself.

Here we find "all the mysterious supernaturalism of India, all the learning and culture of Persia, all the vivid and picturesque social life of China, all the uncanny terror of Africa. The grim tragedy and pitilessness of Oriental life are there, and its poetry, too." A new revised edition of the Mardrus-Mathers Arabian Nights is now ready; it belongs in every library where a truly sophisticated culture dictates the choice of books.

This Is for Air-Minded Yankee Boys

With Details of the Art of Flying.

In these days most of our young people are air-minded and books on aviation as well as stories based on exploits in the air are very much in demand. Among the titles for older readers one finds Augustus Post's "Skycraft" [Oxford], Dorothy Verrill's "Aircraft Book for Boys" [Harper] and Edward Shenton's "Couriers of the Clouds" [Macrae].

The first is an exceptionally fine presentation of the theory and development of aircraft with many diagrams of the various safety devices now coming into use. Miss Verrill's book is an inclusive history of the development of aviation and the possibilities which it affords in a vocational line to boys and girls. The title seems to limit the book's interest to boys, but such is not the case, for the author, herself a licensed pilot, has made a special point of including girls in her summary of the field as a vocational possibility. Neither book is easy reading and both will appeal more to young people who have done considerable reading along this line than to the beginner.

A very entertaining book is Edward Shenton's "Couriers of the Clouds" which tells the story of the air mail from its meager beginnings in France some sixty years ago to the development of the great transcontinental systems of today.

Raoul Whitfield's "Silver Wings" [Knopf] and William Simond's "From the Ground Up" [Doubleday] use the fictional form to present the facts of aviation. The first is a collection of exciting stories concernin three phases of it, that of the world war, the air mail, and the commercial transport. "From the Ground Up" is a story of a champion caddy who wins a golf tournament and as a reward is given aid in establishing himself in his chosen field, aviation.

Both books give much information on the modern development of this science.

Lest the younger folks of nine or ten feel neglected one must mention Alexander Key's "The Red Eagle" [Volland] and Inez Hogan's "Little Toy Airplane" [Macrae]. The first is a story of two boys and their uncle, a war flyer who visits them in his fine new plane, The Red Eagle. During his stay he not only teaches the boys to fly but accomplishes the almost impossible in overcoming their father's aversion to flying. The story of The Red Eagle's dangerous plight in the air races is a thrilling one.

Even the littlest one may have his own ambition in this line and the "Little Toy Airplane" belongs to him. It is a jolly little red airplane which felt quite useless when some careless child threw it away, and as it knew it was made to fly, it was not ntent lying there on the ground. It might never have found its way into the hands of the right little boy if it had not been for the help of the good turtle and the wise old man in the moon. But when it did get started on its way it was a very gay little airplane indeed and it belonged at last to a very happy little boy. It belongs to the seven and eight year group. A. L. S.

Book About Horses.

Horse lovers will be interested in Baroness Dombrowski's "Just Horses" [Macmillan] with its description in text and full page pictures of some eighteen kinds of horses. The author and artist is a horse lover whose etchings and lithographs are well known, and the drawings alone make the book valuable.

"MERRY ENGLAND"

STORM JAMESON.

In "The Decline of Merry England" Storm Jameson has made a gorgeous tapestry of medieval England.

On Nations' Distrust.

"Blood and Celluloid," by Heinrich Eduard Jacob [Smith], is a thriller of international intrigue and over all a flaying condemnation of the malicious distrust that has repeatedly cropped up between the great powers since the war. Arnold Zweig, author of "The Case of Sergeant Grisch," says that he considers "Blood and Celluloid" the event of the season.

* * *

The Young and Wise.

"So Wise We Grow," by Christine Whiting Parmenter [Hale, Cushman Flint], is a sympathetic story of today's youth and the bewilderment between parents and their sometimes much more adult sons and daughters.

* * *

The Cocktail Era.

"Party Husband," by Geoffrey Barnes [King], tells all about cocktail marriages and assorted boisterous Bohemian bubblings.

ADVENTURING AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

FICTION.

The Virgin and the Gipsy, by D. H. Lawrence [Knopf], is a posthumous novel completed just before the author's death, the story of the naïve daughter of a country rector and what happened when she met a gipsy.

Alexander, by Klaus Mann [Brewer & Warren], is a novel with the great Macedonian as hero. Klaus Mann is the son of Thomas Mann.

The Sphinx Has Spoken, by Maurice de Kobra [Brewer & Warren], tells about two English officers, in love with the same woman, and what a good bit of battle does to their jealousy, and how the lady in question manages things.

Tarzan at the Earth's Core, by Edgar Rice Burroughs [Metropolitan], tells of thrills in a geographic spot not usually described so completely.

MYSTERY.

Slane's Long Shots, by E. Phillips Oppenheim [Little-Brown], gives you ten mysteries in which Sir Jasper Slane detects in a very gentlemanly fashion.

About the Murder of Geraldine Foster, by Anthony Abbott [Covici-Friede], is one of the secret chronicles of headquarters in New York City, and gives the reader, it is said, an authentic picture of how the police department of a large city does its sleuthing.

ABOUT PLACES.

Cross Roads in Ireland, by Padraic Colum [Macmillan], is a delightful word picture of the author's native land, illustrated with the work of well known Irish painters.

Paris [Random-House] is a volume of superb photographs of every one's favorite spots in that enchanted city. There is a short introduction by Paul Morand.

Jungle Gold [Bobbs-Merrill] is Dad Fedrick's story of how he didn't get gold and how the jungle got him.

The Power of India, by Michael Pym [Putnam], presents India rather than a case for India.

Women and Monks, by Joseph Kallinikov [Harcourt-Brace], is the panorama of Russian life from 1905 to 1917.

Enchanted Brittany, by Amy Oakley [Century], has many charming illustrations by Thornton Oakley.

Black Bread and Red Coffins, by Negley Farson [Century], is an eyewitness' report of present day Russia.

Old France, by John G. Coulter [Putnam], is a sort of historic guidebook.

Ancient Life in the American Southwest, by Edgar L. Hewett [Bobbs, Merrill], is not only about the place, but, intimately, about the people.

God's Frozen Children, by Harold McCracken [Doubleday Doran], is a reminiscential thriller about Alaska.

Bong Kwa, by Wynant D. Hubbard [Doubleday Doran], is the story of an African buffalo and the wild life of the veldt.

Overland With Kit Carson, by Lieut. George Douglas Brewerton, U. S. A. [Coward McCann], is a diary of 1848, edited by Stallo Vinton.

Romantic Czecho-Slovakia, by Robert Medill McBride [McBride], is the first comprehensive travel account of that almost new nation.

The Half Way Sun, by R. F. Barton [Brewer & Warren], is an adventurous picture of life among the head hunters of northern Luzon, told by an American who lived among them for eight years.

The French at Home, by Philip Carr [Dial], is a sympathetic, keen study of a people often misunderstood, written by a Paris correspondent for the Manchester Guardian and the New York Times.

Bombay, Today and Tomorrow [Taraporevala Sons, Bombay] is a symposium of discussions of all phases of communal life in Bombay, edited by Clifford Manshardt and with an introduction by Sir Frederick Sykes, governor of Bombay.

THE ARTS, ETC.

William S. Schwartz, by Manuel Chapman [Stein], is a study of the work of the artist with copious illustrations of his lithographs, sculpture, and paintings.

Ultimo [Dutton] is a volume of intense modern designs by John Vassos, with text by Ruth Vassos.

Ninth Annual of Advertising Art [Book Service Company] shows the élite of the year's advertising.

The New World Architecture, by Sheldon Cheney [Longmans], is a discussion [copiously illustrated], of the architecture of the machine age.

Modern American Painters, by Samuel M. Kootz [Brewer & Warren], is half illustrations.

Apples and Madonnas, by C. J. Bulliet [Covici Friede], is a new, revised, and enlarged edition of one of the most popular books on modern art ever written—the one which was put into the White House library.

Early American Silver, by Louise Avery [Century], is an exhaustive handbook on the subject.

Great Pictures of Europe, by Thomas Munro [Brentano's], is a guide book [with critical discussion] to the famous galleries.

NONFICTION.

Universities: American, English, German, by Abraham Flexner [Oxford University press], has immediately stirred up international discussion. Dr. Flexner feels that the universities of the world well might be overhauled.

The Mysterious Universe, by Sir James Jeans [Macmillan], sets forth the most important theories and discoveries of modern science and interprets them controversially.

Invitation to Renaissance Italy, by Rahel Annand Taylor [Harpers], is a glorified history by the author of "Leonardo the Florentine."

Higher Education Faces the Future [Liveright], is a symposium on that fascinating subject edited by Paul Arthur Schilpp.

Tin Pan Alley, by Isaac Goldberg [Day], is the story of the American popular music racket.

Fly Fishing, by Viscount Grey of Falladon [Dutton], is a new and enlarged edition of that famous treatise with wood engravings by Eric Fitch Daglish.

The United States of Europe, by Edouard Herriot [Viking], is a translation by Reginald J. Dingle of one of the most discussed books in Europe.

City Bosses in the United States, by Harold Zink [Duke University Press], never once mentions Al Capone, though it does William Hale Thompson.

Sinbad, a Dog's Life, by Edwina [Coward McCann], is a series of stories in funny pictures of Sinbad who was always in bad.

The Stream of English Biography, by John Calvin Metcalf [Century], is an historical and critical discussion of English biography with illustrative selections.

The Fight for Peace, by Devere Allen [Macmillan], is an exhaustive history of the whole peace movement.

Secret Service, by Maj. Gen. Sir George Ashton [Cosmopolitan], is the complete story of espionage.

The American Hotel, by Jefferson Williamson [Knopf], is an anecdotal history of the subject.

Around Theaters, by Max Beerbohm [Knopf], consists of two volumes of the incomparable Max's essays on the drama and life.

Four Novels of England; All Interesting

One Is Written by Wife of Noted Scientist.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Miss Mole," by E. H. Young. [Harcourt, Brace.]

"Bound to Happen," by Elswyth Thane. [G. P. Putnam's Sons.]

"A Rich Man's Daughter," by R. H. Mottram. [Harpers.]

"Down the Sky," by E. V. Lucas [Lippincott.]

These four novels about England, while widely divergent in scene and plot, have one thing in common—an interesting style. And in each, one character stands out above the others and is memorable.

E. H. Young, the author of

R. H. MOTTRAM.

ELSWYTH THANE.

"William," "The Mallets," and "The Vicar's Daughter," has created a real person in Hannah Mole. One critic has called her "a super-servant," but she is much more than that; she is a keenly intelligent woman possessed of one of the rarest senses of humor extant. If that sounds pretty tall, read the book.

Hannah is a spinster of uncertain age, with a minute income that must be eked out by her stipend as a housekeeper in the family of a rector in a small English town. She is absolutely alone in the world and is quite aware of the fact. "Age was creeping on her all the time and she had saved nothing, . . . for a second, fear took hold of her with a cold hand and the whispering of the dead leaves warned her that, like them, she would be swept into the gutter and no one would ask where she had gone, and her fear changed into a craving that there should be at least one person to whom her disappearance would be a calamity."

But those moments of fear were fleeting, thanks to her level-headedness and her indomitable sense of humor. She could track down a joke in the most depressing atmosphere an ugly house and disagreeable people could create. She might give up everything else, but she would not relinquish her sense of the ridiculous, nor her chuckles. And in the end she made an impression where you thought dynamite would not have created a ripple. . . . She even won love by laughing at it, and herself. Delightful Hannah Mole!

"Bound to Happen" is the fifth book by Elswyth Thane, who is Mrs. William Beebe, wife of the famous scientist and explorer. She writes with great charm. She talks of prime ministers not as prime ministers, but as people, and members of parliament as mere men. There is a gentleness and whimsy about her characters that is refreshing. And the book has really an exciting plot that pops up in the middle of it, like a jack in a box, and startles you.

R. H. Mottram, who wrote "The Spanish Farm Trilogy," carries on the story of Geoffrey Skene in his new book, "A Rich Man's Daughter," but whether or not one has read the other novel does not matter. This is complete in itself.

Young Olive Rose Purchas, the rich man's daughter, has married above her class and Raymond Blythway, her husband, is not the sort to make the union a success.

Skene is a lonely bachelor, set adrift after his war service in a world he no longer cares for and among people who give him nostalgia. He meets the discontented Olive and falls in love with her. The rest of the book describes the emotions of a man who wants something and the reaction of the same man after he gets what he wants.

Those of you who know and enjoy the E. V. Lucas travel books will like to meet this new friend, "Down the Sky," which is his latest novel, rounding out an even dozen. It is quite inconsequential and not intended to cause any furrowing of the brows, but is amusing enough to while away several evenings.

PRIESTLEY AWARDED PRIZE FOR "THE GOOD COMPANIONS"

"The Good Companions," by J. B. Priestley, has just been awarded the James Tait Black prize as the best work of fiction of the year. It was published in 1929. Mr. Priestley intended visiting America this year to celebrate the publication of "Angel Payment," but determents happened in [1] the birth of a daughter on the publication date of the novel, and [2] work on the musical comedy version of "The Good Companions," which is announced for a November opening in London.

Days of Steam Fail to Curb Sea Adventure

World War Exploits Rival Hawkins' Own.

BY AL CHASE.

"Falmouth for Orders," by A. J. Villiers. [Holt.]

"Lauterbach of the China Seas," by Lowell Thomas. [Doubleday-Doran.]

"Hawkins, Scourge of Spain," by Philip Goss. [Harpers.]

"Voyagers Unafraid," by Irvin Anthony. [Macrae-Smith.]

"Great Dipper to Southern Cross," by Edward H. Dodd Jr. [Dodd-Mead.]

A. J. Villiers has written another saga of the sea in his "By Way of Cape Horn" [Holt], a haunting, wistful sort of story, full of thrills and terror. Like his first book, "Falmouth for Orders," Mr. Villiers, a newspaper writer of distinction, tells of his own foc'sl'l experiences on an old windjammer, carrying grain from Australia to Scotland. The Grace Harwar is one of the few remaining full rigged Cape Horners afloat. Hunger, cold, sudden death, accidents, sickness, ill winds and fear of fire dogged the old ship from the antipodes to the Clyde. A fine volume for any sea library.

A. J. VILLIERS.

The North German Lloyd has ordered seven copies of A. J. Villiers' "Falmouth for Orders" as Christmas presents for the officers' quarters on their seven largest liners. Most of these officers trained on the square rigged Herzogin Cecilie when she was part of the North German Lloyd training fleet before the war, and Mr. Villiers' book is an account of her now famous race in 1928 with the Beatrice. Then both ships were lifting Australian wheat to Falmouth for orders. Since the war the Herzogin Cecilie has been sailing under the Finnish flag as a part of the last square rigger fleet in the world.

Lowell Thomas, who seems to have become our most prolific writer of sea exploits, introduces us to a briny Falstaff in "Lauterbach of the China Seas" [Doubleday-Doran], who had an almost unbelievable career of ocean adventure during the great war. Capt. Lauterbach, a Teuton, tells the inside story of both the Emden, world famous raider in the south seas, of which he was navigator, and of a short voyage as captain of the Moewe, another famous German raider.

He was a prisoner in an English camp at Singapore, escaped by fostering a mutiny of the native troops, crossed Sumatra and zigzagged a daring dash through Java, the Philippines and the China sea to Shanghai and eventually across the Pacific and back to Germany. There he started on another brief but colorful sea career as captain. Altogether one of the best stories of naval war adventure we've read.

"Hawkins, Scourge of Spain," by Philip Goss, is the latest addition to Harper's attractive biographical series of famous sea heroes. Dr. Goss, an English authority on piracy and author of "The Pirates' Who's Who," paints a picture of the father of the British navy in such glowing colors that one almost forgets that Sir John Hawkins has sometimes been thought of as a near-pirate. His sea career, in Queen Elizabeth's day, by the way, was as thrilling as any bona fide buccaneer's. A book containing much historical data as well as dashing deeds.

"Voyagers Unafraid," by Irvin Anthony [Macrae-Smith], is an anthology of Atlantic ocean crossings made single handed in small boats of various kinds, packed with the thrills that come from lone adventuring as captain and crew combined. Mr. Anthony, a yachtsman-professor of English, tells of a dozen or more intrepid navigators who crossed from America to Europe during the last century. An unusually attractive book, both as to format and contents.

"Great Dipper to Southern Cross," by Edward H. Dodd Jr. [Dodd-Mead], tells how five Yale graduates decided to see a bit of the world via the south seas before they settled down to dry land dullness. They sailed from Block island, through the Panama canal and across the south Pacific to Sydney. A well written, interesting account of a collegiate cruise, though more sedate than one would expect from so young an author. It has map end papers and is well illustrated with photographs by the author.

Meetings and Lectures

Lowell Thomas, author of many thrilling adventure stories, will be in Mandel Brothers' book shop to speak and autograph his books on Monday, Dec. 1, at 11 and 2 o'clock.

This afternoon at 3:15 in the James Simpson theater of the Field museum, Howard Cleaves will give an illustrated lecture "With Pinchot in the South Seas" as his subject.

"Staying with Relations," by Rose Macaulay, will be discussed at the meeting of the Bookfellows this evening at 6 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. building, 19 South La Salle street.

Tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Coach house, 151 West Schiller street, a poetry open forum and a discussion of the technic of the detective story will be held.

On Tuesday at 6:45 p. m., at Fullerton hall of the Art institute, Prof. Napier Wilt, department of English, University of Chicago, will lecture on "Eggleston, Howe, and Kirkland."

Mabel Oppenheim will continue her lectures on Interesting Types of Recent Literature with a discussion of "The Novel of Fantasy," using James Branch Cabell, James Stephens, Robert Nathan, and Felix Salten as her illustrations, on Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Drake hotel.

On Friday evening at 8:15 at the Emil G. Hirsch center, Dr. Edward N. Schoolman will lecture on "D. H. Lawrence—the Walt Whitman of the Novel."

On Saturday afternoon, Dec. 6, at 2:30 p. m., in the book section of Marshall Field & Co., Rockwell Kent, author and illustrator of "N by E," a record of a trip to Greenland, will talk on his adventures on that thrilling expedition.

Professor Displays Notables as Cases for Mental Theories

For "The Psychology of Achievement" [Simon & Schuster] Walter B. Pitkin, professor of Columbia university, used the case history method of making his conclusions about what he defines as "distinguished successful endeavor usually in the face of difficulties." He says the four characteristics of leaders are:

(a) A clear, well conceived ambition.
(b) Persistent struggle to surmount vast obstacles.
(c) Thorough accomplishment of the objective set.
(d) Great significance and human value of the success achieved.

As leaders in what he calls the AAAA group he lists: Helen Keller, Thomas A. Edison, Orville Wright, and Edward Acheson. The AAA group have satisfied three of the four qualifications—among them: John Dewey, John D. Rockefeller Sr., Henry Ford, Jane Addams, Charlie Chaplin, the Mayo brothers, and David Wark Griffith. The AA group is so large that it is divided into classes of the arts, industry and business, science and invention, education, engineering, creative philanthropy, agriculture, etc. From the life stories of countless numbers Prof. Pitkin made up his theories of what makes one man a success and another a failure.

FORTY YEARS OF OPERA IN CHICAGO

By EDWARD MOORE

Filled with spicy anecdote and unusual incident, covering the history of Grand Opera in Chicago from the day Adelina Patti opened the Auditorium with Romeo and Juliet until the curtain fell on the same opera sung by Edith Mason, Charles Hackett and other artists of The Chicago Opera Company.

No one is better qualified than Edward Moore, the veteran music critic of the Chicago Tribune, to tell the story of what passed behind the footlights in the history of Chicago Opera.

Profusely illustrated with pictures of the world's greatest artists of four decades, and containing a statistical resume of operatic performances given in Chicago from November 3rd, 1910 to March 26, 1929. $5.00

By Royal Command

BY DORNFORD YATES

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife Leonie former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littai in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Marya Salm, countess of Dresden an expected guest stating that she dare not come Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince their must enter the country by stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. Attempting to find a passage across a rushing mountain stream, they stumble across two men engaged in a furious fight. They intervene and save the life of a peasant named Ramon who in gratitude leads them over the border by a secret path under the waterfall. In the town of Vardar they board a tourist train for Vigil and hide in a motor car, which they discover is consigned to Prince Paul. Not able to leave the train before arriving in the station yards at Vigil, they are saved by the wit of Hanbury, who tells the officials that they are in charge of the car by royal command to unload it and deliver it to the palace. Hanbury drops Chandos and Bell at the home of Marya and drives on to deliver the car at the palace.

INSTALLMENT VI.

SINISTER DEEDS.

I gave my attention to the back of the house, for though Madame Dresden might be gone, her servants knew me by sight and I was depending on finding some one of them there. Indeed, if the house was empty I did not know what we should do, for I knew no other source of which we could make inquiry with any hope of success.

The heavy shutters were closed and this had an ominous look, but since the weather was hot and the rooms faced south, I hoped very hard that the windows they hid were open and the shutters themselves but fastened against the heat of the day.

Desiring to learn the truth, I bade Bell stay under cover and crossed the lawn, for the garden was very private and not at all overlooked.

I had left the grass and the gravel surrounding the house and was half way up the steps which led to the terrace, when, as though by magic, the shutters of the salon were parted and a man stepped on to the terrace, duster in hand.

It was the countess' butler.

For a moment we stared at each other. Then——

"Good morning, Carol," I said. "Where is madame?"

"Madame is abed, sir."

"You must go!" she cried. "You must go!"

I thought very fast.

"Is the salon empty?" I said. "I'd like to write her a note, but I must not be seen."

He found me paper and pencil and stood at the door.

I wrote as fas as I could.

Dear Marya: Carol knows I am here, but no one else. Walk in the garden before breakfast—as soon as you can.

RICHARD CHANDOS.

As I sealed the envelope——

"Madame must have this at once, Carol."

"Immediately, sir. I shall tell her maid that I found it beneath the front door."

"That's right."

As I stepped on to the terrace, he left the room.

I was upon the edge of descending the steps when the clack of shutters thrown open came to my ears.

I shrank back instantly. I had put my faith in Carol, but I had no mind to put it in any one else.

As I stood waiting, I heard more shutters opened and then the flick of a duster being emptied into the air.

The servants were about their business and my retreat was cut off.

I stood back in the salon, chafing.

Then I heard a sudden rustle, and there was Marya Dresden beside me, with a dressing gown over her nightdress and her small, bare feet in slippers and fright in her eyes.

"What is it, Richard?" she breathed. "Why are you here? Don't say Leonie——"

"She wanted to come," said I. "But I couldn't risk that. But you didn't think we'd sit still and watch you drown?"

Marya stared and stared.

"Watch me drown'?" she repeated. "My dear, what on earth do you mean?"

I took out her telegram and gave it into her hand.

As she read it, a hand went up to her head. Then——

"I never sent this," she said.

Madame Dresden's words were so confounding and had unmasked so abruptly such a flood of sinister light that it took me a moment or two to focus the new situation and generally marshal my wits.

"You never sent this?" I repeated.

She shook her head.

"Did you send any wire?"

She nodded, twisting her hands.

"On Monday. I said 'Expect me Wednesday, as arranged.'"

"That's right," I said slowly. "And that telegram was taken, but this was sent. I must say Prince Paul is well served."

Madame Dresden had me by the arm.

"It was sent to bring you," she breathed. "He——"

"It was sent to bring us both, Marya. It was sent to bring Leonie and me. Thank God I had the sense to spoil that."

"But it's brought you, Richard. It's brought you into his power." She clapped her hands to her face. "O, my God, why on earth did I send that wire? Every one knows he's rabid at Leonie's loss. He won't have her regiment at the palace, and——"

"You can't blame yourself," said I. "If one can't trust the postoffice—well—— If I were you Marya, I should leave Vigil for good. And Reichtenburg. I mean, the fellow's not safe."

"I know," she said. "I never see him now, but I hear a good deal. It doesn't affect the country—Sully sees to that. He's really afraid of Sully——"

"Who is away just now."

Marya caught her breath.

"You must go," she cried. "You must go. With Sully out of the country, and Grieg——"

"Grieg?" I cried sharply. "What of Grieg?"

The man was our implacable enemy—had nearly been the death of George Hanbury and would have killed me.

"Three days after Supply was gone, the prince took Grieg back. Not into the army. He's been given some job in the police."

There was a little silence. Then——

"You're right," said I. "We must go."

"We'?" says she. "I thought——"

"George Hanbury is with me. And Bell."

"But how can you go, Richard?"

"As we came," said I. "By night. Till then we must lie up somewhere. And——"

"Here, of course," cried the countess. "And then I can drive you——"

"Not on your life," said I. "You're deep enough in. I take it you're ready to go this afternoon."

"My big baggage has gone," she said.

"Then today you must leave for Salzburg, and leave by train. We'll come and get you there as soon as we can."

"I can't go till I know you're safe."

"You must," said I. "Don't you see you must keep to what you said in your wire? If you don't, they'll know in an instant that we've been in touch with you."

"How can they know that you haven't telephoned?"

"We did," said I. "And were told there was no reply. And we sent you two wires."

The countess stifled a cry.

"It shows the lengths," I continued, "our friends are prepared to go. Happily, they don't know we're here. And if you don't alter your plans, there's no reason why they should. I assume they don't know that you were to travel by road?"

"The servants know, Richard. I have told the chauffeur that he is to take me to Bariche and then return."

I bit my lip.

"Then you must go by road. You mustn't alter one jot of the arrangements you've made. Once you're out of the country, that's different. You must take in petrol at Bariche and drive straight on. Don't go to the lodge; stop at Littai. Leonie's gone to the farm."

"But you and George," cried the countess. "I can't leave you here. I mean, I'm in no danger, but you——"

"You certainly are," said I. "And you'll go in up to the neck if they can establish liaison between you and us. Can you trust your servants, Marya? I mean, you're most certainly watched."

Good Morning!

You have heard that the Northwest Mounted Police always get their man. D'jever learn of their getting the WRONG man? See "River's End" and witness a strange train of circumstances that hinge on such an error.

The picture has been adapted from a story by James Oliver Curwood. It is interesting, actionful, well directed, photographed, and acted, and packs considerable suspense. Charles Bickford in the dual rôle of policeman and prey does magnificent work. A skilled and easy actor, Mr. Bickford, with the unmistakable air of a man who knows the world and doesn't get overly bothered about anything.

Scenery and sets will please you. There are some stunning snow shots. Lines are believable, and are well delivered by the entire cast. A laugh here and a heart tug there, combined with considerable excitement connected with the man chase, make "River's End" entertainment that will appeal to most movie fans.

The dog comedy, "Who Killed Rover," which follows the feature, will slay you and tickle your children to pieces. Moral: If you like your children in pieces take them to see "Who Killed Rover."

Mr. Richard Bennett's oldest daughter, Miss Constance Bennett, has two popular and able leading men in her newest starring venture, "Sin Takes a Holiday." Mr. MacKenna is seen as the gentleman who wins her heart. Mr. Rathbone is not so lucky. Women fans will be divided into two camps of opinion as to which man should have been allotted that happiness. Personally, I cared not at all, though I believe I leaned a little bit toward Mr. Rathbone. However, as the lady's decision seemed not to affect him greatly, I was not disturbed. Had a tear fallen from the Rathbone eye, or had any signs on the Rathbone countenance pointed to a possible suicide—it would all have been so different.

The story told is of a lawyer who marries his secretary "in name only," as an escape from embarrassing entanglements with another woman. The comparatively plain little creature [Sylvia, the secretary] is to be paid $5,000 a year salary, and to have the privilege of living wherever she likes. Mr. Stanton, her husband, suggests that she go to Paris. She agrees, though she hates the thought, for, you see, SHE loves Mr. Stanton, though he doesn't know it.

On the ocean liner Sylvia meets one Durant, a friend of Stanton. He falls at once for the bridegroomless bride, shows her the sights of Paris and persuades her to live in his villa on the outskirts of the gay city, explaining that he can't use it that season. And so, and so—until Durant asks the lady if she will divorce her husband and marry him. Sylvia says she'll have to go back to Broadway and take another look at Stanton before she decides. Durant accompanies Mrs. Stanton—now a gorgeously gowned and sophisticated creature—to America where—happens what happens.

Miss Bennett is charming to gaze on and her acting in this picture has something of the appeal that distinguishes the work of her little sister Joan. Maybe Baby has been giving Big Sister pointers. Anyhow—you become quite fond of Constance as Sylvia. Messrs. McKenna and Rathbone perform in polished fashion. Others in the cast act as I imagine the director told them to, and the result of this docility is not always balanced and believable histrionics. Dialogue is nothing to set the world on fire, but is, on the whole, pretty well delivered. Miss Bennett wears some gorgeous clothes and the photographer did well by them. Interest is quite well sustained.

All in all, "Sin Takes a Holiday" should afford you a pretty good time. See you tomorrow.

Miss Hampton, Grace Moore Going East for Concerts

Hope Hampton, a former movie star, who has turned to opera, and Grace Moore, an opera singer, recently converted to the movies, arrived in the Polk steet depot yesterday on the Santa Fé railway's Chief.

Both were on their way to make concert tours. Miss Moore, who will make a tour of the east until Jan. 8, when she is to sing at the Metropolitan Opera house, said she had gone into the movies as a pleasant interlude to opera. She had not forsaken opera, she said.

Miss Moore spoke of two pictures in which she was featured—"New Moon," in which she and Lawrence Tibbet, also a Metropolitan Opera company singer, both sang; and "The Lady's Morals," concerning the life of Jenny Lind.

Miss Hampton will depart for Europe soon to make a tour. Miss Moore will go to Paris to sing in the spring, she said.

EDITOR'S OWN EPITAPH READ AT HIS GRAVE IN BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 28.—(AP)—An epitaph, written by him shortly before his death, was read today at the funeral services of Richard Howell, for 40 years editor of the Bridgeport Herald.

Read by the Rev. E. J. Craft of Christ Episcopal church, the epitaph said:

I want no crêpe to hang upon the door when I die;
I want no bell to toll the way to where I lie;
I want no sorrowful prayers upraised to him on high;
I want no heart to sob nor any heart to cry.
I want the flowers, the bees, the birds to be around the day I go;
I want a bird to sing his song of evening, soft and low;
I want a bee to buzz around the place I rest;
I want a flower to bloom upon the mound atop my breast.

Newspaper men and officials of the state attended the services.

British Wives Ask to Retain Nationality

Parliament Debates About Alien Marriages.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The problem of a woman's citizenship following her marriage to a citizen of another country was pulled across the house of commons in a seesaw debate this afternoon during the second reading of a bill allowing British women who marry aliens to retain their citizenship. The British law makes a citizen of the foreign wife of an Englishman, but cancels the citizenship of an English woman married to an alien.

A plea for the bill was made by Dr. Ethel Bentham, Socialist.

"A woman under my professional care is so determined to remain under the protection of her own country," Dr. Bentham declared, "that she is deliberately determined, without marriage, to live with the man who proposed to her in order to retain her nationality. A woman should not be forced to choose between nationality and legitimacy of her children."

The incongruity of the law was pointed out by Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Socialist, who said that male members could marry women from anywhere in the world and retain their seats, but she would be kicked out if she married outside the kingdom. She complained that the opponents of the bill seemed to think that a wife should still be the reflection of her husband and not a separate personality.

Lady Astor declared that she was in a peculiar position to speak feelingly. "I am still a passionate Virginian," she said, "If I lived away from my country for 100 years I would still be a Virginian, but it does not effect my being a good citizen of England. I would choose English citizenship because of my husband, but it might be a different thing in another country."

Justice Hughes' Daughter to Be Married on Dec. 19

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Evans Hughes, daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, will be married to William Thomas Gossett of New York Friday, Dec. 9. The wedding will be attended only by the immediate families and will be held at the Hughes residence. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of the Riverside church, New York, assisted by the Rev. Dr. William S. Abernethy of Calvary Baptist church, Washington. After a brief honeymoon the couple will reside in New York.

Field Museum Hall for Sea Mammals Is the World's Largest

The opening of a new Hall of Marine Mammals—to be the largest of its kind in the world—has been accomplished by the recent completion of a sea lion and a walrus group at the Field museum. The exhibits are reproduced from scenes in the native haunts of those animals.

The new hall eventually will contain a series of 13 groups of sea mammals, all mounted in appropriate settings. Among them will be fur seals, harbor seals, ribbon seals, elephant seals, sea otters, manates, and the killer whale.

An artificial midnight sun, said to be an innovation in museum art and lighting, helps to display seven specimens of the walrus, males and females, large and small, which were obtained on the recent Thorne-Graves-Field museum arctic expedition. The background for the group was done by Charles A. Corwin, staff artist of the museum.

Thirteen mounted sea lions, captained by a large bull, are posed in the second group. They are shown lying on rocks over which a rolling sea is breaking.

Seek Asia's Rare Beasts.

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A five year exploration of the mountains of Szechwan province for study of little known animal life will be started Sunday by F. T. Smith of Long Island, N. Y., representing the field museum of Chicago.

Smith will be the only white man in the expedition. Five others will be Chinese taxidermists and photographers. Native hunters and trappers will be employed within the wilds of Szechwan.

Smith said the object was to study distribution of fauna over southeastern Asia, the first undertaking of its kind ever attempted. The party plans to return here next June, ship specimens to Chicago and go back to Szechwan.

The immediate purpose is to obtain specimens, both living and dead, of the giant panda, an intermediate animal between bears and racoons. First specimens were obtained by the Roosevelt brothers in the same area for the Field museum in 1928.

The expedition will hunt the takin, allied to the goat and antelope families, and the golden haired monkey.

Mencken Poses for Portrait; 'Not Movie,' Artist's Plaint

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—H. L. Mencken is having his picture painted, but he isn't going to pay for it.

The editor of the American Mercury was caught posing yesterday for O Richard Reid, Negro artist, but said he had no intention of buying it. It's for posterity—when his writings are forgotten, he decreed. But the artist interrupted the interview.

"Try to keep the mouth still for a few moments, Mr. Mencken," he asked. "remember I am not doing a motion picture."

HAROLD BAUER, WITH STOCK'S ORCHESTRA, DEBUNKS COMPOSER?

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It may be overstatement, it may be understatement, to say that Harold Bauer came on to join the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon. It is, however, somewhere near the truth, for Mr. Bauer, a fine, polished artist, would seem to be a person of considerable humility when he sits at the piano to play to the public.

He sounds at all times as though he shrank from enforcing himself upon attention at the expense of the composer's music. So when he appeared in Scriabin's "Prometheus, the Poem of Fire," and later in Franck's symphonic etudes he was less the masterful virtuoso than a highly efficient, highly intelligent part of the orchestra and its music.

It is not a customary attitude for a soloist. By its rarity it is a gracious, not to say an ingratiating, one. The Franck work has not sounded so well in years as it did yesterday. A horrid doubt, however, began to prevail during the Scriabin piece, once regarded with deep awe as a masterpiece of modernism. I hasten to add that the doubt lay at the door of neither Mr. Bauer nor Mr. Stock, both of whom were unexceptionable as interpreters, but it was whether the slight aroma of bunk that now pervades it is due to become more pronounced as years go on.

A real masterpiece preceded it, Mr. Stock's transcription for modern orchestra of Schumann's third, or "Rhenish," symphony. When Schumann wrote it, he had some fine invention and a first class idea of developing it. Now that Mr. Stock has wiped out his smudgy orchestration and replaced it with something of warm, definite, and greatly skilled coloration, it is one of the big pieces in the orchestra's repertoire.

There was also Kodály's "Háry János" suite, an example of musical humor that retains its point and its liveliness.

It was not many days ago that a disquieting newspaper notice came out of the east telling something to the effect that Fritz Kreisler was slipping. It is hard to believe, wherefore after hearing him at Orchestra hall last night there is particular pleasure in stating that it is impossible to believe. Kreisler still registers as the emperor of all violinists.

It does not make the slightest difference that there may be other violinists who perform technical stunts with more speed and facility than he is in the habit of doing. What makes the real difference is his angelic tone, his dignity, his serene poise in confronting his music. When he plays unaccompanied Bach he is the person most justified of all the world in playing unaccompanied Bach. When he plays a sonata by the little known Pasquali he opens up a new world of little known music. When he plays the Concerto in D by Mozart, he sets a new standard of what the classics really mean. He is, as he always has been, something of a magician as an interpreter. And there were also some charming short pieces on his program.

A good part of what he does at the violin is importantly assister by Carl Lamson at the piano, another veteran in music, who has had the unusual trick of diplomacy of growing gray of hair in just a bit more pronounced a manner than his soloist, while still maintaining his original delicacy of finger and brain.

Governor Tells How Beauty Helped Ailing

F. D. Roosevelt Recalls Start of T. B. Seals.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 28.—(AP)—If a young nurse at Wilmington, Del., hadn't been pretty, there might never have been a Christmas seal sale to save thousands of lives from tuberculosis every year.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York told the story of the beginning of the penny Christmas seal over a National Broadcasting company network tonight. The story concerns a nurse who was struggling 25 years ago to equip a tuberculosis hospital.

She was Miss Emily P. Bissell. Early in December, 1907, her task at Wilmington seemed almost hopeless. Funds were low; her few patients were needy. Then a story about the Danish Christmas stamp provided an idea.

She shuffled out of the snow and stood in the outer office of the North American in Philadelphia, Gov. Roosevelt said, and asked to see the editor. The editor was busy, but he inquired:

"Is she good looking?"

"Sure, she is," replied the office boy.

"Show her in," said the editor.

For fifteen minutes Miss Bissell unfolded her idea of the Christmas stamp. Downstairs dashed the editor to the office of Mr. Van Valkenberg, president of the paper.

"Tell Miss Bissell," was the message that came back to her, "the North American is hers from today."

Editorial space was given in the paper, and demands for the stamps came in so fast the little lady from Delaware was bewildered. Soon she built a new hospital. Tuberculosis associations were formed throughout the country, and each year a Christmas seal sale was conducted to support tuberculosis work.

About the same time that Miss Bissell's idea grew, Gov. Roosevelt recalled, the late Dr. Herman Biggs, former health commissioner of New York, made a remark soon to become famous, "Health is purchasable," and from it sprang today's slogan that prevention is better than cure.

"Back in those days," Gov. Roosevelt reminded, "no cure was known for tuberculosis. A person with the disease was looked upon as an outcast. His relatives and friends shut him up in an airless room and there he remained to wait the end."

Hoover Aids Campaign.

President Hoover yesterday placed his approval upon the annual sale of Christmas seals which supports the campaign against tuberculosis. The President's son, Herbert Hoover Jr., is undergoing treatment for the disease in a North Carolina sanitarium.

"The Christmas seals of the National Tuberculosis association which are sold at Christmas time every year provide funds for one of the most valuable of all services to mankind in helping to prevent and destroy a disease which threatens millions of homes and weakens millions of the children and youth of the nation. I commend this yearly campaign to all our people," the President wrote.

The seal sale campaign was opened in Chicago and Cook county on Thanksgiving day by the Chicago Tuberculosis institute which conducts a year round campaign aimed at prevention or early discovery and early recovery of the disease. The local institute is distributing 105,000,000 seals.

Portrait by Gainsborough Bought by St. Louis Couple

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A Gainsborough portrait of Mrs. Edwin Lascelles, an ancestor of the earl of Harewood, husband of Princess Mary of England, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Jamison of St. Louis. The canvas, thirty by twenty-five inches, is a half length, full face portrait of an alert young woman painted while Gainsborough was in his early thirties and belonging to his late Ipswich period.

Chicago Violinist Tries to Block Deportation; Before Federal Board

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(Special.)—The fate of Michel Wilkomirski, Polish violinist of Chicago, who faces deportation for alleged illegal entry, still was in the balance today as a board of immigration officials failed to reach a decision.

Wilkomirski's home is at 2835 Cambridge avenue, Chicago, and he is teaching in a Chicago school.

According to evidence at the hearing, Wilkomirski was admitted at Detroit in 1926 as a nonquota immigrant. His intention, he stated then, was to remain in the country permanently as a professor of violin. According to immigration authorities, the violinist does not have the two years active experience as a professor in his native country necessary for admission on his visa.

In his plea to the board, Wilkomirski said he was ignorant of any violation of the immigration laws, and based a plea for clemency that he has been here two years, established himself, and married. Several Chicagoans, well known in the music world, are understood to have appealed in his behalf with the board.

Arts Club Tea Draws Society to See Paintings

BY THALIA

The Arts club tea yesterday afternoon to open an exhibition of paintings by Margaret Sargent [Mrs. G. A. Shaw McKean] and one of Picasso drawings was one of the most animated affairs there has been all fall. The attendance was large and fashionable, the atmosphere zestful and gay.

Mrs. McKean appeared on the scene for a few minutes with her host, Frederic C. Bartlett, after having attended the Symphony concert.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, wearing a black crepe gown banded in gold cloth and a small satin hat with an uncurled ostrich plume at one side, was present during the early part of the afternoon. Assisting at the tea tables were Mrs. John Borden, who wore a black and white frock trimmed with white galyak and a knitted silk hat; Mrs. Shreve Badger in rose red, Miss Margaret Hamilton in emerald green velvet and a white felt beret, Mrs. Howard Linn wearing scarlet crêpe diagonally hemstitched and with an attached scarf collar and a brown chenille hat edged in fur, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed in black and blue-gray crêpe and a black satin hat.

Others present included Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. Chalkley Jay Hamilton, Mrs. William H. Bush, Mrs. Ralph Winston, Mrs. Paul Moyer, Chauncey McCormick, Arthur T. Aldis and his son, Graham Aldis; Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Miss Anna Morgan, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. Edward H. Pasmore, Mrs. William A. Yager, Miss Clara Lake, and the Walter S. Brewsters and their daughter, Mrs. Duncan Hodges.

Besides the Arts club tea, there were two debutante receptions yesterday afternoon, one at the Casino for Miss Suzette Morton, daughter of the Sterling Mortons of 179 Lake Shore drive, and one given for Miss Elinor Whiting by her mother, Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, at their residence at 1436 North State parkway.

Miss Morton, who came on from Vassar, where she is a freshman, for her party, wore a black velvet frock trimmed with Venetian lace and carried a bouquet of gardenias. Her mother was also attired in black velvet.

Miss Whiting's debut frock was of scarlet velvet, long and with short sleeves and a collar of cream lace, and she carried green orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Whiting wore black velvet, and the bud's aunt, Mrs. R. H. McElwee, who received with her and Mrs. Whiting, wore powder blue lace. Miss Whiting is convalescing from an attack of bronchitis and so was unable to be present at the dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson gave at the Casino for her and Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh following the tea. After the dinner-dance the young people attended the Arden Shore ball at the Palmer house.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster are to entertain the Print and Drawing club of the Art institute at their residence at 2704 Lake View avenue tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Clare Leighton, the English artist, is to speak on "Wood Engraving: A Lost Art Revived."

Contents for the "stockings all hung by the chimney with care" may be purchased at the Christmas Stocking shop on the Lake Forest square during the next fortnight, beginning on Monday. Mrs. W. David Owen and a group of the other young matrons who run the Junior League bookshop in Lake Forest are managing the store, and the proceeds will go to the Junior league charity funds.

Toys, tiny enough to be stuffed into stockings and doll house furniture comprise the stock, which is twice as large as last year's because of the success of the first sale held several weeks before last Christmas. Mrs. Owen has contributed some foreign toys that she got in Germany last spring. The committee in charge includes Mrs. E. E. Tullis, Mrs. Frank B. Clement, Mrs. Harlan Eldred, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Mrs. William S. Covington, Mrs. Arthur Burrows, Mrs. Arthur Dixon Jr., Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. Lawrence Williams Jr., and Mrs. Hempstead Washburne.

Princess Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, who has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum for the last week, is to give a tea at O'Brien's art galleries, where some of her paintings are on exhibition, on Tuesday afternoon. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Baum, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. Hugo Simon, Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mrs. Theodor Brentano, Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

The Chicago delegation to a meeting of the national executive committee of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform to take place in Louisville next Wednesday includes Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Kent Clow, Mrs. Vincent Healy, Mrs. Clifford Rodman, Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. George E. Brennan, and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler. Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national president, is to be present and will speak at the meeting.

Dr. George Burgess Magrath of Boston, who is to arrive in Chicago next Wednesday morning to speak before the medical association and the Chicago Woman's club, is to be the house guest of Mrs. Frances Glessner Lee of 1458 Lake Shore drive while he is in the city.

Miss Mary MacCaughey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. MacCaughey, has returned from the east, where she attended the Yale-Princeton football game, visited Mrs. Stewart Patterson in New York, and later was the guest of Miss Sara Davis in Pittsburgh. Mrs. MacCaughey leaves today to motor to Florida with her mother. She will return in about 10 days, to remain until late January. The MacCaugheys are residing at the Seneca hotel this winter during Miss Mary's debut season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haven Windsor Jr. of 418 Sheridan road, Winnetka, are being congratulated on the birth of a son, William Tod Windsor, on Thanksgiving morning at the Evanston hospital. Mrs. Windsor, who was Miss Louise Hunter before her marriage, was at one time a member of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Buswell have moved from the Belden-Stratford hotel to 1120 Lake Shore drive.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This distinctive black Canton crêpe frock is equally smart with or without the peplum frill on the skirt. It wraps the figure with its surplice bodice and side closing skirt, achieving an unusually slender effect. Transparent velvet, crêpe marocain, crêpe satin, flat crêpe and crêpe Roma are smart suggestions for all around wear.

The pattern, 2816, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅛ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Facial Massage Means Getting a Good Circulation

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A correspondent admits confusion about the different kinds of massage recommended for home facial treatment. She says there is the grazing movement, the kneading, the molding and the slapping, but how is the poor uninitiated to know which she should use on her face?

The answer is much the same as was given to a woman seeking advice about scalp massage: "It doesn't matter if you bump your head against the wall a hundred times so long as you get the circulation stirring in your scalp."

It doesn't matter if you pinch, mold, pat or pommel your complexion so long as you manage to bring the blood to the surface and put it into proper action.

For the uninitiated the stroking or the patting may be the simplest way of getting the circulation started. After the face is cleansed and a new supply of cream is laid, you can go over the entire facial area, raining light blows until you feel the tingle of life under the skin. You can slap the cheeks to beat up circulation in the tissues underneath.

Stroking is good, too. You use the cushion part of your fingers and go softly over the skin, describing up and out movements always. In amateur massage work the important thing to bear in mind is not to pull down on the cheeks. Always use the up stroke in the direction of the ears and temples.

On the forehead, stroking is best. It's a form of smoothing out the wrinkles. Begin at the center and smooth outward, each hand going in opposite direction.

I know a woman who kneads in deep movements and whose skin is exceptionally responsive after six months of this kind of massage. She kneads deeply, beginning with the muscles at the side of her neck and working up to the eye line.

Paris Afternoon Coats Dress Up for Evening

BY BETTINA BIDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris fashions have become more darkly luxurious than they have been at any time since the renaissance, but they remain intensely practical for all that. Paris couturiers are creating coats that do double duty for day and evening; others are transformed from morning to afternoon by leaving off the separate belt; the sleeved evening dresses are other good all round mixers; separate fur sets change the aspect of morning, afternoon and evening costumes while you wait. And then there are the tunic blouses, the fur boleros and the slip-on jackets that all do their best to make themselves useful in sartorial circles.

Sketched above, is a velvet coat from the Maison Lenief, that can be promoted from afternoon fashions to the evening mode by changing its scarf. It's of rich, dark, brown velvet lined with copper brown velvet. Its draped bishop sleeves are furless and it has no collar. A small broadtail cravat passes through a shirred loop of the velvet attached to the back of the neck, and ties under the chin for daytime wear. In the evening, it is replaced by a long, luxurious scarf of the dark brown velvet lined with the copper brown velvet and edged with sable.

It is worn, copper side out, pulled through the loop in back and passing under itself in front to fall in a loose end to below the knees, as you see by the picture. A Venetian cap of brown velvet may be worn in the afternoon or to dinner and the theater. The new afternoon sabots are of dark brown patent leather.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Monroe is one of the smaller counties in the state of Illinois, but it holds the state record for the largest amount of limestone hauled and spread in a single year by farmers in their efforts for more efficient crop production.

C. M. Linsley, soils extension specialist of the State College of Agriculture at Urbana, says that last year the Monroe county farmers used 43,000 tons of limestone, or enough to cover 12,000 acres, which is approximately 10 per cent of all the crop land in the country.

The next five counties, rated according to the amount of limestone used, are: Madison, 38,000 tons; Clinton, 36,000 tons; St. Clair, 34,000 tons; Washington, 28,000; and Randolph, 28,000.

"The Monroe county farm bureau, cooperating with the extension service of the agricultural college, has pushed the use of limestone and sweet clover ever since it was organized several years ago. As a result Monroe county farmers have used more than 125,000 tons of limestone during the last five years. They have come to realize that they cannot afford to farm land that will not grow clovers. When sold at present prices poor crops grown on wornout acid land do not return a large enough income to meet taxes, interest, and other overhead costs of farm operations and still allow a living wage for the farmer. Limestone is being applied to this acid land so that clovers can be grown and the clover in turn is being used to feed the grain crops that follow. In fact the slogan of Monroe county is: "Feed limestone to sweet clover and sweet clover to the grain crops."

Food Talk.

We have had several letters from men recently asking for that home-made pork sausage recipe we promised a few weeks ago. The first call came in about the time we had our first frost. Which is about when men begin to sigh for sausage.

There is no better meat dish than good sausage—the kind we used to make on the farm—of young pork fed on yellow corn and the mast [acorns] of the oak woods. The fat and lean from the loin and ham and shoulder trimmings compounded into an unctuous mass, with just enough pepper, black and red, and a little more sage to bring out the innate sweetness of the mixture, made one of the most delicious of meat products. Seasoned and cooked properly, it is a viand as haughty as fried oysters, broiled lobster, and roast duck.

If you have never learned to appreciate sausage you ought to visit in some country house about butchering time. Then you will be willing for a great platter of sausage cakes to grace your supper or dinner table. Made by the old formulas and seasoned in the good old fashioned ways, sausage reaches the height of its perfection.

The farm families that I know usually make from 50 to 75 pounds at butchering time. Enough is kept out to last two or three weeks. The rest is canned and forgotten until the following summer, perhaps in harvest time when the appetite is keen.

It is an easy matter to can this sausage. All that is necessary is to fry the cakes in the usual way nice and brown on both sides. Put into sterile glass jars and pour the fat left in the pan over the sausage.

While it may not be practical for city dwellers to make quantities of sausage and can it as they do on the farm, it is worth while to make it in the quantities called for in the following recipe. Meat is as inexpensive at the present time as it has been for years. Why not give your family a treat—a pleasant change from lamb chops, frizzled beef and pot roast? It is quickly made. All you need do is to choose the desired cut of meat, ask your butcher to grind it, bring it home and season it in a jiffy. But once you start making it . . .

PORK SAUSAGE.

3 pods red pepper, medium size, shredded fine.
1½ teaspoons black pepper.
1 tablespoon salt.
2 teaspoons powdered sage.

Choose pork loin or pork butts [pork shoulder] and the fresher the better. Grind fine, add seasonings, and mix well. Be sure the black pepper is ground fresh and that the sage is fresh. Shape into globular cakes about the size of a hen's egg. Broil in a hot skillet until brown on both sides. Lower flame and continue to cook about 20 minutes and serve with brown gravy left in the pan. This sausage will keep in good condition for several days in the refrigerator, but it should be well covered so that other foods may not absorb the spice and meat aroma. Some people use a little nutmeg or mace in addition to the seasonings given above. One-eighth teaspoon is adequate for 4 pounds sausage.

Yield: 28 cakes, or enough for 14 servings. One serving: total, 207 calories; protein, 41 calories; fat, 162 calories; carbohydrates, 4 calories.

An Ever Present Baby Problem Is Helped by Reading

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: I have long wanted to write to you but have never been desperate enough until this morning.

"I have a small boy a year and a half old whom I am having a troublesome time in training to use the toilet. Just about the time I can say to myself, 'Well I have him trained for this time in the day,' he goes entirely off schedule.

"He is a normal child in other respects and in comparing him with some children I think he is above normal, but in this respect he falls far short of my expectations. I am taking the entire blame on my own shoulders, for somewhere along the line I must have fallen down. Can you give me some suggestions?

"If there are helpful books that I can read will you send me a list of them? I majored in kindergarten-primary education at the university, but those courses did not deal with the child as young as mine and at the present time do not help me to any great extent."

"My dear Mrs. B—: First, let me tell you not to be so distressed because your little boy is not trained regularly to use the toilet at eighteen months. Children vary a great deal in this respect.

Control is achieved early by some perfectly normal children, late by others. So don't worry so over it and as soon as you are calmer, more matter of fact about it, you will handle the baby better. They feel the tension in the air and it hinders rather than helps.

Incidentally the fact that your small son is perhaps unusually bright may figure in the slowness with which he is acquiring routine. Sometimes highly intelligent and active children resent the interruption of their play. Also you may be making some slight mistake in managing. Avoid associating punishment or scolding with the bathroom sessions. Use praise lavishly and soft pedal the blame.

"But the way I can help you best is to suggest that you read on the subject, since I haven't time enough to write you fully. Read the relevant parts of a good baby book such as "Building the Baby," by Caroline Van Blarcom. Also the chapter on this subject in a good book like "Child Care and Training" by Faegre and Anderson, published by the University of Minnesota Press. In "Children in the Nursery School" by Harriet Johnson the subject of this phase of the training of children from eighteen months to three years is discussed in a very interesting way, and one quite new to many mothers."

Light Headed Sister Proves Her Metal in This True Tale

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A story comes to me of a wife whose recent character development proves again that you never can tell about a woman. With the seemingly most light headed ones you have no way of knowing until a great moment of test comes what courage and spirit they may bring to a crisis.

Here was a girl referred to as a light headed sister. Laughingly, indulgently, people talked about her care free attitude toward life. No one held any grudge against her, particularly, for it. They didn't take her seriously enough for that. She spent money like a drunken soldier. Every new wrinkle that came out, she had first. Every new movie, every new show she could tell you all about. She knew every smart dancing place in town.

She made a half hearted bluff at keeping up a small apartment. But she and her husband ate out more often than in. The man was earning a pretty good salary. He made some extra money when stocks were booming and by a graceful trick of fate he was one of the few heard about who got out just about where he went in. So what the woman spent could be afforded, all right, except that the idea of saving wasn't in the girl's character.

Well, there came the blow of a loss of a job, and a month of unemployment, two months, three. Bibcey went the handsome diamond engagement ring.

There followed a loan on the other jewel trinkets which didn't net so much, but they did bring in the bacon for the table and the other tidbits that are necessary to a reasonably full stomach.

To his disheartened protests at her parting with her jewelry, and her kitchen duties she said: "O, be yourself! We had a swell time when you had it. Now, let me treat." Still no employment at the end of three months, and nothing more pawnable or salable. The girl went down to a well known restaurant and got a job as waitress. Her luncheons and dinners are free, the tips, she says, are "swell" and she's glad to get them, for her "sweety" has got to be taken to a movie to get him out of his depression. And it's time she treated, for when he had it, she was his movie gal.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Won't Ask Her Out.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend never asks me to go out with him. Please advise. SEL."

Not a thoughtful man, is he? Why not try your luck with others?

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Informal Greeting.

My cousin had been gone to the corner store a few minutes when the door bell rang. Knowing she had a latch key and suspecting a trick, I shouted through the speaking tube, "Applesauce."

A faint but distinctly feminine "Hullo" greeted me. I replied, "O, applesauce, applesauce."

Again the bell rang. I rushed downstairs and angrily jerked open the door and found—a prominent woman, wife of an internationally known artist, who had come to call upon my aunt. M. L. H.

NOTRE DAME MEETS ARMY IN 17TH BATTLE

WALKER WINS IN FIRST ROUND; CHRISTNER INJURED

K. O. TAKES OFF, THEN LANDS WITH KNEE FRACTURE

BY EDWARD BURNS.

K. O. Christner, a heavyweight from Akron, O., injured his right leg last night in an inartistic pitch out of the Coliseum ring in which he had been engaged to fight Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and as a consequence Walker won by a technical knockout in the first round.

Christner, who probably hadn't figured on fighting just the way he did during rehearsals, hit a chair and injured the knee of the right pin.

The successful departure of Christner from the fighting premises came 10 seconds after the fighting started and was his second attempt to get through the ropes. It should be said in favor of both artists that there was little punching before the sad accident to Mr. Christner. The plunge through the ropes was aided somewhat by one of Mickey's lefts.

Less Than 4,000 See Fight.

It may have been that the two gentlemen were not adequately flattered by the turn-out of citizenry, fewer than 4,000 being on hand when the athletes entered at 10:30 o'clock. Walker, the talented but proud performer, is not accustomed to fighting before such small groups, and the outcome was the easiest way, perhaps, to conclude an unhappy evening, not counting on Christner's unfortunate injury, of course.

After the dissatisfied customers had been ejected from the hall, taking their cries of "fake" with them, Dr. F. C. Hanmore, the commission physician, examined Christner's leg and found he had suffered a fractured knee, and a leg hemorrhage. There were no bruises to indicate where Walker's wicked blow, if any, had landed. Christner was taken to the Wesley Memorial hospital.

O-o-o-h! Gen. Clinnin!

Christner made his first effort to get through the ropes in the first fifteen seconds of fighting, but in seeking a spot to land looked right into the face of Gen. John V. Clinnin of the boxing commission. Apparently he decided this was no place to get knocked out of the ring, so he and Mickey made one circle of the ring and found a spot occupied by telegraph operators.

Defying all possibility of being electrocuted by Western Union wires, Christner took a good look at the spot below and then went through the ropes.

As previously related, the young man had the misfortune to become tangled in a chair that wasn't there in the afternoon, and his injury resulted.

Walker in Fine Shape.

Walker was in fine shape to have staged a more impressive show, weighing 156½. But there was that meager gathering and Mickey Walker is no neighborhood fighter.

In seeking other reasons for the precipitate close of an otherwise interesting card, it was pointed out that the fighters feared pneumonia, the setting having had something of the features of an open air show. But again the small crowd may have been a factor. Coal costs money, too.

The judges in the main bout were Al Klein and R. A. Goudie. The referee was Johnny Baehr.

Rolling Bozo, nee J. Curtis Hambright of Birmingham, Ala., made his debut in the north by winning an eight round decision from Harry Dillon, rugged heavy from Winnipeg, Canada, in the semi-final bout.

Mr. Bozo, a highly eccentric gentleman, gave the fans many a laugh during his part of the program, though in no sense a clown when it came to turning loose long swings which hit Dillon from all angles.

Robinson Beats Dane.

Jack Robinson of Cicero won from Louis Dane in the first preliminary. They met in the heavyweight class.

Al Keegan was given the decision over Bob Stone in the second five round preliminary. Both are Chicago heavyweights.

Johnny Gale of Three Oaks, Mich., and Sammy Levine of Chicago, bantams, fought five rounds to a draw.

Tiny Wee Gale, 118, of Three Oaks, Mich., was awarded a five round decision over Willie Pelligrini, 121½, of Chicago.

Paul Dazzo, former Golden Gloves boxer, knocked out Al Anzaloni, Chicago Heights, in the second round. They are featherweights.

Reds Release Outfielder and Pair of Pitchers

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, today said three local National league players had been released outright to the Columbus American association club. The trio included Evar Swanson, one of the fastest defensive outfielders in the majors, and Kenneth Ash and Marvin Gudat, pitchers.

YANKEES BUY BATTERY.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Jim Weaver, pitcher, who last season won 21 games for Baltimore of the International league, and his battery mate, Tom Padden, have been sold to the New York Yankees, George M. Weiss, general manager of the Orioles, said today.

THE GUMPS—NOT A CHANCE

POOR BROKEN HEARTED BIM—
HE HAS TALKED WITH HEAVENEYES FINALLY—SHE WILL SEE HIM TONIGHT—
WHAT WILL BE THE OUTCOME?
THINK WHAT THIS EVENING MEANS TO BIMBO—
WHAT HE SAYS—
WHAT SHE SAYS—
WILL DECIDE THE FUTURE—
YOUR LOVE TO MY HEART HAS BEEN AS APRIL AIRS TO VIOLET ROOTS—
YOU ARE TO ME LIKE A BRIGHT STAR ON A DARK SEA TO THE BEWILDERED MARINER—
YOU HAVE SHOWN ME THE WAY TO HAPPINESS—
YOU'VE FILLED ME WITH CHEERFULNESS AND A HAPPY HOPE— AND THEN—
OH, HEAVENEYES— CAN'T YOU UNDERSTAND?
I LOVE YOU SO DEARLY—
I'M WILD ABOUT YOU—
I CAN'T GIVE YOU UP—
THERE— THERE— NOW DON'T BE A SILLY BOY—
YOU COULD NOT CARE FOR ME AS YOU SAY AND POSTPONE OUR WEDDING AS YOU DID— BECAUSE A DIAMOND WAS STOLEN— IS THAT LOVE?
THE KIND THAT YOU PROFESSED JUST NOW?
I WAS READY THEN— MY TROUSSEAU WAS READY—
AND YOU HELD ME UP TO RIDICULE BEFORE THE WHOLE WORLD—
NO— BIMBO— IT IS ALL OVER BETWEEN US—
NOW— LET US BOTH BE SANE— FORGET OUR LOVE— AND LET IT ALL TERMINATE IN ONE GREAT BIG FRIENDSHIP—
I HAVE KNOWN CASES WHERE FRIENDSHIP ENDED IN LOVE— BUT WHERE LOVE ENDED IN FRIENDSHIP— NEVER!

Knudson Carries Chicago Vote for Valuable Player

Walter Knudson, outstanding back field player on the University of Chicago football team, yesterday was chosen unanimously as the most valuable member of the Maroon eleven by his teammates. Knudson will be entered in the competition for THE TRIBUNE'S award to the most valuable Big Ten player.

Coach A. A. Stagg paid high tribute to Knudson in announcing the selection.

"I think that the men made the best possible choice," the Old Man said, "and to the honor paid him by his teammates I add unstinted praise. Knudson has been a wonderfully steady an effective player, and his spirit has been fine. He was a first rate kicker, his punting getting us out of trouble many times. He was a superb tackler, and Chicago's best ball carrier. Knudson certainly made the greatest individual contribution to the tea this season."

Popula with Fans.

Wally would have won the honor had the vote been left for the Chicago alumni who watched the Maroons this season, for his unflagging effort made him the most popular player on the team. Knudson never quit trying. He was the only consistent ground gainer on the team and was used more than any other back.

Knudson probably was most effective as a defensive player. Quick to size up a play, he made tackles all over the field. The heavy assignment of duties wore the Maroon back out so that he literally was exhausted when a game was over.

Played at Lane Tech.

Knudson is a Chicago boy, and lives at 3052 Palmer square. He attended Lane Technical High school, and played quarter back on that school's team in his junior and senior years. He weighed only 140 in high school. Knudson won his numerals at Chicago in his freshman year, and won a minor letter as a sophomore. Under Coach Stagg's attention he developed rapidly in spring practice. Added weight helped him win a regular position as full back and his major "C" in 1929.

Wally's most ardent admirer is his grandfather, who knows little about football and because of rheumatism was unable to attend the games. He was unable to attend the games. He got his football by radio, and as a spur to his grandson's work promised him five dollars for every touchdown. Maroon touchdowns were few and far between this season, and the grandfather, gathering from the radio descriptions that Wally wasn't at fault, made contributions anyway.

Knudson is a quiet and unassuming youth of 22, who talks but little on or off the football field. He is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He will be graduated next June.

MAROONS' BEST

GOPHERS PICK MUNN

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Clarence (Big Gun) Munn, 202 pound guard, has been chosen by Minnesota football players as the most valuable player on the 1930 squad in a poll taken to nominate the Gophers' candidate for THE TRIBUNE'S most valuable player award.

Munn finished the 1930 Big Ten football season as one of the greatest guards that ever wore a Maroon and Gold uniform. Munn used his 202 pounds of weight and his 5 feet 10½ inches of height to develop into an accurate kicker as well as a triple threat in the back field and a powerful guard offensively and defensively.

Munn is not a one sport athlete. He's an exceptional performer on the track. He still holds state interscholastic records in the shot put, javelin, and 100 yard dash. In 1928 he was undefeated in the century and once was timed in 10 seconds.

Munn has supported himself and Mrs. Munn (he was married in his senior year in high school) while competing in athletics.

ART SHIRES SOLD TO BREWERS FOR $10,000 IN CASH

What-A-Man to Report Next Spring.

Milwaukee, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Art [The Great] Shires has been purchased by the Milwaukee American association baseball club for $10,000 cash from the Washington Senators, Lou Nahin, vice president of the Brewers, announced today. Nahin said the new first baseman, widely known for his publicity antics, would start spring training with the Brewers.

While Nahin announced there was no trade in the purchase of Shires, local sports writers said there might be some player involved with the St. Louis American league club, which controls the Milwaukee Association club.

Shires Is Pleased.

Shires, reached by long distance telephone at Hollywood, Cal., where he is being used in one reel comedies, said the purchase was "one of the greatest breaks I ever got."

"Why, I'm too good a ball player to be sitting around on a major league bench, and I told Clark Griffith that last year," he added. With his usual reticence, "What-a-Man" advised local persons he will "be available as a toastmaster or guest of honor at any banquets planned for me."

Predicts Winning Pennant.

He closed the modest 600 word statement with: "I won't be any trouble to anybody. I just want to play baseball and earn my way back to the big show. I'll give the town a pennant winner sure."

Shires was recently married to a University of Wisconsin co-ed, resident of Chicago. In telling how he liked Milwaukee Shires said it would be handy to "visit the folks" in Chicago.

BROWNS NOT IN DEAL.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28.—(AP)—L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the St. Louis Browns, said tonight the Browns had no connection with the deal which sent Art Shires to the Milwaukee baseball club from the Washington Senators. George Stanton, Milwaukee first baseman last year, has been recalled by the Browns.

The Globe-Democrat says Shires, however, "doubtless will come to the Browns some day, now that he is owned by the Browns' class AA farm."

N. U. PRESENTS SHILLALAH TO NOTRE DAME

Northwestern and Notre Dame in the future will have something tangible to fight for. Kenneth L. Wilson, the Purple's athletic director, last night presented Knute Rockne with a shillalah made out of wood from Ireland 100 years ago. It will be retained at Notre Dame until Northwestern wins a football game from the Irish.

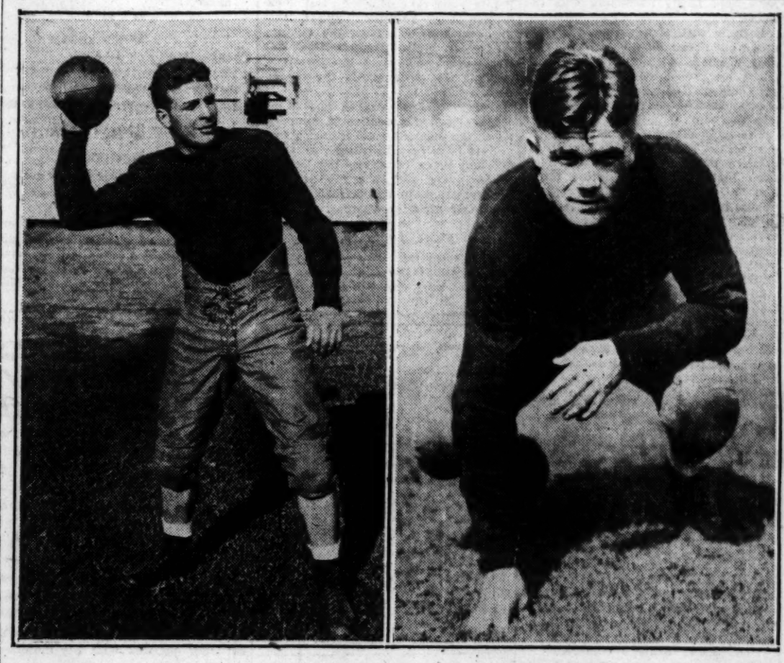
The presentation was made at the Lake Shore A. C., where 400 members of the Notre Dame club of Chicago were hosts to officials from the United States Military academy. The dinner was in celebration of 18 years of pleasant athletic relations between Notre Dame and the Army.

Among the speakers were representatives of several teams Notre Dame has defeated this season. They included Judge Walter P. Steffen of Carnegie Tech, H. O. Page of Indiana, Dick Hanley of Northwestern, Edward Lytton of Drake, Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh and A. R. Brunker of Pennsylvania. Aubrey Devine represented Southern California.

The West Point guests were Lt. Col. Richardson, Maj. Philip Fleming, and Maj. Ralph Sasse.

The Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Shell, auxiliary bishop of Chicago; the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame and Knute Rockne were other speakers.

TODAY'S FIELD GENERALS



Two great quarter backs will meet when Notre Dame battles the Army eleven at Soldiers' field this afternoon. Frank Carideo (left), who has led Notre Dame through its string of seventeen consecutive victories during the last two years, will call signals for the Irish today. Wendell Bowman, one of the best field generals in the east this year, will have charge of the cadet eleven. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Notre Dame is prepared to meet the challenge of the undefeated Army.

This afternoon the Irish troops passed in review before Knute Rockne and he pronounced them fit. Tomorrow morning forty-two varsity men, to whom defeat has been but hearsay for two years, will leave at 8 o'clock for Chicago. They will be flanked by the others on the varsity squad for whom the trip is recognition of their services now concluded.

Drill in Field House.

Today's practice, held in the field house, as all drills have been this week, ended football at Notre Dame. The season is finished for all except the 42 selected to face the Army, and nine of these men must remain at home when Notre Dame entrains Monday afternoon for Los Angeles and the University of Southern California.

"The boys look better today?" Rockne asked in that emphatic manner of his which answers a question without repetition. "More pepper," he added. Then, without pause for the comment he originally invited: "See the difference since Wednesday? More snap, great team, the Army. Fine sportsmen. Play hardest against us.

"They think they'll beat us. Hmmm. Mebbe so. Wouldn't be surprised.

Maybe They're Wrong, but Cadets Expect Victory Today

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

It seems silly of them to think so, considering that they couldn't beat Yale, but the Army football players have some idea that they will be the people to lick Notre Dame for the first time in two years when they play their annual game in the big arena on the Chicago lake front this afternoon. Notre Dame probably would have beaten Yale by half a dozen touchdowns, and, judged by their record for the season up to the date of this climax, Notre Dame is much the better team.

The Notre Dame coach, Mr. Rockne, is conceded, by one and all to be the greatest football coach in the country. The Army's head coach, Maj. Ralph Sasse, is a football coach only by order of the war department, and, in his own time as a cadet at West Point, couldn't play the game well enough to earn a varsity letter in six years.

Rockne Has His Pick.

The Military academy draws some experienced men from the civilian colleges who undoubtedly increase the strength of the varsity team, but Notre Dame, due to Mr. Rockne's success and his advertising knack, receives more good players from the high schools and prep schools than any other university in the land. One day this season Mr. Rockne had three complete teams, with adequate substitute personnel, on the road, and there were still left on the campus at South Bend enough football players to man the positions of half a dozen varsity teams in a pretty good league.

The Army officers who have been hopping off the trains and flopping down out of the skies in Chicago to watch the game have an idea that their team will win by sheer devotion to Maj. Sasse and the Military academy, but this doesn't seem reasonable, because the Notre Dame players are pretty much the same type of young men and they are very devoted to their coach and their school, too. Thus, the game probably will be the usual test of proficiency, speed, endurance, and reserve strength.

The Notre Dame team would seem to be the more skillful, but the Army players come to this game unusually strong, even for football players.

Their good health is so ostentatious that Mr. Keene Fitzpatrick, the Princeton trainer, when he took a look at them, emitted a cry of rapture and called them perfect. The Notre Dame squad was hammered badly by the Northwestern team in a bitter game only a week ago, and probably will not be as bouncy as they might have been after a longer rest.

The West Point squad has been

Here Are Tribune Writers' Picks in Army-Irish Game

Arch Ward—The Army always is tough for Notre Dame. This is one of the strongest elevens that has come out of West Point. The team that pounces on the breaks will win the game. That is why I pick Notre Dame, 7 to 6.

Westbrook Pegler—It's easy to pick Notre Dame but I'm not lazy. I pick the Army.

Harvey Woodruff—Notre Dame to win by one touchdown, say 14 to 7, is my guess. Army has a good line but in punting and back field versatility, the Irish probably are superior.

French Lane—The Army is going to come galloping home in this event. The score, 13 to 0.

Wilfrid Smith—The Army rests its hopes for victory on a great line and an advantage in playing schedule which has permitted three weeks' rest with this game as the major consideration during that time. A frozen gridiron is a disadvantage to both. It increases the hazards on attack with greater possibility for errors. However, Notre Dame is at least one touchdown better on any field and I believe the Irish may win by two touchdowns, particularly if they score first.

Edward Burns—The Northwestern hangover will take a touchdown or two from Notre Dame, so the score probably will be 14 to 6, Notre Dame's favor.

Irving Vaughan — Notre Dame's running and passing attack should be sufficient to beat the Army, possibly by 7 to 0.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

For the seventeenth time in eighteen years Notre Dame's eleven today gets around to the job of trying to whip the Army. Eleven such attempts have been successful; one was a deadlock. But today, at least in the eyes of the Army, the 120,000 who worm their way into Soldiers' field are to see the moleskin portion of the cadet corps draw the curtain, temporarily, on the dominance of their mid western rival. Notre Dame, of course, has different ideas.

The Army, out west for the first time to face its friendly enemy, bases its confidence on the best team historic West Point ever has produced. It's an eleven of versatile habits. It can run, pass, plunge and kick. But Notre Dame also can do those things. It has proved this by outclassing eight foes in the current campaign so it is reasonable to suspect that when those 120,000 rise up in the dusk and do an about turn toward the exits they will have seen an Irish eleven at least one touchdown better than the Army.

Irish Like Firm Footing.

Notre Dame along with its confidence has a worry or two. One is that the gridiron, unprotected against the snow and prevailing arctic blasts, may raise a barrier against light men moving speedily. That's Notre Dame's forte. The other worry is the physical condition of the few Notre Dame stalwarts who for the past few weeks have been trying to rid themselves of serious battle hurts. Despite these they survived against the powerful, bulky Northwestern eleven last Saturday. They might do it again if not bumped too soundly on the frozen turf.

If the value of Notre Dame's speed is cut down by treacherous undergoing or the ailing units removed before the last pistol barks, then the Army beef may begin to tilt the scale. The cadets have a big advantage in line weight. They have an edge in plunging because Notre Dame no longer owns a Joe Savoldi, the marital errant. The beef and the plunging might be sufficient to send the light Irish skidding. Ellizalike, over the ice and into defeat.

May Call on Heavy Men.

Rockne, for the third time this year, will start and retain the services of his regulars as long as possible or warranted. If the first string men, because of their lack of heft, begin to lose ground, some of the shock troops will be summoned. Rockne will pick out the heavy men among this class. These will include Dan Hanley, the green 195 pound full back, and Frank Butler, the Chicago boy who can supply in excess of 200 pounds as a stop gap at center.

It is evident the Irish eleven is well balanced, except for a plunger, in the 14 to 0 triumph over Northwestern. Mullins, although a good blocker and excellent defense man, couldn't do things as Savoldi had done them. Running and passing had to be relied upon. But Rockne finally decided some plunging was necessary so turned the inexperienced Hanley into the middle of the arena. The switch served to clinch the second touchdown, but the chief purpose of the change was to prepare against eventualities—in this case the Army.

Look Out for Schwartz.

If speed is to count then the Army can do well by itself by watching Marchy Schwartz, the Irish Jew, who operates at a half back post. It was his dashing about that ruined Northwestern and others. He also passes, probably as accurately as anybody the cadets have encountered this year. He will go some place if his cleats hold.

Against the running attack in which Schwartz specializes, the Army can counter with Kilday and Steker. Kilday, who had the honor of registering the touchdown against Yale, will start. Steker who twice crossed the Illinois goal line will be reserved for an emergency. What the Army can do in the

La Barba Gets Decision Over Bud Taylor

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Fidel La Barba, coast lad who formerly held the world's flyweight title, conquered Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., featherweight veteran, tonight at Madison Square Garden, but as an elimination for a world's featherweight championship battle the contest was a total loss.

Through ten rounds of action that was principally mauling, tiresome action, albeit the pace was lively throughout, La Barba fought his way to the decision because he was always on the attack, driving at his opponent despite Taylor's advantage in heighth and reach.

Verdict Is Unpopular.

The verdict was not popular with the crowd, but neither was the fight. The decision had more of justification than did the character of the battle, developed for a crowd of about 7,500 which paid $25,036 in gross receipts in anticipation of a ring encounter which had promised more interesting action.

There could be no disagreement with the decision, however, beyond the sentimental emotions of the onlookers, because La Barba, pressing in tirelessly and unflagging on the attack, carried off five rounds to Taylor's three. Two were even. La Barba won the second, third, fourth, seventh and ninth rounds. To Taylor went the fifth, sixth, and eighth rounds. The first was about even and the tenth, which closed with furious fighting, likewise was even.

Both Fighters Disappoint.

The contest held a championship significance which only emphasized the disappointment it developed from a competitive standpoint. It is proposed to match the survivor with the winner of the Bat Battalino-Kid Chocolate fray on Dec. 12. But in the ten rounds tonight Taylor eliminated himself as a contender for Battalino's title and La Barba did not prove himself a ranking star.

Maroons Elect Sam Horwitz 1931 Football Captain

Letter men of the University of Chicago football team yesterday elected Sam Horwitz, guard, captain of the 1931 eleven. Horwitz stood out in the playing of the Chicagon line all season.

Horwitz weighs only 168, but is fast and clever. Because of his ability, Coach Stagg used him at tackle and end this year as well as at guard. The Maroon captain played his prep football at Englewood High school, and was an "all city" selection. He is 20 years old, a junior, and member of Phi Delta Sigma fraternity.

Joe Temple, half back, was the last surviving candidate against Horwits in the election.

kept under glass, so to speak, ever since the boys detrained here on Thursday morning. They have not yet inspected the field in the municipal arena, but took their final exercise yesterday indoors in the armory of the 124th Field Artillery and confined their work to signals and a few passes. The press has been excluded from the team's quarters at the South Shore Country club and, generally speaking, the boys have been sheltered from the little vexations and disturbances of worldly life as though they were so many operatic whoopers preserving the operatic mood while waiting for the curtain. Maj. Sasse has been with them constantly and the exalted morale of his men is freely attributed to his leadership as an officer.

Army Morale Sky High.

The same morale has communicated itself to the other officers from West Point who have to do with the management of the game and the distribution of the Army's share of the tickets. Maj. Phil Fleming, the graduate manager; Capt. Walter Wells, the publicity officer, and a number of miscellaneous colonels, majors, and captains, all in mufti, agree that this is the Army's year to lick Notre Dame and thereby win some sort of national football championship, and for their reason they rely on some inexpressible faith in the team and Maj. Sasse.

Maj. Fleming, in fact, has been making some complaint because he has been unable to bet any money on the Army. However, the trouble probably has been that he didn't know where to go for this coverage, as there are many stores in Chicago where a party can find the service he craves.

Capt. Biff Jones, who was the Army's head coach until this year, came down wersiap in an Army plane today after a flight through a blizzard from Fort Sill, Okla., where he is study up on his artillery work, neglected during his long service at West Point. His pilot was Chick Harding, who was quarter back on the Army team that played the Navy to a tie in Chicago in 1926. They stepped out, shedding ice and snow, and joined the football squad at the Country club. Capt. Jones hobbling on a sprained ankle suffered a week ago when he refereed a game in Oklahoma and stepped into a gopher hole.

Cadets Will Relax a Bit.

After Saturday's game the Army team will break, at at any rate sprain training for a period of about one week lest they go stale in their game with the Navy for charity in New York on Dec. 13. In their case to break training means to smoke a few cigarets and eat a pound of candy. When the effects of this debauch have worn off they will resume practice, and notwithstanding their officers' claim that the Navy game is regarded as no more than a casual and informal exhibition, the West Point team undoubtedly will approach that date as a second climax of the season.

The Army line is now the strongest department of the team, and Price, at left tackle, is undoubtedly one of the best players of the year. However, the line would have been even stronger but for the loss of Hillsinger, the regular right guard, who has been out most of the season due to an injury suffered during the wrestling season last year. A muscle in his back was torn from its fastenings and there is some question as to whether the doctors will certify him as fit to serve as an officer when graduation time arrives. Trice, his substitute, has been only a substitute after all and would be retired to the status of understudy if Hillsinger could return tomorrow.

Will Sasse Reap Glory?

There is no reason to pick the Army to beat Notre Dame, except that the Army always plays hardest and best against Mr. Rockne's teams. And, of course, there is that special matter of the devotion to Maj. Sasse. If the Army wins, then Sasse, in his first year as head coach, licks the greatest coach in the business and closes his season undefeated, all of which would be sure to count in his record in the war department.

NOTRE DAME AND ROCKNE FIT AND READY FOR ARMY

"Get That End!"

Rockne paused, his attention attracted by a flaw in the run just made from a punt formation.

"Get that end," he shouted across the field. "That's what happened when Carideo ran last Saturday."

Momentarily Rockne paced behind the team watching intently as Carideo repeated the signal. Then he returned.

"Start first team line and second back field tomorrow," Rockne resumed with appreciation of reportorial problems on the day before a game when information is meager and has been searched vainly for new facts.

"Koken, Hanley, O'Connor, and Jaskwhich will handle the ball. Then we'll send in the regulars."

Rockne's Not Worried.

Rockne is not worried about tomorrow's game. This doesn't mean, of course, he's confident of victory. Rather, the team is in condition. All the men who played against Northwestern for the western championship are available. The team's attack is no less deceptive and it is as potent as on those days when Carnegie, Pittsburgh, and Pennsylvania were overwhelmed.

No Fretting About Weather.

Neither is Rockne fretting over weather conditions. Soldiers' field gridiron is frozen. It may be covered with snow by game time, but these factors are accepted with fatalistic calm. Other coaches may waste time wishing for better conditions, but not Rockne. His team may be handicapped by ice, but he remembers the opponents are playing on the same field.

Rockne's worries also are minimized by his system, which depends for execution of details by assistants. Today

Hunk Says They're Ready.

"They're all ready," Hunk reported after the last of the blue shirted boys had dashed for the dressing rooms.

"Fine," was Rockne's answer, for he knows if Hunk says the boys are ready, he means just that.

Rockne left immediately for Chicago. Anderson will be in charge of the team tomorrow morning.

The 42 players who will face the Army tomorrow are: Baillie, Kosky, F. Leahy, Pierce, Cavanaugh, Rogers, Metzger, Kurth, Mahoney, Jaskwhich, B. NOTRE DAME AND ARMY CLASH FOR 17TH TIME TODAY way of passing is doubtful since the retirement of Cadet Letzelter, who was the mainspring of the aerial attack.

Northwestern, supposedly a polished article so far as forward passing was concerned, tried it against Notre Dame and failed dismally. This won't discourage the Army from trying it.

Tickets Still Available.

Although all but a few of the "end" seats for today's spectacle had vanished from the market more than a week ago, there was no particular scarcity of ducats last night. The prospects of weather too uncomfortable for all except hardy customers was the cause.

Persons with a weakness for comfort were about loop hotels last evening, offering, at a slight increase over box office prices, seats inside the 30 yard lines. Tickets not particularly choice could be picked up at four dollars the copy.

The scalpers were basing their conduct on the possibility that the weather man might ease up a bit before noon today. The speculators found only a moderate market for $4.40 tickets held at prices ranging from $7 to $25. The $25 editions were box reservations. If the mercury hovers close to the zero mark this morning most of these ducats will be obtainable at regular rates.

In the betting Notre Dame ruled a 2 to 1 favorite, but there wasn't much action. Army money was scarce, despite the confidence of the Cadet backers. Some Notre Dame backers gave even money that the Irish would finish in front by ten points or more.

BIG SIX TAKES NO ACTION IN KANSAS UNIVERSITY CASE

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Representatives from universities in the Big Six athletic conference adjourned tonight without taking any action on the status of the University of Kansas other than to announce that the controversy on Kansas' eligibility in 1931 would be settled here next Friday at the regular session of conference faculty athletic representatives.

The faculty athletic conference to which the matter was referred is the same body that voted last month in Columbus, Mo., that Big Six schools would not schedule games with Kansas after this year, because of charges of subsidization and recruiting.

Today's meeting, which included heads of the universities, faculty athletic representatives, and athletic directors from Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa State, Nebraska, and Kansas Agricultural school, adjourned after 12 hours' discussion.

PORTSMOUTH AND BEARS TO CLASH HERE TOMORROW

Several former Big Ten stars will be playing with Portsmouth tomorrow when it clashes with the Bears at Wrigley field. Willis Glasgow and Mayes McLain of Iowa, Frosty Peters of Illinois, Chuck Bennett of Indiana, and Tiny Lewis of Northwestern will be among those who have previously written history in Big Ten competition.

Although Portsmouth is playing its first season in the National league, it is one of the most dangerous aggregations in the circuit and will be battling for a berth in the first division here tomorrow.

Joe Savoldi will start at full back for the Bears. The former Notre Dame star's performance against the Cardinals Thursday was highly satisfactory, despite the fact that he had only three days of practice.

Notre Dame-Army Today.

Notre Dame and Army end the college football season in this vicinity this afternoon at Soldiers' field, where a crowd approximating 125,000 will view the spectacle. Army's conviction that it has a great chance to win, in fact, that it will win, is somewhat at variance with that of expert opinion, which has become accustomed to picking Notre Dame.

The cadets hold the advantage of having had two easy games while the Irish emerged a bit bruised from their hardest fray of the season against Northwestern last Saturday. West Pointers say that with the possible exception of one spot they have the best line ever sent out from the military academy. Notre Dame's line was about equal to that of Northwestern, perhaps the strongest in the conference.

Players and, of course, spectators, are hoping for a change in temperature. To meet any conditions, Army players have been provided with three different setes of shoes—for ice, for muddy going, and for a fast field. It promises to be a spectacular contest, no matter what the weather.

Gives Title to Purple.

Dear Harve: Prof. Dickinson gives Big Ten honors to Michigan over Northwestern. Under his system, if Northwestern had beaten Ohio State, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, each 100 to 0, and Michigan had beaten Purdue, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and Chicago, each 7 to 6, still Michigan would be champion.

Why not my system instead? There are only nine teams this year [leaving Iowa out]. Count 1 for beating No. 9, 2 for No. 8, and so on. That way Michigan adds up 21 and Northwestern 25. I defy any one to prove my system is inferior to his. Isn't it strange to award honors to a team that barely beat most of its opponents when Northwestern soundly thrashed all its Big Ten opponents. Well, that's what professors are for—to prove what is, ain't. I ought to know, for I used to be one myself.

Paralysis Follows Injury to Monmouth Full Back

Monmouth, Ill., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Stanley McConnell, full back on Monmouth college team, is lying on a hospital bed tonight with the lower part of his body completely paralyzed, due to injuries received in a game yesterday. Physicians said he sustained either a fracture or dislocation of the neck, causing injuries to the spinal column.

STRIBLING TAKES A DIVE LANDING GLIDER ON LAKE

Orlando, Fla., Nov. 28.—(AP)—W. L. Stribling, the boxer, was doused with cold water here today, but not by his seconds.

Stribling arrived in his airplane from Miami with his father and his wife, and saw a glider on the surface of a lake near the airport. He asked permission to fly it, admitting he had never flown one. Airport officials agreed, and the glider was pulled into the air by a high powered motor boat. Stribling did well with the motorless machine, but it was while landing the craft on the lake that things started.

He made a beautiful landing, airport officials said, but as the pontoons struck the water a wave upset the glider and Stribling went into the middle of the lake, clothes, parachute, and all. Weighted down by the 'chute, he disappeared under the water. A motor boat went to the scene and the boat's pilot pulled Stribling from the water.

TWO AMERICANS TO RUN TODAY IN ENGLISH RELAYS

CAMBRIDGE, England, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Two American Rhodes scholars will be running for Oxford in the annual Oxford-Cambridge relay races here tomorrow. They are E. W. Goodwillie, who will run both the 400 yards and the ¼ mile, and F. L. Hovde, half miler.

Goodwillie is a former track star of the Chicago Athletic club and Cornell university, who came to England with the Cornell-Princeton team that ran against Oxford-Cambridge in 1926. Hovde was quarter back on the University of Minnesota football team. Both competed in the relays last year.

TRAFFIC CHIEFS TELL ROUTES TO SOLDIERS' FIELD

Chicago traffic chiefs have emerged from a huddle with a few suggestions to help 120,000 people get in and out of Soldiers' field this afternoon, and motorists who are not bound for the big game are given some tips on how to keep out of a jam.

If you're driving to the field, here are some things to remember. There are five bridges across which traffic from the north may enter Grant park. These are at Monroe, Jackson, 7th, Harrison, and 11th streets. Police have urged motorists not to pile up at the first two, but to continue southward where a more advantageous crossing may be made.

Use the West Sidewalk.

If you're walking, follow the west sidewalk of the inner drive to 14th street, where police will help you over.

Here are some suggestions to keep through traffic from being tied up. After one o'clock all south bound motorists should keep out of Grant park, going directly south on Michigan, Wabash, or State to 22d street, there turning east to South Park way. North bound drivers are urged to use the same streets.

Between 3:30 and 4:30 p. m. no cars will be allowed to enter Grant park from Michigan avenue, and during the same period northbound traffic on the outer drive will be turned off at 21st street.

One Way Traffic.

While people are going to the game there will be no west bound traffic permitted on 7th, Harrison and 11th streets, and after the game there will be no east bound traffic on these streets.

Parking space will be provided east of the stadium as well as to the south. There will be no parking in Grant park between 7th and 23d streets this morning except for those holding tickets to the game.

De Paul Plans Defense for Brooklyn 11

When De Paul university's football team meets St. John's of Brooklyn at Soldier's field tomorrow it will be well schooled in breaking up passes. The Blue Demons spent the greater portion of their practice session yesterday preparing a defense for the easterners' aerial attack. Most of St. John's victories this season have been achieved through the air.

It was by means of forward passes that San Francisco gave De Paul its only defeat of the season, 13 to 0, last week.

Coach Eddie Anderson may start Grabowski, 178 pound tackle in Cherne's place tomorrow. Grabowski, functioning in a reserve role, has shown particularly well in the last three games. Borelli, Cowhey, McLean, and Morse have recovered from injuries and will be available for guards.

Proceeds of the game will be given to St. Vincent's orphanage.

LANE PLAYS TODAY.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The postponed Thanksgiving day football game between Benton Harbor High school and Lane Tech of Chicago, will be played here tomorrow afternoon, officials decided today.

Maybe we are "TOO LIBERAL"

A De Soto Sedan can be bought for as small a down-payment as $305

Ordinarily, the allowance for your present car more than covers this initial payment.

Our reputation for being liberal with the public in our allowances on cars traded in on new De Soto Eights and Sixes is the natural result of the way we do business. We are not afraid to take in used cars, because we know how to move them. To us, the so-called used car "problem" is no problem at all. With two leaders like the De Soto Eight and the De Soto Six, we are accustomed to handling a large volume of trade-ins—and are organized for it. Then, too, every De Soto car we sell helps to sell other De Soto cars. That's why we find it is good business to be liberal in appraising old cars brought to us for trade. We not only make it easy to own a new De Soto but make each customer a valuable friend.

DARTMOUTH GRID TEAM TO BATTLE STANFORD TODAY

Eastern Eleven Boasts Stronger Record.

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Dartmouth's Green Indians, 3,000 miles from their home base in quest of new football honors, will face Stanford's Red Indians here tomorrow in the first big intersectional contest to be played on the Pacific coast this season.

One of the leading teams in the east, Dartmouth comes west with a record of no defeats and one scoreless tie with Yale. Stanford's record is not so impressive, includes a scoreless tie with Minnesota and an overwhelming defeat by Southern California.

Stanford Boys Improve.

Records notwithstanding, the slow starting Stanford elevtion, are strongly favored in this section to take the measure of the squad from Hanover. Today in development, Stanford stepped out of its lethargic state to give smashing victories over Washington and California.

Coach Jack Cannell of Dartmouth has made no predictions, but from the barred gates of the stadium where the Green Indians worked out this week have come reports of rigorous practice against defense of Stanford's wide reverses and three man lateral passes.

Use Three Backfields.

Yale conceded a stronger line, Dartmouth probably cannot match the backfield combination that carries the colors of Stanford. Coach Warner has three sets of ball luggers, all interchangeable and most of them heavy.

Part of the proceeds will be turned over to help relieve the unemployment situation in this section. With an advance sale of more than 25,000 tickets, those in charge look for an attendance reaching over 50,000 persons. The probable lineups:

ALABAMA ELEVEN TO GO WEST FOR ROSE BOWL FRAY

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 28.—(AP)—For the third time in six years Wallace Wade is polishing up an Alabama football machine to represent the south and east in the Rose bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's day.

Formal invitation to participate in the New Year's day battle between the east and west was received here today and President George H. Denny of the University of Alabama accepted the challenge to meet Washington State, 1930 champions of the far west.

Twice before an Alabama eleven has thrilled thousands who packed the California stadium to see the season's football curtain fall with this intersectional engagement. In 1925 the Crimson tide won from the University of Washington, 20 to 19, and the next year tied Stanford, 7 to 7.

N. Y. Girls' Hockey Team Conquers Chicago, 3 to 2

Winter Feed Necessity for Game Birds

BY BOB BECKER.

Unless an extensive, coöperative program of winter feeding for game birds is carried out this winter, sportsmen in the central states are going to see a real shortage of pheasants and quail next fall. The zero wave which spread over the country this week has emphasized the need for this worthwhile conservation work. It's time to serve meals to the feathered residents if we want brood stock to go through the winter.

Several ornithologists, conservation officials and sportsmen's organizations have sounded the call to action within the last few weeks. The most recent pronouncement on the problem comes from Dr. Miles D. Pirnie, ornithologist for the state of Michigan.

Urges Food Provision.

He urges that the sportsmen get together with the farmers and start at once to provide food for the game birds. Too often the boys who like to hunt upland game birds are inclined to sit back during the gray winter days and let the landowners hustle the grub for the pheasants and the quail which these very same hunters will be hot to sail into the following hunting season. Looking at the brighter side of this farmer-sportsman proposed partnership to raise more game, we find that there is more and more attention being paid to winter feeding by scores of Izaak Walton league chapters, hunting organizations, and landowners.

The severe drought of the past season which decimated the food supplies of birds and brought on ruinous grass fires; poor crops that resulted in slim pickings for the birds, and overgrazing of meadows and pastures have cut down the natural food supplies of ground feeding birds until they actually face starvation this winter.

Illinois Is No Exception.

Illinois is no exception to this widespread situation. The recent cold wave and snow is the first of many hurdles for the birds in their long winter race to find food and shelter. Now is the time to distribute corn on the cob, grains such as wheat, rye, barley, etc., to the quail and pheasants.

Bruins Battle Rochester on Stadium Floor

Rochester Centrals, champions of second half of the American Professional Basketball league, make their first appearance of the year at Chicago Stadium tonight to engage the Bruins. The Centrals bring back to Chicago the same smooth combination featuring Tiny Hearn and Kintzing, which last year specialized in coming from behind, particularly against the Chicago quintet.

The feature of tonight's battle is expected to be the fight between Hearn and Pat Herlihy at center. Hearn, the old George Tech star, is the tallest center in the league. He stands six feet nine inches. Herlihy, on the other hand, is rated the best center in the pro organization. His debut as a Bruin Wednesday night was most auspicious for the manner in which he outplayed and completely smothered Jos Lapchick.

The same Bruin team which defeated Cleveland on Wednesday will start. Murphy and Hickey will be at forwards, Herlihy at center, and Barak and Kennedy at guards.

The Taylor Trunks will meet the Wilson Packers, South Chicago league champions, in a preliminary at 8 o'clock. The Bruin-Central game will start at 9. Public dancing will follow the Bruin game.

Maywood Prep Gridders Visit President Hoover

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Returning home from a football game in Everett, Mass., members of the Proviso High school team of Maywood Ill., stopped in Washington long enough today to be presented to President Hoover. The Illinois school beat Everett High, 7-6.

WINNETKA BOY IS CAPTAIN.

Sheffield, Mass., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Fred W. Fairman Jr. of Winnetka, Ill., today was elected captain of the Berkshire school 1931 football team.

PAPER THAT USED FESLER'S NAME IN AD ADMITS ERROR

Columbus, O., Nov. 28.—The Ohio State Lantern, university newspaper, acted today in defense of Wesley Fesler, all-American football end, against possible ineligibility charges which might be raised against him for allowing his name to be used in an advertisement.

Fesler's picture appeared in a book store advertisement in the Lantern Nov. 20, along with a testimonial advocating the use of books supplied by the advertiser, but the statement "was carried in error and without authority," the Lantern admitted in an apology today.

BANK IS CLOSED AT BENTON; CITY NOW BANKLESS

Demands of Depositors Cannot Be Met.

Benton, Ill., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The First National Bank of Benton closed its doors today when the institution was unable to meet the demands of depositors.

The bank is the second to close here in three months and leaves the city bankless. The Illinois Bank and Trust company failed to open here on Sept. 26 owing to frozen assets.

G. C. Cantrell, president of the First National, said the bank was not able to realize on its loans fast enough to meet demands of depositors.

The institution had a surplus of $100,000 and capital of $100,000 with deposits totaling $1,000,000.

Bank at Ullin Closed.

Ullin, Ill., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The First National Bank of Ullin was in the hands of national bank examiners today as the result of its closing Wednesday because of frozen assets.

The bank had assets of $117,000, capital, $25,000; surplus, $5,000, and loans totaling $137,000. Part of the frozen assets, directors said, consisted of $34,000 in stocks and school bonds. Bank officers are J. R. Sneed, president, and Lloyd Rhymer, cashier.

Bank Fails to Open.

Middlesboro, Ky., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The Citizens Bank and Trust company failed to open today due to heavy withdrawals and slow collections, an announcement posted on the door said. The bank's affairs have been placed in the hands of the state banking commissioner, President H. A. McCamy said. The bank's deposits as of last July were $825,000.

Directors Close Bank.

Corinth, Miss., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Directors of the Corinth Bank and Trust company announced today they had closed the bank "temporarily" to go over its affairs and prepare for an increase of $100,000 in its capital stock.

The directors said the bank would not be placed in the hands of the state banking department. They said a quarter million dollars in cash was sent here by the Federal Reserve bank.

The bank's recent statement showed deposits of $1,653,792. Withdrawals were said to have caused the closing.

Shares Up for Sale.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 28.—(AP)—More than 1,200,000 shares of stock in the Inter-Southern Life Insurance company had been deposited today with the American National bank under an agreement whereby receivers of Caldwell & Co., investment bankers, seek to dispose of the stock in which the investment banking house is interested.

The agreement provides that the stock be purchased at $1.50 a share.

The receiver for the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co. was authorized today by Chancery court to sell 345,580 shares of the stock owned by the bank and pledged as collateral to various creditors. The court directed that proceeds from the sale should be applied on the bank's obligations.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Au Revoir

BUSINESS CHIEFS AT FUNERAL FOR C. H. MARKHAM

Stop I. C. Trains for One Minute.

Hundreds of friends from the world of industry—leaders of finance and workmen from the ranks—attended the funeral yesterday of Charles H. Markham, chairman of the board of the Illinois Central system, who died on Monday at Altadena, Cal.

As solemn requiem high mass was sung at 10 o'clock at the Holy Name cathedral, every wheel on the Illinois Central railroad stopped for one minute. At the same time a minute of silence was observed in every department of the railroad system.

Praised as Self-Made Man.

Tribute to Mr. Markham as a self-made man was paid by the Rev. Father James F. Callaghan of St. Malachy's church following the mass. He praised the railroad leader's quality of consideration for others and his friendship with associates and employés.

"The loss to the business world is great. The loss to his friends is far greater," said Father Callaghan. "He was not only gentle to his associates and employés, but he had a faculty for inspiring others."

Business Leaders Attend.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and J. Paul Clayton, president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, were among the large delegation of business men attending the services.

A long list of honorary pallbearers included the names of officials of other railroads, and business, professional and industrial leaders of the city. The active pallbearers were L. A. Downs, A. E. Clift, J. L. Bevan, G. E. Patterson, D. W. Longstreet, G. J. Bunting, A. G. Mann, and F. L. Thompson. Burial was private.

Richard A. Dale, Clerk for U. S. Marshal, Dies at 39

Richard A. Dale, chief clerk in the United States marshal's office, died yesterday of pneumonia in the Michael Reese hospital. Mr. Dale became ill last Saturday and was taken to the hospital from his home at 1317 Madison park, where he lived with his brother, Kyrle. He was 39 years old and had been in the government service seven years.

Hunt Racket Clews in $12,000 Fire at Dairy

Theories that Chicago milk racketeers started the fire which caused an estimated damage of $12,000 early yesterday to the John Player company dairy at Warrenville, eight miles west of Wheaton, were being investigated by Du Page county authorities last night. Fifteen gallons of kerosene, contained in a drum, apparently had been sprinkled over the plant before the blaze, according to John M. Player, 331 Union street, Wheaton, the owner.

Report Chinese Bandits to Free Two Irish Priests

PIEPING, China, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Irish priests, Laffan and Lincham, who were captured by bandits last spring, were to be released today, it was reported here. They were held prisoners with the Spanish priest, Ferrandez, who was released last Wednesday and is now aboard a British gunboat in the upper Yangtze river.

SPECIALIZING IN BAIL CASES BARED BY PROSECUTOR

Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt, in charge of the bail bond investigation to be placed before the December grand jury, announced yesterday that he has discovered that professional bondsmen have specialized in furnishing bail in certain kinds of cases.

The prosecutor called attention to the case of R. J. Frierson, who, it was said, furnished bond only for women charged with prostitution and those charged with being keepers of resorts. It was discovered that he posted bond for 192 such defendants this year. A four story brick building at 4428 Prairie avenue, was scheduled for most of these bonds, and other pieces at 5356 and 5400 South Michigan avenue, were used. Both properties are mortgaged and are worthless for bond purposes, the prosecutor charged.

Albert Ford, it is charged, specialized in giving bonds for pickpockets. Property at 5342 Hutchinson street was scheduled for seven bonds. The assessed value is $11,772 and an incumbrance of $3,500 is listed against the property.

Gets $600 in Holdup of Office; Escapes in Cab

A bandit last night entered the second floor office of a General Market house at 3714 Cottage Grove avenue and forced Miss Edna Ford, 833 East 65th street, the cashier, to hand over $600. The robber escaped as a fare in a Yellow cab. The driver, John Schreiber, 5427 Cottage Grove avenue, told Wabash avenue police the man paid his fare and left the cab at 63d street and South Park avenue. He said he did not know there had been a robbery.

HUGE LANDSLIDES TERRORIZE JAPAN; PEOPLE IN FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 29 [Saturday.]—Great landslides occurred in the Toyama prefecture on the Japan seacoast early this morning. No casualties have yet been reported, most of the inhabitants having fled to safety areas. Landslides covering about 20 acres in various parts of the prefecture are spreading terror among the inhabitants.

Dr. Akitsune Imamura, Tokio Imperial university seismologist, and Prof Seiichi Kunitomi, head of the meteorological bureau, today issued a statement placing part of the blame for the recent earthquake on the Tanna tunnel through Mount Higane, which is nearing completion. This tunnel, an engineering marvel, was started ten years ago and will cost $15,000,000.

The statement urges the discontinuance of the tunnel. Several cabinet ministers are backing the move. The statement says the quake was caused by pumping vast quantities of water from the bowels of the earth, which resulted in a readjustment in the earth's formation.

NEW U. S. ENVOY TO MEXICO BANS RUM IN EMBASSY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—Joshua Reuben Clark Jr., new American ambassador to Mexico, announced today that no liquor would be served at the American embassy during his term here.

The reception of Mr. Clark, who presented his credentials to President Ortiz Rubio today, was one of the shortest in diplomatic history here. It occupied exactly twenty minutes from the time the ambassador rode into the national palace grounds to the accompaniment of the American national anthem, and escorted by Mexican cavalry.

Mr. Clark made a short address and President Rubio a short reply. Both expressed hope that the future relations of the two countries would continue most friendly and both expressed regret at the departure of Retiring Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, one as a friend and the other as a benefactor of Mexico.

Deaths of a Day

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Capt. J. E. B. Stuart, son of "Jeb" Stuart of confederate army fame, died in Istokpoga, Fla. He was 71. Word of his death was received by Mrs. Stuart, two daughters and a son. Also surviving are three other daughters, Mrs. D. M. Smith of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. L. P. Grover of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. R. A James of Danville, Va. He was an officer in the Spanish-American war and was in France for 18 months.

Dr. F. J. Conroy, Former Chicago Physician, Is Dead

Funeral services will be held in Rock Island Monday morning for Dr. Francis J. Conroy, 45, eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist, who died at his home in Grand Rapids, Mich., from a heart attack. Dr. Conroy is a native of Chicago, and after being graduated from the University of Illinois in 1911 he practiced for twelve years in Chicago. During the world war he headed a hospital train in France with the rank of captain. His widow, Blanche M. Conroy, and his father, James Conroy of Chicago, survive.

A. B. NEUMANN, BUILDER OF GARY, DIES IN EUROPE

A. B. Neumann, consulting engineer, died yesterday in Dusseldorf, Germany, according to word received by his family at 4749 Beacon street. He was born in Norway 60 years ago, and came to Chicago in 1898.

He was best known for his platting of Gary, Ind., and his designing of the steel mills there. His fame as an engineer attracted foreign delegations to him for aid during the war. Mr. Neumann drew plans for many of the larger mills throughout the country, and only recently assisted in the rebuilding of mills at Manchester, England. His recent visit to Europe was in the interests of the $175,000,000 soviet steel pant in Russia, which is being constructed by the Freyn Engineering company of Chicago.

Surviving Mr. Neumann are his widow, Mrs. Claudine Neumann, a son, Leif E. of Paris, and a daughter, Mrs. Einar Graff.

Bertha D. Knobe, Former Tribune Writer, Is Dead

Franklin, Ind., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Miss Bertha Demaris Knobe, 60, died at the family home here today after an illness of several weeks. Miss Knobe came to Franklin more than a year ago from New York to care for her father, Louis Knobe, 91, whose death occurred in October. She had been ill since. Miss Knobe was born in Franklin and after being graduated from Franklin college in 1891 she engaged in writing. She was employed for some time on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and then became a professional protégée of William T. Stead of London. She obtained the exclusive right for all book reviews on his book, "If Christ Came to Chicago."

Saskatchewan to Shut Off Beer During Depression

MOOSEJAW, Sask., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The liquor board plans to close twenty-five beer stores in Saskatchewan before the end of the year. Attorney General McPherson announced the decision last night to the Saskatchewan Prohibition league, which passed a resolution urging that government control be suspended during the economic depression by closing all liquor and beer stores.

FARMER ON U. S. RESERVE BOARD IS DEAD AT 61

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Edward H. Cunningham, 61, of Iowa, a member of the federal reserve board, died at his desk this afternoon in the treasury department, a victim of a heart attack.

Mr. Cunningham was the farmer member of the board. He received an interim appointment from President Harding on Jan. 25, 1923, and was confirmed on Jan. 22, 1924. His term would have expired on Jan. 24, 1933.

His home was in Cresco, Iowa. He is survived by the widow, who lives here, and one son in Iowa.

WESTERN ROADS SEEK FAIR DEAL FROM UNCLE SAM

Present Plea Monday; Rail Stocks Fall

BY O. A. MATHER.

The great western railroads, which in recent years have borne the brunt of freight rate restrictions and consequent low earnings in relation to their property values, will present their plea of better treatment to the interstate commerce commission next Monday.

The complaints of these carriers and recommendations for changes in rate structures and conditions affecting competitors of the railroads were drawn up yesterday in Chicago by a committee composed of three railroad presidents. They will be forwarded to Washington today.

The findings of the committee are in response to an invitation by the interstate commerce commission to present a comprehensive brief of the whole situation. This action followed numerous complaints on specific freight rates in the last few years and several pleas for a general revision of the entire rate structure.

The action of the railroad men in Chicago yesterday coincided with an announcement in New York by the Association of Railway Executives, which represents every big railroad in the country, that sweeping legislative relief will be asked from congress.

Shares Reflect Troubles.

The troubles of the railroads have been reflected strongly in the market prices of their stocks and bonds recently. For example, the securities of several big carriers sold yesterday at their lowest prices in years. There was the spectacle of Illinois Central stock selling at 76, the lowest price in 30 years, although this road has been a consistent dividend payer and its present rate is $7 a year. And the Illinois Central yesterday reported larger net earnings for last month than in October, 1929, and received notice of a tax refund of $950,721 from the government.

Missouri Pacific stock dropped to 21, the lowest price in six years. And premier railroad stocks that in former years were regarded as among the safest investments suffered from unreasoned liquidation. New York Central sold below 127, although paying $8 a year; Atchison and Union Pacific, both paying $10, both sold under 135; Pennsylvania, paying $4, was below 59; Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific, both paying $5, sold at 62 and 52½, respectively; Baltimore and Ohio, paying $7, sold under 71, and Rock Island, also paying $7, fell to 62. And Erie first preferred and Chicago and North Western, both paying $4, fell below 40 and 40, respectively.

Show "Unreasoning Fears."

"The prices at which securities of the big railroads now are selling show the unreasoning fears of many investors," one Chicago railroad president said. "Even if some of the roads have to reduce dividends temporarily, the present prices for their stocks are unreasonably low. Of course, we are going through a period of low earnings. But the railroads are the country's greatest industry and we believe they yet will win fair treatment, for the country cannot prosper unless the railroads prosper. I believe in a year or two we will look back on present prices for railroad securities and marvel that they ever sold so low."

But all the news of the railroads wasn't gloomy yesterday. The first fifty-eight railroads to report October earnings showed an average increase of 7.6 per cent over September and, although the total was a decline of 31.9 per cent from October, 1929, it compared better than the September figures, which showed a decrease of more than 30 per cent from September last year.

And evidence of "bargain" buying in railroad stocks came in an announcement by the Pennsylvania railroad that a new high record of 233,372 stockholders will receive the current quarterly dividend, which aggregates more than $13,000,000. The road now has about 20,000 more stockholders than a month ago and 44,444 more than a year ago.

NEW ERA MOTORS FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court today by New Era Motors, Inc., listing liabilities of $855,- and assets of $317,792.

Principal creditors were given as A. M. Andrews Investment corporation, which is owed $293,529, and Ashton & Russell of Chicago, $150,000, represented by a suit for alleged breach of contract not yet brought to trial. Principal assets were listed as stock in Moon Motor Car company, and notes from and stock in the Kissel Motor Car company.

Receivership for John Monroe & Co., brokerage house with offices here and in France, was made permanent today by Federal Judge Coleman. Liabilities total $5,910,000, against assets of about $7,100,000. The Irving Trust company was recently named temporary receiver.

NAT. RAILWAY SIGNAL

Boston, Nov. 28.—(AP)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the National Railway Signal company alleging preferential payments to creditors was filed here today by three creditors.

Maintenance of Wage Scale Is Discussed

BY SCRUTATOR.

Loss of employment time, rather than reductions in the amount paid for the basic hour or week of work, has been the outstanding contribution of labor to the costs of the present business depression.

We know, of course, that many firms have taken advantage of the surplus of workers to cut down hourly wage rates. Occasionally this has been a measure to keep a larger number employed; men or women who would have to be let out otherwise. But in contrast to 1921, when there was a concerted drive by employers and financiers to reduce wage scales, the news this year has borne more heavily on announcements that rates would be maintained.

Part of this is due to doctrinal influence. The assertion that prosperity can be fed only by well filled pay envelopes has seeped up to the top. Another part is due to disinclination of strong concerns to be swayed by the weaker. A third factor is the resistant power of the wage scales themselves.

Small Percentage of Cuts.

Although the loss of income to workers in the United States from 1929 to 1930 has been estimated as reaching nine billion dollars, the department of labor has found that only about 4 per cent of the reporting industrial firms made wage rate cuts in July, August, and September, while 37 to 38 per cent were operating their plants on part time schedules.

The United States department of labor recently issued information showing that the hourly pay of union workers in seventy-two classifications was higher in May, 1930, than in May, 1929. The statistics were gathered in sixty-one cities and covered 758,211 workers. Of the groups, forty-seven held their time as more valuable in the latter year, twenty-four had taken reductions, and one remained stationary.

Hours Decline, Wages Rise.

Bakers' scales fell, as an instance, from 97.9 cents an hour to 96.5. But the building trades as a whole raised theirs from $1.352 to $1.41; chauffeurs and teamsters from 71.5 cents to 73.2 cents, linemen from $1.019 to $1.128, and book and job printers from $1.049 to $1,074. For the whole number of persons studied the hours of work per week fell about 2 per cent while the average wage per hour rose from $1.204 to $1.25. This is something of a remarkable depression record. For the man who had a job, income was larger, hours were shorter, and living expenses less.

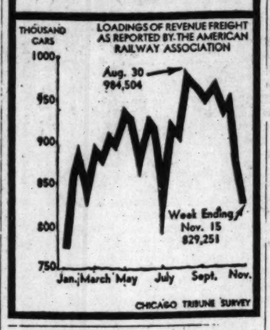
It remains to be seen, of course, whether wage rates can be stabilized at present levels while commodities stabilize themselves at lower ones than we had for ten years past. It can be done only if production costs can be kept low. This requires that the labor employed produce more units or give greater service for its hourly pay.

Trades Benefit.

In a certain sense labor, and with the consent of employers, is trading the benefits of high pay against a certain amount of unemployment. There are observers who hold that both the worker and society as a whole suffer through the attempt to maintain a disparity too great. The answer of the American Federation of Labor and other advocates is that high wage scales represent the living standards of the future; that without them key industries which flourish by making what are termed luxuries would disappear.

The fairly good maintenance of the scales has at least kept the country from strikes and the threat of strikes that marked 1921. It has kept alive, too, the belief that there will be, with resumption of volume in business, ample markets for luxury goods, barrelz daily.

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE AFTER PASSING SEASON'S PEAK



OTIS STEEL PASSES QUARTERLY DIVIDEND ON COMMON STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 28.—Directors of the Otis Steel company voted today to omit the quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share on the common stock. The regular quarterly dividend on the preferred was declared. The initial dividend on the present common stock was paid in October, 1929.

The action of Otis directors follows dividend cuts or omissions in recent months by Republic, Ludlum, Gulf States, Colorado Fuel and Iron, and other independent units in the steel industry.

An extra dividend of 15 cents, supplementing the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents was declared on the class A stock of the Tobacco Products corporation, controlled by the United Stores corporation.

Common stock of the Federal Screw works, which has been on a $3 annual dividend basis, was placed on a $1 yearly basis today with the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share instead of 75 cents.

A dividend of 10 cents a share has been declared on common stock of the C M. Hall Lamp company, payable Dec. 16. The dividend was reduced to a 60 cents annual basis from $1.50 last September. The latest dividend action placed it on a 40 cents yearly basis.

Directors of the Parke Davis company declared a special dividend of 35 cents a share and the regular quarterly of 25 cents. Similar dividends were declared in January, 1930, and in each of the three succeeding quarters a special payment of 10 cents was made in addition to the regular quarterly of 25 cents.

Bunker Hill Mining and Concentrating company has declared the usual extra of 25 cents and regular monthly dividend of 25 cents.

Directors of the Knox company have omitted the quarterly dividends of $1 on the common and class A common stocks due at this time. Backstay Welt company directors voted to omit the quarterly dividend on the common stock due Jan. 1.

Westmoreland, Inc., directors declared an extra dividend of 80 cents and a regular quarterly payment of 30 cents. A similar extra was paid a year ago. Directors of the Westmoreland Coal company declared an initial dividend of 50 cents on the common stock.

Prairie to Stop Crude Oil Buying in Seminole Area

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Prairie Oil and Gas company has notified all companies in the greater Seminole area, to whose property it is connected, that it wishes to be relieved from further buying of crude oil. The company now is purchasing about 12,000 barrelz daily.

Rockefeller Holdings Seen as Condensed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 28.—All the Rockefeller holdings in five of the original Standard Oil companies have been disposed of and the interest of the Rockefeller family and philanthropies is being concentrated in a few companies of the old Standard Oil group, it was learned today.

The companies from which the Rockefeller interests are said to have withdrawn entirely are the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, the Standard Oil Company of Kansas, the Atlantic Refining company, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and the Prairie Pipe Line company.

The enterprises in which they have largely centered their interest are the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Standard Oil Company of California, and the Vacuum Oil company. The Rockefellers are also retaining their holdings in the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, the Ohio Oil company, and a few smaller companies.

Wall Street's View.

The fact that the Rockefellers had withdrawn altogether from at least five of the old line Standard Oil companies was learned definitely today for the first time, although it had been generally understood in Wall street that they had given up their active interest in Atlantic Refining and Prairie Oil and Gas. They have gone so far, it is understood, as to form a complete realignment of their Standard Oil interests.

To Wall street this fact suggests that the Rockefellers have recognized the trend toward the larger, fully integrated companies. Also, it is believed, they prefer to have their oil investments confined to a smaller group of companies.

The Rockefeller stock holding interest is largest in the Standard of New Jersey, which is the keystone of the Standard Oil group. Their original holdings in this company, amounting to nearly 25 per cent, are largely intact today.

Lower Ratio of Holdings.

In this connection it is pointed out that the Jersey company has not exchanged its shares to any important extent in the acquisition of other properties, while other Standard Oil companies have done so and in the process have lowered the ratio of the Rockefeller holdings in their total stock outstanding. The Rockefellers may have sold some Standard of New Jersey stock but if they did so it was in large measure replaced by later purchases.

While it was reported today that representatives of John D. Rockefeller Jr. had acquired the stock holdings of Col. Robert W. Stewart in the Standard of Indiana, both these reports were denied by persons acquainted with the status of that company's stock lists. It is possible that some additional Standard of Indiana stock may have been bought for the Rockefeller account, but Col. Stewart, who was deposed as chairman of that company, is understood to be still a substantial stockholder.

RAILROAD BONDS UNDER PRESSURE, REACH NEW LOWS

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Railroad bonds dipped with shares today and many second grade and speculative issues reacted to new lows for the year.

Both lien and convertible issues were among those depressed to new lows for the year including Atchison convertible 4½s, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, Canadian Pacific 4½s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, and 4½s, Chicago Northwestern 4¾s, Kansas City Southern 5s, Lehigh Valley 4s, Southern Railway general 4s, Cotton Belt first 5s, Wabash 5s B, Lehigh Valley 4s and Missouri Pacific general 4s. Most of the best grade legals were softened under the pressure against the group.

TRADERS VIEW STOCK MARKET ON 'CASH BASIS'

Brokers' Loan Drop Is Indication.

With another sizeable decline in brokers' loans, bringing them to the lowest level on record, Wall and La Salle streets yesterday talked of the stock market being on a "cash basis." By this is meant that whatever buying of stocks there has been in the last week is largely due to investors who either have paid cash or bought on such large margin as to approximate cash purchasing.

In the week ended last Tuesday, the stock market declined only moderately. Yet the weekly report of the federal reserve board showed a further decline of $63,000,000 in brokers' loans, making the ninth consecutive weekly decline and bringing the total down to $2,122,000,000. This figure is by odds the lowest since the weekly data began to be made public in January, 1926, and it is only a third of the volume of such loans at the peak in October, 1929.

Drop Over Billion in 9 Weeks.

The deflation in brokers' loans in the last nine weeks, or since Sept. 24, has aggregated $1,100,000,000. The major part of this shrinkage has resulted from withdrawals of credit from the call money market by interior banks and nonbanking lenders, both as the result of lack of demand and the fact that interest rates of only 1½ to 2 per cent could be obtained.

In the current report on brokers' loans the major portion of the decline was represented by withdrawals totaling $59,000,000 by interior banks, whereas the New York banks drew only $4,000,000 and non-banking lenders, including corporations, made no change in their loans. Compared with a year ago, the New York banks are lending $457,000,000 more than a year ago, while interior banks and non-banking lenders are lending $258,000,000 and $1,527,000,000 less, respectively. In fact, the $1,288,000,000 now being furnished to the stock market by the New York banks represents well over half of total brokers' loans.

Some pickup in business with the approach of the holiday and also the approaching month-end settlements have caused a somewhat stronger demand for credit for commercial purposes in the last week. The weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night, shows an increase of $28,815,000 in borrowings by member banks from the reserve banks, bringing total borrowings to $233,852,000. The reserve banks disposed of $2167,000 of bankers' acceptances, but made little change in holdings of government securities.

Borrowings Increase.

Currency needs over Thanksgiving resulted in federal reserve note circulation expanding $38,264,000. Deposits dropped $50,782,000.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported an increase of $6.659,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $38,205,000. At the same time the reserve bank further contributed to ease in credit by buying $2,314,000 of bankers' acceptances and $1,926,000 of government securities. Deposits receded $12,612,000 Reserves declined $4,759.000 and the reserve ratio sagged to 86.8 per cent, compared with 87.5 per cent last week.

The Chicago Reserve bank reported an increase of $1,974,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $19,112,000. But this credit expansion was about offset by selling of $1,051,000 of bankers' acceptances by the reserve bank. Government securities held, deposits and reserves showed small changes, and the reserve ratio now stands at 83.2 per cent, compared with 83.1 per cent a week ago.

Confidence in Building Now Being Shown

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—F. W. Dodge corporation, building statisticians, reported today that confidence in the advisability of building now was being exhibited daily in a substantial way.

"In a market characterized by considerable hesitancy and indecision," the corporation says, "numbers of private corporations are definitely anticipating their future requirements, and convinced that they have little to gain by waiting, are letting their contracts and authorizing construction work to proceed."

L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician of the corporation, says that further improvement in residential building evidence in the October record tended to narrow the relative decline from 1929 to a small degree.

Cites Reverse Trends.

While residential building during the first 10 months of 1930 was 44 per cent less than 1929, the slump in the first nine months was 45½ per cent. The nonresidential building situation is just the reverse, Mr. Schnitman said. The total of contracts for this type of construction for October was the smallest for any month since 1921 and the total for ten months was 21 per cent less than the comparable period of 1929.

Since the first of November, however, contracts for several large projects have been let by the corporation. Among those listed are a $7,000,000 department store for the Cleveland Union Terminals company at Cleveland; $6,000,000 industrial research building for the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh; $5,500,000 Fidelity National Bank and Trust company building at Kansas City; $2,000,000 hotel, theater and store project for Third and Brady Street corporation, New York; $2,000,000 oil refinery and pipe line project for Union Gulf corporation of Pittsburgh, and $2,000,000 gravel and storage preparation plant for Construction Materials corporation at Grand Haven, Mich.

Buyers' Market.

"We are undoubtedly in a 'buyers' market' in the building business," says Col. John C. Hegeman, president of Hegeman-Harris Co., Inc.

Discussing the matter of construction costs in the current issue of the General Building Contractor, Col. Hegeman says that costs have shown a definite downard trend for more than a year and in the opinion of many builders have reached a point where stabilization at existing levels is at hand.

OCTOBER NET OF ILL. CENTRAL IS HIGHER BY $52,642

Net income of the Illinois Central system for October totaled $3,495,708, an increase of $52,642 over the same month of last year, despite a drop of $4,338,035 in operating revenues, which were $13,160,788. For the first ten months of 1930 net income was $19,083,114, a decrease of $4,312,796 compared with last year. Revenues for the period totaled $126,791,584, a drop of $25,786,118.

October net operating income of railroads reporting yesterday, with comparisons with the like month last year, included:

Says Missouri Pacific Would Buy Okla. Railroad

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific railroad, said the line had entered into a contract to purchase the Northeast Oklahoma railroad, subject to approval of the interstate commerce commission. The line was allocated to the Missouri Pacific by the commission. The consideration involved was not made public, but it was understood the transaction involved approximately $1,350,000.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

J. A. McDermott, president of United States Dairy Products corporation, estimates that gross sales of the corporation for 1930 will approximate $28,000,000, a new high record. Gross sales last year totaled $24,713,016. He said the increase results largely from acquisition of new properties since the beginning of the present year.

The Lehigh Valley railroad is inquiring for bids for 100 seventy ton gondola cars.

The Waters Genter division of the McGraw Electric company reports $334,000 gross business for October, an increase of $38,000 over October, 1929, which was the largest month in the history of the company up to that time. The Waters Genter company has recently received its largest single order for kitchen equipment from a prominent New York restaurant chain.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Curb exchange membership at $105,000, an increase of $5,000 from the last sale.

Retail stores in the San Francisco bay district report business up to mid-November is holding even with October in most lines, with collections improving moderately, according to the Wells Fargo bank and Union Trust company of San Francisco.

A Mexico City dispatch says it was announced that the Fisher Construction company of Chicago has signed contracts to build a $3,250,000 hotel there, work to start on Jan. 1.

General Railway Signal company has been awarded the contract for interlocking and signaling equipment on the new 53d street, Brooklyn, subway line on a low bid of $2,178,000.

Department store sales in New York district for October averaged 5.4 per cent below a year ago, against an 8 per cent decline in the September average, according to the federal reserve agent's report.

Stockholders of Studebaker corporation increased approximately 33 per cent during the year ended Nov. 10, with a total of 30,021 as compared with 22,512 on Nov. 9, 1929, a gain of 7,509, according to company officials.

October sales of the Detroit Steel Products company were the second largest of any month this year, according to H. F. Wardwell, vice president and general sales manager of the company. He said figures indicate that the depression in the building industry is near an end, since the initial stage in business recovery is expected first to be manifest by improvement in the building industry.

Advice to members of the Rubber exchange of New York say the inventory position of the large tire manufacturers has been brought down to a firmer basis, allowing resumption of full operations during the first week in January. In fact, the statement says, there is actually a shortage in stocks of some sizes of tire.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 28.—The stock market was indisposed today. The railroad shares, in particular, were worse off than they have been on any day after Thanksgiving in years. Virtually the whole group sagged to new lows for the year, a half dozen or more recorded new bottoms for five years or longer. Illinois Central sold at its lowest price in more than thirty years. Declines of 2 to 5 points were the rule.

Industrial leaders were down 1 to 3 at the finish in spite of a moderate final hour rally which had restored part of their former losses. Losses in specialties ran as high as 7 and 8 points.

Selling Is Random.

While the downward tendency of the market seemed to be due primarily to lack of support rather than any great press of offerings, there was some evidence of bear activity here and there—obviously by way of endeavor to capitalize whatever anxiety may exist in market circles over the approach of the time for the opening of the short session of congress. The selling was of a random character, however, a sort of feeling out process and caused no genuine alarm at any stage. Trading dragged along at a heavy pace for most of the session.

The turnover was 1,743,790 shares.

Holiday cash demands and preparations for the distribution of heavy dividend payments early next week brought a slightly firmer tone to the money market. Offerings at 1½ per cent outside the exchange were taken but the official rate still held at 2 per cent. Money conditions, however, cut little ice in the calculations of the average trader these days. Neither does anything else much, outside the technical condition of the market itself.

Carriers Acutely Weak.

The carrier stocks were acutely weak from the outset, opening prices on the more active issues of the group showing dips of 2 to 4 points under the finals of Wednesday. Disappointing earnings statements which the big roads of the country are turning in from day to day was of course to blame. There was some thought that the holiday announcement of plans of the roads to appeal to congress for relief at the coming session might have a beneficial effect but to all appearances the development was utterly ignored.

New York Central, Colorado and Southern, Chicago and North Western preferred, Missouri Pacific got down to points under any they have touched in three to six years. New York Central was off about 3 points most of the day but recovered fractionally to

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES NEARING RECENT LOWS

Active Shares Sustain Moderate Losses.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange emerged from yesterday's post-holiday bartering contest in a condition not unlike that in which they joined the recent bull movement.

The day's price cutting was not unusually drastic, but, coming as it did after a series of reducing exercises in the last week, it had the net result of placing most of the active stocks at or near the prices of three weeks ago.

In some cases new low quotations were chalked up, but those were the exceptions. Active shares sustained moderate losses on a comparatively small sales volume. These included Insull Utility, Middle West, Majestic, Grigsby, Chicago corporation, and Continental Chicago. It was in the less active group that the "new lows" were made. In this class were Balaban & Katz, Federal Compress, and Iron Fireman.

Steady Liquidation.

Perhaps it was the early convening of congress that engendered caution on the bull side, or maybe the technical position of the market that ruled the trend, but the speculative community was interested mainly in the fact that the steady liquidation of the last few days gave no evidence of exhaustion. The street was seemingly reconciled to a continuation of the selling today.

The day's news developments directly affecting Chicago stocks did not conflict with the trend of the market.

Consumers company reported ten months' earnings before federal taxes of $260,750. This compared with a net profit before federal taxes, but after interest on the purchase of Wisconsin Lime and Cement company of $671,917 in the corresponding period last year. The capitalization as of Oct. 31 was the same as in the previous year. Outstanding stocks consist of 70,000 shares of 6 per cent $100 par prior preference stock, 45,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 cumulative preferred stock, and 733,310 shares of $5 par common.

Cuts Funded Debt.

The balance sheet showed that funded debt has been reduced $660,000 to $7,735,000 since Jan. 1. Cash and government securities declined $428,211, and accounts receivable dropped $866,680. Current notes and accounts payable increased $671,023. One item which did not appear in the Dec. 31 balance sheet was notes payable, not current, of $346,500.

Directors of the Federal Screw works voted a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, placing the stock on $1 annual basis, as compared with $3 formerly. Backstay Welt company directors omitted the quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common which was due Jan. 1.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago firm: 4@5 per cent on collateral, 3½@4½ per cent on time; commercial paper, 2¾@3½ per cent; bankers' acceptances, 2@1⅞ per cent. Chicago clearings yesterday were $96,400,000, compared with $77,000,000 a week ago and $119,000,000 a year ago. New York clearings were $1,029,000,000.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Call money steady, 2 per cent all day. Time loans easy 60 to 90 days, 2@2¼; four months, 2¼ to 6 months, 2¼@2½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 2½@3 per cent. Bankers' acceptances unchanged. Bar silver, 35⅞c

Top yesterday, $8.60; average, $8.40.

CATTLE—Bulk of sales yester-
Top yesterday, $8.75; average, $8.00.
Receipts at Chicago for today estimated at 300 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep.

Cattle and hogs scored additional sharp advances on yesterday's market, while lambs lost 15@25c of the recent advance. Choice yearlings rejected from "show" cattle boosted the peak price to $14.25, highest since last May. Top hogs reached $8.60, highest in 10 days. Top lambs, despite the setback, were only 10c under the high point of the month at $8.75.

Outside buyers obtained fourth of yesterday's hog receipts, resulting in a quick clearance of all good grades at 15@25c higher price level. Smaller packers and city butchers bought freely, while larger houses slaughtered 13,000 directs. Only 3,000 remained in the pens at the close.

The extreme top moved up 20c at $8.60, while the general average showed 20c advance at $8.40, comparing with a top of $8.15 and average of $7.95 the middle of last week, the low spot of the year. Prices are mostly 10c above a week ago.

March Hogs Bring $9.00.

Contracts for March light weight hogs continued to sell at $9.00, the highest price on the list on yesterday's futures market. January light reached $8.55 and December mediums sold at $8.60. January heavy hogs were bid $8.25 and March mediums carried bids of $8.75.

Steers rejected from "show" cattle comprised the bulk of yesterday's offerings of choice grades. More than 700 averaging 900@1,400 lbs sold at $13.50 and above, several loads passing the $14.00 line. Prime weighty beeves reached $13.75, while the top for regular "market" steers stopped at $13.00, which was paid for 1,405 lb averages. Sales showed the week's full advance.

Cows and heifers held firm. Calves were unchanged. Stockers and feeders met fair demand at steady prices.

Lambs Lose Gains.

Sheep receipts showed an increase following the Thursday holiday, reselling in a break of 15@25c soon after the opening yesterday. Bulk of good to choice grades sold to packers at $8.25@8.50, prime 95 lb averages reaching the outside figure, while top to city butchers reached $8.75.

Aged sheep shared in the break, top ewes going down to $4.00. Yearlings sold steady to 25c lower, a band of 105 lb fed westerns selling at $7.25. Feeding lambs were in good demand at strong prices.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 212 cattle, 6,883 hogs, and 2,379 sheep on the previous Saturday and 1,033 cattle, 9,078 hogs, and 898 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated from 50,000 to 68,000. H. Pattison marked 50,000, R. W. Thorne 52,000, J. T. Brown 55,000, A. G. Welhener 57,000, E. S. Waterbury 58,000, F. Knutzen 59,000, S. Lund and G. W. Chandler 60,000, F. M. Sherwood, R. W. Trotter and F. B. Orb 62,000, W. C. White, W. T. Reneker and R. B. Ellis 65,000, and C. Daley 68,000.

Reports U. S. Commercial Failures Average 92 Daily

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Commercial failures in the United States during the week totaled 461, a daily average of 92, which is slightly less than last week's average, R. G. Dun & Co reports. The period covers five business days, owing to Thanksgiving. A year ago 371 insolvencies were reported for five days. Of this week's total defaults 296 had liabilities of more than $5,000 each, compared with 218 similar failures in the like week last year.

PRICES EASE OFF ON WEAKNESS OF FOREIGN WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreign wheat markets developed one of their recurrent spells of weakness over the Thanksgiving holiday and resulted in a rather sharp recession in prices in America. Winnipeg was distinctly weak, with back spreading between that market and Chicago. This resulted in the December there dropping 4¾c from Wednesday's finish to a low of 57c, or within 2¼c of the inside figure on the crop.

American wheat markets were sluggish but eased off in sympathy with Winnipeg and Liverpool. Chicago closed 1@1¼c lower on the old crop months, while the July was 2½c lower, the latter representing the 1921 crop. Old December finished at 74¾@74⅞c; March, 77¾@77½c; May, 79¾@79½c, and July, 74½c. Winnipeg rallied sharply from the inside figure but was off 2½@2⅞c as compared with Wednesday, while Liverpool declined 1¾@2d.

Argentine News a Factor.

Broomhall's estimate that Argentine would have an exportable surplus of 200,000,000 bu compared with 60,000,000 bu the previous season had a depressing effect on all foreign wheat markets. While private cables declared the figure was too high, placing the surplus at 165,000,000 bu, there was not the snap on the buying side of futures which has featured the markets of late. There was some spreading between Chicago and Minneapolis during the day, but the stabilization corporation was not called upon to give aggressive support, as at no time did the December sell as low as 73c, or the May futures at 78@79c.

News of a constructive character was generally lacking, and the speculative interest in the wheat market seems to be gradually decreasing. Export sales of around 1,000,000 bu Manitobas were said to have been made on Thursday when Chicago was closed, and a moderate business was under way yesterday, although figures were not given. Harvesting is general in northern Argentine and in Australia, with weather conditions favorable in both countries. Russian parcels were reported as being held at higher figures in Europe, which led to some buying at Liverpool.

Unless the Canadian government steps in and buys wheat on a large scale, the grain trade generally believe that the proposal of a minimum figure of $1 per bu for Manitobas at the head of the lakes will fall flat. Chairman A. A. Legge of the farm board was quoted in a Washington message as claiming that Russia's revival as a wheat exporter on a large scale will make a world price of $1 a bu unusual. Buenos Ayres finished ¼@⅝c higher as compared with Thursday.

Longs Sell Corn Futures.

Corn market showed a heavy undertone a good part of the day. While local bulls gave upport at times, they failed to receive any outside help and, with stop loss orders uncovered, the close was at net losses of 1⅜@1½c, with old December at 74@74¼c; March 76 @76⅞c; May, 78¼@78⅞c, and July, 78⅞@79c. Buying against bids was a factor in checking the decline. Reports of an active demand for coarse grains in Europe had no effect as a market influence. Buenos Aires closed 1½c higher.

A belief that no change would be made in the import duty on corn into the United States during the next few days had some effect on sentiment. The present duty of 25c per bu is per mitting a small amount of grain to come into this country from Argentina, where the December delivery is quoted at 36¾c, or about 37c under Chicago.

Cash interests bought December and sold far oats on a liberal scale at 3c difference, but sufficient liquidation and scattered selling developed as the result of the break in other grains to carry prices off sharply. The close was 1¾@1¾c lower, with December at 33¾c, and May at 36⅝@36¾c.

Liquidation developed in rye and the close was 1¾@1½c lower, with the action of wheat the main influence. December finished at 40⅝c, and May at 45¾c.
